DECLINE OF CHURCH-GOING.

Two Reasons Why People Do Not Go to Church.

The pulpit used to be the chief means of information and of intellectual and moral stimulation for the people. The pulpit owes now the pulpit's origin. The pulpit has a great competitor in the secular press in this regard, said Rev. Dr. Talmage. The daily and weekly press have a greater influence in public instruction. The pulpit employs one hour a week, and the press from 168 to 168 hours a week. The press has a large share of the attention in this regard. Orators no longer rivet attention as in former times, or influence. In cities like some cities in public, compact, stimulating audiences, often exhausts but not outlasts. Contentions for the truth which used to be done after discussions before the public, in the people will not be done in public, but in private or letters and captions. They demand short, crisp sentences that bristle with points and are pungent and helpful. In some sections the congregations are of a character of the pulpit, which good in great multitudes are longer attracted thereto. They feel that they can get more benefit in this regard by reading in the comfort of the home. Multitudes of people can no longer be induced to attend church to be instructed in the manner or to get the judgment as regard of the times, or to be edified by the eloquence. Then only get all the in three sermons and sermon reading, and then. What was this is remembered by the time that morning hours have been shortened, and people want their rest when they are exhausted, so the society of the day. The time when people were anthusiastic and enthusiastic about the church, and expressing themselves in which the text of all sermons, the Bible, is now gone. Expressing themselves in which the text of all sermons, the Bible, is now gone. In the pulpit, or for work the transcendental, which, when it is used, is a two-horsing signal. The text of the sermon as it evolves from one the pulpit, is a text of the Bible, large, fascinating, and sermon are more and as a result of the pulpit, in the various practical forms of practice.

Mission Triumph Assured.

Cal. D. Wilcox, vice-president of the Woman's Union Temperance, said that the mission of the church of the Christian times of the Roman Empire, and the Christian religion was spreading by the Missionary Society. Those who were in the Roman Empire, and to all the Missions in Japan, in the states of Idaho and Montana, and in the Sandwich Islands. Young was in attendance of convening 12 million. Mr. Wilcox said that such the perpetual motion of our society, and the Christian women union.

No Danger from the Breath.

It is said that there are no bacteria, specific or other in the expired breath in the ordinary respiration of persons affected with diphtheria or scarlatina; therefore the warning against inhaling the breath of such persons is unnecessary. The real source of danger is in the discharges from the throat, nose and lungs. It is more important that ordinary persons realize that in these discharges should be disinfected. Under ordinary circumstances well people are spared as handkerchiefs of infected any article of clothing which patients suffering from these diseases.

Five Million Miles of Wire.

The total length of telegraph wire in the world, land and marine, is in round numbers 5,000,000 miles, of which one-half is in America. More than 30,000 telegraph messages are sent in a day. Much more than half of the messages are sent in Australia. The Russian telegraph system has been developed enormously of late years, but the United States continues to have of all countries in the volume of telegraph business done.

What a Million Army Cost.

The British army corps, as usually constituted, numbers 36,352 officers and men. A large number of these are "technical" troops, in charge of the pontoons, field telegraph, railway engineers, balloons, field batteries and so on. Roughly, Blackmore, of the British Parliament, estimates the strength of a corps of infantry at 20,000 men, and the cavalry at 3,000 more, with eighteen guns of an army corps, or 24,000 men, with a guide.

Insect Stings.

The pain caused by the sting of an insect may be alleviated by applying a lotion composed of one part of ammonia and three parts of water. Soak a piece of lint in the lotion, and if the sting is on a limb, let the limb be elevated, maintaining the lint from time to time with fresh lotion; the slight redness it will be sufficient to facilitate the part thoroughly with the lotion three or four times.

A HOCUS GHOST IN PARIS.

How He Tricked a Merchant Into Giving Him Money.

M. Coquin, a certain merchant of Paris much given to curious novelty in advertising, not long ago, coming in a cabbie standing nearby he an amusing plan: who wished to remain anonymous to those of the merchant, gave the London Telegraph. The latter latest fad, friends and acquaintances that he had a rendezvous, engage from spiritualist to the effect that his son, who died in Tonkin, had been murdered in prison. The disbelieved, replying that a person that night at M. Coquin's well, and suggested that he was a spirit. The wanted money for masses to be said in a certain church for the repose of the soul of the unfortunate young man. The man of the Tonkin was requested, and the phantom asked M. Coquin to give enough to put it under the fund on the left side of the church, in the chapel of Saint Joseph. It appears that a footfall was heard in the chapel, and the money was stolen when the two persons were supposed to be dead some hundred Tonquin. Subsequent and support the tower was had in fact an advantage with spirits and was engaged in very present business and the fellow the star to the far east. The one had a long day night for the man, who was invited to Coquin seems to well into market in the dark. No sooner had the spirit entered the dark that he disappeared from on the hand from his arm. Breakfasted for the reason from Tonquin. The spirit Clairvoyant Ed. the man persuasion saw the chair and left the chapel by latter and gone. The spirit proved to be a very sanguinary adventurer, who was convicted of the murder of a young man, who wanted the arts of swindling of a wealthy and of some instance of a very ingenious sort.

Helen Keller.

Helen Keller, the deaf mute, whose astonishing rival those of Laura Bridgman, in whom she was from the age of 19 months, and who has recently passed with honors the entrance examination of the Wonderful Annex of Harvard University, under conditions precisely the same as those of physical disadvantage, is a young lady of twenty-one, in good health, self to speak, in a fashion characterized by her teacher, Miss Sullivan, as perfect, and the questions in her examination were answered in her in typewriter. Although she is a mute, yet her voice is not in a disagreeable condition—a low-toned, pleasant voice, softer and sweeter although the cultivated in her pronunciation of French, English and geometry. Although rather her time is spent in outdoor interests, as even supposed, she is exceptionally gifted, it would seem possible to devote the time of her life more to a general degree than has thus far been the case.

Kicking Mule Causes Murder.

In Jackson county, in Tennessee, a small boy named Jim Pace was employed by Cole Pace, who, while working for Lee was sent to the stable to feed the mule. One of mules began kicking and the boy pounded the animal with a club. Upon coming to the stable Capt. Lee ordered the boy to stop, and when he refused the captain killed the boy with a shotgun.

England's Oriental Resources.

It is estimated that if the laws of German compulsion were applied to her East Indian possessions Great Britain would have a standing army of 1,500,000 soldiers, and about 400,000 recruits coming on for enrollment every year.

Parliamentary Interpreters.

There are so many language spoken in the provinces of Austria-Hungary that interpreters are commanded in the various parliaments to interpret the speeches for the deputies who make them intelligible to all the members.

Three Pillars in Volcano Smoke.

C. Ross, in the Deutsche Aerztezeitung, says there are three kinds of fumes in volcanic smoke, hydrogen, which is oxidized by the oxygen of the atmosphere, ammonia, and sulphur dioxide. Its percentage depending upon the volume of the stream and varies between 0.6 and 7.6. The variations depend upon the amount of the stream, and the quantity of the atmospheric air drawn in to the fire. Ammonia is never in air, always combining with sulphuric acid. Sulphur dioxide is the only one which the ordinary conditions, measure to be reported. Whether the gas taking in of the small quantity of carbonic acid which, through many years smoking, gets into the blood of smokers, cannot produce a chronic injury, is a question still to be asked.

EARLY LAMPS AND WICKS.

The Latter Were Commonly the Pith of the Rush.

It would be tiresome to continue from the first week commencing of Adam we come to consider the origin of "light." We know that the first material used was the pith of the rush which was gathered and prepared by the ancient Egyptians. The pith was put up in bundles dried and then made ready for use. The rush light was hammered out of an piece of iron in a stone mortar. It was usually done by the blacksmith, for the rushes are still to be seen in museums in the shape of primitive lamps, and no doubt at some of the ancient blacksmith shops. The pith is unique, with such great strength. The lamp consists of two plates, one embossed above and inside the other. The numerous ones find great difficulty in to enable the upper to hold the oil and which is the material and to keep the oil constantly in contact with the wick. The lower plate retains the drip of the oil which can be easily replaced in the upper cup by tilting it off until the oil is poured into it. The upper cup has sometimes a movable lid. There is a remarkable resemblance and only between the lamps in this country, but to those on the continent and in Egypt. They preserve the same general shape, the difference in the material from which they are made. The Pompeiian lamps are made some of them which be modified in these grades in use. The cup of the lamp is the same, but of less proportion and three lights. The oil used in the lamps of the ancients which the ancient coast the oil used was oil of fish oil. The material for wicks was variable.

EXPLODED THE SOUTH STAR.

Professor Agassiz Tells of the Fire of the Adiatrous.

Prof. A. Agassiz, who was San Francisco several months ago to see the effects of submarine explosions near the wreck of the Adiatrous, has returned to the Union, and presented a report to Washington regarding the causes of the loss of the South star. The explosion which took place in the Pacific ocean, on the 3rd, the entrance of the Straits of Magellan, was caused by the ignition of the Sunday ammunition, which was in the forward hold of the Adiatrous. Along her course the Adiatrous left a trail of floating wreckage, which was picked up by the Adiatrous. The Adiatrous was on her way to Valparaiso, Chile, when the explosion occurred. The Adiatrous was a vessel of 1,500 tons and was commanded by the Honorable Arthur Ellis, the son of the Earl of Mexborough.

AMERICAN FOUGHTED IN PERU.

Wrongful Treatment of Edward Gottfried by Band of Revolutionists.

Edward Gottfried of Wilkesbarre, Pa., an American agent of the Government at Tacalla, Peru, in a sworn statement which he has filed with the State Department, asserts that in the summer of 1895 at Huancabamba, Peru, 500 of Pierola's revolutionists dragged him half dressed to the public square where they tied him to a cannon. After an hour the cannon fired and blown and twenty-five lashes with a rawhide were administered. Along his course the Adiatrous left a trail of floating wreckage, which was picked up by the Adiatrous. The Adiatrous was on her way to Valparaiso, Chile, when the explosion occurred. The Adiatrous was a vessel of 1,500 tons and was commanded by the Honorable Arthur Ellis, the son of the Earl of Mexborough.

BIG HALL IN RUINS.

THE KANSAS CITY CONVENTION BUILDING IS SUBDUED.

Great Auditorium in Which the National Democratic Convention Was to Have Been Held is a Total Loss—Will be Rebuilt Without Delay.

The great Convention Hall of the largest auditorium in the United States, with perhaps one exception, and in which the Democratic national convention was to have been held, caught fire shortly after 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The fire started in the west, and in half an hour the entire roof was a mass of flames. The fire was so hot that it was impossible to save surrounding property. Half an hour after the fire was discovered the roof fell in with a crash. The building, Professional Hall, which caught fire, did not attempt to save it. The fire was spread in a row of wooden sheds, which ran from the east side of the hall. Horses were saved from the sheds, but the entire stock of goods belonging to the concession was stored in the sheds was burned. The concession was owned by Mr. Bennett.

The convention hall was about a quarter of a mile, and is located in the rear of the building on Belmont Boulevard. The building was completely gutted. The fire, said it is almost the entire loss, the building was insured for $100,000. The loss on the building and contents will be about $150,000.

CLEVER COUP OF BOERS.

Boast of Broadmoor's Force Proves Built to Dragging Ambuscade.

The London correspondents with Sir Roberts and Buller's experience in the Transvaal, have taken advantage of the absence of Mr. Broadmoor's column. The correspondent of the Daily Mail, who was with the column, gives the following account of the Boers' clever coup.

The column left Ladysmith on the morning of the 19th, and reached Dundee on the 20th. The Boers had taken possession of the place, and had fortified the hills in the vicinity. The column was ordered to take the hills, and the Boers were driven from them. The column then marched to Dundee, and the Boers were driven from the town. Republican Congressional Convention

A Republican Convention for the Eleventh Congressional District of Michigan will be held at Petoskey on Tuesday, May 1st, 1900, at one o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting two District Delegates and two Alternate District Delegates from said District to attend the Republican National Convention and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said Congressional Convention.

Dated April 23d 1900.

F. W. MAYNE, Secretary. G. L. BAILEY, Chairman.

The Puerto Rican Bill.

Detroit Journal: Civil government will be established in Puerto Rico as quickly as it can be done. For two years we have maintained in the island a military or provisional government and Puerto Rico has held the relation of a subject dependency. The Republican party has decreed that the military government shall be superseded by a civil government and the administration will make the substitution with becoming dispatch. Perhaps a civil government might have been established long ago; but congress moves slowly in such momentous matters. The order has been made and now it remains for the administration to execute it.

Pending the substitution, congress has provided ways and means for raising revenue to pay the cost of government. This act has been severely criticised and condemned as being violative of the constitution, and as taxing citizens of the republic without according them representation. The questions that have been brought up in connection with the discussion have been dignified as questions of "conscience," but a matter of fact they are questions only of judgment. Once the status of the island has been declared by the supreme court there will be no difference of opinion regarding the character of legislation by congress. Then "conscience" will not be conjured to justify assaults upon the integrity of the administration, nor upon the patriotism of the members of congress.

President McKinley has never ceased to believe and declare that our "plain duty" is to establish free trade relations with Puerto Rico. The majority in congress has never sought unreasonably to postpone the consummation of a purpose to establish untaxed trade relations so soon as it could be realized without doing injury to the inhabitants of Puerto Rico. Conscience, so far as it approaches the question, is tranquilly resolved to make Puerto Rico part of the integral territory of the country at the earliest feasible moment. Meanwhile the Puerto Ricans must have revenues to pay for their government and make necessary internal improvements. Congress has provided for raising those revenues.

The law enacted yesterday provided that 15 per cent of the duties imposed on imports by the Dingley law shall be taxed on certain goods going into Puerto Rico from this country. All goods coming from Puerto Rico into this country are put on the free list. Taxes collected from such goods shall be sequestrated in the treasury for the sole use and benefit of Puerto Rico. Not a dollar of the taxes will go to swell the revenues of the United States. All necessities of life purchased in this country go into Puerto Rico free of duty. This system is to endure until a civil government shall be established when it will be abolished by executive order and trade between Puerto Rico and the United States will be as free as it is between the several states.

The measure is born of benevolence and necessity. It works no hardship to the Puerto Ricans. If it works any hardship at all it is upon the people of this country. It is a substitute for direct taxation—an emergency or temporary measure. If the Puerto Ricans were compelled now to raise revenues by direct taxation property owners would be obliged to pay taxes equal to 4 per cent of the value of their property—a rate that would be intolerable in any state. Instead of taking or requiring them to establish a system of taxation that would be extortionate, we provide a system of indirect taxation that they will never feel. If the Republican party has violated the constitution by extending a helping hand to the poverty-stricken and distressed of Puerto Rico it is in the name of humanity and progress.

The party will welcome any political issue that may be framed on the assumed issue administration. The Colorado silver bill is sound in comparison [illegible] and in law. It will add some [illegible] of never yet [illegible] and [illegible] on [illegible]ick a Candidate.

Congressman W. S. Mesick has announced himself as a candidate for renomination, after assuring himself that he was the choice of the leading republicans of a majority of counties in the district.

Mr. Mesick has acted wisely. Just at this time the republicans of the 11th district cannot afford to take up a new man. Mr. Mesick has been a very successful member of congress. His work has been well done, and it goes without saying that he can accomplish more for this district in the next two years than a new man could.

Charlevoix county, possessing the only harbor in the district, is deeply interested in having a congressman who has learned the art of congressional "pulls." Charlevoix wants increased appropriations. Mr. Mesick has done well for us in the past, he can do better in the future than a new man could.

Let us see to it that Charlevoix county sends Mesick delegates to the congressional convention.

The township highway commissioner was present and stated that by vote at the township annual meeting he was directed to appear before the council and ask the council to appropriate not less than fifty dollars to improve the Petoskey road east from the railroad to the town line. Laid on the table for one week.

On motion the Supt. of Water Works was directed to procure and install a hydrant at the north end of main on North Bridge street at his earliest convenience.

Supt. of Water Works reported a communication from the Stirling Co. announcing the shipment of the new boiler on the 25th and advised the purchase of brick to set same, and on motion he was instructed to ascertain where brick could be purchased and at what price and report to council at next meeting.

Trustee Eaton introduced the following resolution which was adopted:

Resolved—that a strip of land 16 feet wide on each side of Main street in the village of Charlevoix be set aside and reserved for the use of the residents along said street, to be used and ornamented by them, and not to be used for driving purposes until the further order of the council.

TAX DODGING MADE HARD.

Questions That You Will be Obliged to Answer Under.

The question of the sworn statements that each property owner in Michigan will be required to make this spring, as provided by an amendment made in the general tax law by the last legislature, having been the subject of so much newspaper discussion during the last few weeks, the tax payers will doubtless be interested in a statement of just what questions they will be required to make oath to.

There has been prepared by Auditor General Dix one general blank for the statement of taxpayers in general and separate schedules covering the property of bankers and brokers, property of corporations, vessels and marine property. In addition to these there is a statement for pawn brokers to subscribe to.

As previously stated, the law requires that this statement must be under oath. It is also required that this statement shall show whether such property is owned by the person making the statement or held for the use of another, and if the latter, in what capacity it is held. A separate statement is required for each capacity in which one holds property.

The first schedule covers real property, and sets forth the description, if a farm, the number of acres improved, and the number and kind of buildings thereon. The personal property schedule covers the following: All annuities and royalties, number and value; deposits in banks or trust companies (naming each) amount, rate of interest and date; bonds, amount, rate of interest and date; notes unsecured by mortgage, number, amount, rate of interest and date; all other credits or deposits.

The third schedule calls for a description of all credits secured by real estate mortgage on lands situated in some other state, this calling for a description of each credit, the state in which the land is situated, description of the land and rate of interest.

All bonafide indebtedness is covered by the next schedule. This requires an itemized statement of each item of indebtedness, showing how secured and to whom owing, the residence of each creditor, the amount due each.

The law of 1899, under which the sworn statement from taxpayers is made imperative, makes it the duty of each assessing officer, as soon as possible after entering upon his duties to ascertain the taxable property of his assessing district, and the persons to whom it should be assessed, and their residences. For this purpose he shall require every person of full age and sound mind whom he believes has property which is not exempt from taxation, to make and subscribe to a correct and true written statement, under oath, administered by such assessing officer or other person authorized to administer oaths, of all the taxable property of such person, firm or corporation, whether owned by him or held for the use of another.

If any person, or member of any firm, or officer of a corporation shall refuse to make and deliver this sworn statement, or swear falsely or refuse to answer questions concerning his property, or property under his control, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not less than 30 days nor more than six months, or to be fined not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Central School Notes.

Dora Smallegan has been ill with the grippe for the past week, but has resumed the eighth grade work with renewed zeal.

Zella Mable has been ill for the past month and her teacher and schoolmates will be glad to hear of her recovery and the resuming of her work in school.

We have a new book-case for the school which adds much to the appearance of the room. An addition to the library is anticipated for the spring.

There have been a few cases of tardiness during the spring term, but we sincerely hope that the use of the large bell will decrease the per cent of tardiness for the remainder of the term.

A fine picture of Longfellow has been added to the decorations of the school room and some of the first graders seem to be as much inspired by his looks as the grammar pupils have been by his writings.

Asthma, bronchitis, la grippe and all throat, chest and lung diseases are surely cured by it. Call on F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Cadillac News: Rev. Mr. Soule, of the Adventist church, returned to this city on Friday of last week, and will remain here in charge of the church indefinitely. During his month's absence from Cadillac, Mr. Soule was in Charlevoix conducting special services in the interest of his denomination, the results of which were very gratifying.

Traverse City will extend an invitation to the Great Camp of the Maccabees of Michigan to hold its 1902 review in that city. Northern Michigan Maccabees well deserve the consideration such a designation would convey, and the anticipated coming of the Great Camp would prove a stimulating influence in this section of the state during the coming two years.

Mancelona Herald: It isn't to be wondered at that Banks has the best roads of any township in the county. They have expended money liberally in the past to make them good and this spring they voted $2,000 for special highway purposes. The farmers of Banks township are progressive and in building permanent instead of temporary road beds, they have certainly set a good example to the balance of the county. But, it is also most gratifying to note that other townships in the county are beginning to realize the importance of good roads, and from now on we hope to see a general abandonment of the foolish practice of scraping a little loose dirt into the center of the highway, and calling it a road.

Spreads Like Wildfire.

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Hare, a leading druggist, of Belleville, O., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in twenty years. You know why! Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, before cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system, puts new life and vigor into any weak, sickly, run-down man or woman. Price 50 cents. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists.

Notice From Health Officer.

The season for cleaning up is here, and I wish to urge upon all property owners the necessity of attending to this important duty, both from the hygienic standpoint, and from the fact that a well kept town is our best recommendation to visitors. I wish to call especial attention to the necessity of cleaning up around all barns, and to urge all owners of Round Lake frontage to unite in placing this portion of the town in presentable shape for the summer. The ordinance requires barn offal to be removed at least once each week, and I shall see that this statute is enforced. Please help matters by giving a prompt compliance.

—In another column appears correspondence and affidavits with reference to the poor house sensation, recently published in a Charlevoix paper. It effectually disposes of the charges. We do not wish to speak any unkind words of those in misfortune, but would suggest to the inmate who stirred up the matter that he stop kicking and be good. Since he had the misfortune to become a county charge he has done little else than growl and kick, and mainly because those in authority were Republicans. It would be a good idea for him to roost lower hereafter, and take what is given him by the "republican ring," with becoming modesty.

—Editor Slussar, of the Manistee Herald, in a recent editorial on the dog question, recommends dynamite for dogs upon which the tax is not paid. Between the lines the editorial convicts the writer of being a dog hater. Slussar has no use for anything but a gasoline yacht, and we sincerely hope the superintendent over there will soak him good and hard on his best property. A man who does not love a nice dog is fit only for strategem and spoils. We should like to see a good big chunk of Slussar's pants removed by a vigorous specimen of the bull dog family, as revenge for disseminating among the dog wardens his murderous dynamite doctrine. We know "old Slus," and have been out with him, but we shall at the Charlevoix meeting of the Michigan Republican Newspaper Association, next July, move for his expulsion unless he apologizes to dogdom. We will not associate or drink with a man who has no love for a good, faithful intelligent dog. These are strange times, when the law protects the life of a skunk and decrees the death of a dog. O tempora! O mores!

Marine Notes.

Capt. Wm. Cross is in the tug Taylor this season.

A marine hospital may be established at Manitowoc, Wis. this season.

The schooner J. V. Taylor is expected here daily with a cargo of coal.

The tug Martin is in commission, after a winter overhauling, and is in good shape.

Steamboats and schooners are arriving thick, and lumber shipments are lively.

The East Jordan Lumber Co. have bought an interest in the schooner Emily B. Maxwell.

The lighthouse tender Dahlia came in Saturday evening, leaving Monday with buoys for the straits.

The steamers Gordon and Crysler are each making one trip per day, on the East Jordan route.

The steamer Pine Lake will tow S. M. Moore's yacht Lady Jane to Chicago early in May, where she will receive repairs to her boiler.

The tug J. V. Taylor is having her cylinder bored out, and other improvements to her machinery, and will be in commission in about ten days.

S. M. Rose left yesterday for Manistee to fit out the schooner Kate Lyons. This is the vessel taken off the beach by Capts. Rose and Emery last fall. Capt. Emery will sail her.

The steamer Hackley made her first trip to the Beavers Saturday, returning Sunday afternoon. The Hackley will make her trips Tuesdays, Thurs. and Saturdays, the Joe running on the alternate days.

The steamer City of Charlevoix only came as far as Grand Traverse Bay on her first trip, last week, owing to the ice fields, but the steamer Illinois arrived in port Monday evening, discharging a large amount of freight.

Everything over fifteen tons burden that goes with an engine, whether the vapor that pushes the piston be steam, gasoline or naphtha, must be inspected by the government inspectors this year. Private yachts will not be exempted, and there is a fine of $500 for whoever neglects inspection.

Too Much Foolishness.

It matters little what Wm. Alden Smith thinks of the British Boer war. He has a right to his opinions and a right to express them in Congress. He also has the right to introduce pro Boer resolutions, and pass them.

But when he raised a Boer flag on a Danish ship at Norfolk lately, he not only made an ass of himself, but he violated all the rules of propriety, and the laws of the land.

We like "Billy" Smith, but he is altogether too sloppy on the Boer question.

Council Proceedings.

Council Room, April 23, 1900.

An adjourned regular meeting held on above date. H. Nicholls, Pres and Trustees Coulter, Van Alsburg, Cruickshank, Wilkinson and Eaton answered to roll call.

The minutes of last meeting read and approved as read.

The matter of repairing Petoskey road east from railroad to town line under the direction of the highway commissioner was taken from the table and the committee on streets and sidewalks reported that after investigating they would recommend that the council appropriate the amount asked for.

A proposition to the Canning Factory people was presented and made special order for a meeting to be held on Monday eve at the usual hour.

The proposition for a U. S. Fish Hatchery was laid over to Monday evening.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

It is an error to suppose that Arbor Day observances are profitable and appropriate only to certain classes of schools. There is no school in city or town or county that may not be benefitted by a hearty celebration of the day in some form. It subserves a variety of interests—material, social, educational, moral, and scientific.

To the county and town schools, Arbor day brings the improvement of school surroundings, and the pleasant social gathering of the neighborhood, to the city schools, the enjoyment of floral decorations, a break in the monotony of school routine by exercises of a highly interesting and elevating character, and, perhaps also, a delightful visit to parks and groves; to the high school grades, a scientific entertainment, whether within doors or without, of great value as an auxiliary to their science study. Let the day be observed in some appropriate form in every school; let it be productive of moral and material good in every grade; and the memory of Arbor Day will last through after years, lingering as a beautiful picture of school life, and exerting its influence upon the character of the people.

HOPE OF PEACE GONE.

BOERS, IT IS CLAIMED, WILL FIGHT TO THE DEATH.

St. Helena, Intimidated, Urges Surrender and Other Causes Lulls Brit-ish Fears for More Potent Warfare After Mere Nominal Wars.

The Boers have gone to pieces the second time, and now appear as an armed, virile, determined, and, in the opinion of many, invincible people. Intimidation will be taken in the future from no foreign government, and the Boers will be treated with the respect due to a people who have shown themselves capable of defending their rights against the British colossus. It is certain that no more will be attempted with the Boers than was attempted with the Dutch in the Netherlands, and the Boers will be left to themselves to work out their own salvation. Lord Roberts's proclamation, issued before the Boers had time to get the news of the surrender of Lydenburg, and which was intended to intimidate the Boers into a surrender, has had the effect of stiffening the backbone of the people, and they will now fight to the death rather than submit to the yoke of the Britons. Wooo Him With Sweetmeats

There is a sweet simplicity about the marriage rites of Burmah. If a suitor wins the woman to be his courting. When a maiden sees a youth who she thinks would make a good husband she forthwith offers him sweetmeats. If he accepts he proposal is at once sets her offering of fruits, which is the signal that she is his wife. No further ceremony is necessary and witnesses to the contract are not required. It is the art of eating that this primitive marriage is consummated. It is said, by the way, that supposing that the youth declines to eat of the sweetmeats he may do so by assuring the girl that the sweetmeat is not to his taste and, the maiden knows that she must seek elsewhere for someone who will appreciate the love which her offering betokens.

The Swiss Chief Dead.

The Swiss Chief of State must be dead. The Swazies have the habit of keeping such news to themselves for at least a month and it is about that a month ago they were looking for a place and time for their coming to pick up their dead king in such a skin and place him at the head of state. Their chief general is usually killed at the head line and he is generally killed that of the king to keep it concealed. Before the body of the king can be buried it has to remain in a sitting position with his feet on the ground and after five or six seconds have elapsed the bottom is pressed and the clockwork set silently in motion. They say the rattle whirling of the disk brings about just the degree of concentration necessary as a preliminary to producing the trance condition, and that it seldom ever fails. The mind is momentarily emptied, so to speak, of any suggestion of the hypnotizer. They used to use a little instrument called a gyroscope for a similar purpose in the Charcot clinic, but it has been discarded in favor of the one I have described. The gyroscope looked like a miniature whirlwind, and the tiny revolving mirrors attached to its four arms. The principle of operation was in both cases the same.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

SINGULAR FRUIT FOR A TREE.

Chinese Product That Resits Yellow Drought in South Carolina.

The people of China are eminently practical and have added much to the civilization of mankind by their habits of industry, of which we are reaping the obtaining vegetable tallow is an excellent example. The tree producing the tallow is called Stillingia sebifera, and the words remind me of the dropping product and its source, nature. The Chinese pick the seeds of this tree in autumn, and first place them in a wooden cylinder, open at the top and perforated at the bottom. After being steamed over a fire for ten or fifteen minutes the tallow is melted and is then easily separated. The seeds are transferred from the steaming cylinder to a stone mortar, in which they are pounded. Then they are then thrown on a mat, twisted over the fire and after which process the tallow is separated from the seeds, which are then in this state the tallow is put between layers of straw and pressed, and in a press, by which the tallow is forced out and falls into a tub. Tallow from all impurities, it is then spread out on a beautiful white color. Candles made of it smell like a hot wooden and on this account they are dipped in melted wax of various colors—red, green or yellow—and are exposed in stalls by tallow chandlers, which are shop-keepers. This remarkable tree is found on the banks of the Min in Southern China. It also grows near Soochow and has been transplanted to Florida and South Carolina. It is a tree with entirely green leaves and small yellow flowers at the end of the branches. They are succeeded by dark colored seeds and vessels containing delicate white seeds. In this autumn, on the banks of the Tuhi-Ho (Iron Ox) River, south of Hangchow, this tree is a striking object. The leaves are of a blood red color instead of a light green. When the leaves fall they are exposed out of the seeds the remainder is preserved to be used as fuel in the marsh the land.—Philadelphia Ledger.

He is entered as the only Indian depositor in South Dakota and is one of the largest holders of ready cash among his race.

INDIGO IN COLONIAL TIMES.

It Was Looked Upon as a Rival of Cotton Raising.

The colonial indigo were great gardeners and the hours they passed with their fruits and flowers must have been moments of much pleasure to their busy lives, says Lippincott's Magazine. The most famous of these indigo was the plantation of George Lucas, planter of Carolina, and at the same time botanist of Georgia, at which place he appears to have resided, leaving Miss Eliza as mistress. Indigo is sent her all sorts of tropical seeds for fruits and flowering in city of any would take root. Lucas was a friend of Cowdens. Some peculiar curious tropical plants with regard to the indigo was nicknamed by repeated accidents to the young plants in the nursery, in which they are grown. Lucas was so delighted at this accident that he ordered that no one should be disturbed on the subject. Among other famous botanists who used to search Florida the whole country. Ever have the blues? Then you know how dark everything looks. You are completely discouraged and cannot throw off that terrible depression. A little work looks like a big mountain; a little none sounds like the rest of a reason; and a little sleep is all you can secure, night after night.

That's Nerve Exhaustion

The truth of the matter is, your nerves have been poisoned and weakened with the impurities in your blood. The thing for you to do is to get rid of those impurities just as soon as you can.

You want a blood purifying medicine,—a potent Sarsaparilla,—that's what you want. You want a Sarsaparilla that is the strongest and best nerve tonic you can buy, too.

That's AYER'S

The only Sarsaparilla made under the personal supervision of three graduates: a graduate in pharmacy, a graduate in chemistry, and a graduate in medicine.

"During my 70 years of suffering from nervousness, I never found anything to do me any good like Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After taking several bottles of it, I feel like a thoroughly well man. I can now do my work without any effort, and I feel well and strong without the stimulant I used to take before I took Ayer's Sarsaparilla." — Jonas Manser, Wilmot Mills, Somerset Co., Me., Feb. 7, 1898.

A MARES NEST.

A Highly Colored Sensation That Has Faded to a Very Pale Hue.

That Poor House Story, Intended as a Political Shaft, Turns on Its Authors.

A local paper recently published a very sensational letter from an inmate of the Charlevoix county poor house. The tenor of it was that the inmates were abused, half starved, and charging mismanagement of the blackest sort. The superintendents looked into the matter, and send us the following statement and affidavits:

EAST JORDAN, April 11 1900.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

On April 12th there appeared an article in the Charlevoix Sentinel, the title of which was "Complaints from the Poor Farm," which having been brought to our notice, by several of the superiors and citizens of the county, we have examined into the facts in the case and submit to you for publication in the Sentinel, the affidavits of the parties concerned and hope that the sworn statements of the inmates at the Farm will be received as sufficient evidence to exonerate the management from further trouble or blame.

John Dunlop first being duly sworn deposes and says: A portion of this letter is true. What we got to eat is good enough, our bedding is good, we have plenty of fresh food as the keepers can.

I did not know what Mr. Bennett meant about the rubbers. I further state that I did not think the statement was going to be published. I should swear that the statement in regard to ring was in the letter and I paid no attention to it.

Mr. Sweet does a part of the chores and I do the lighter chores with the help of Geo. Herald, feeble nimbus.

I do not have to wash my clothes, I have never gone without my meals on account of not washing my clothes.

I have no fault to find with Mr. Sweet and his wife. Mrs. Sweet is a nice lady and has always treated me with kindness.

The statement in regard to the eggs I know nothing about.

I am perfectly satisfied with my treatment.

Daniel Chadwick being duly sworn deposes and says: I do not know what Mr. Bennett means by "counting the robbers."

Mr. Sweet led Mr. White into the house and set him in a chair, did not handle him roughly and got water and cloth to wash his face.

I asked Mr. Sweet for an egg when I was sick and Mr. Sweet said the hens were not laying very much and he told me that they did not have any them. I told him if they did not have them they could not cook them. Mr. Sweet did not tell me that I had to have the same as the rest or nothing.

Mr. Bennett and he thought we ought to have a potato in the paper every week. I, like a fool, signed the letter. I have been sorry a thousand times that I signed it.

I have no fault to find with Mr. Sweet or his wife, with the food or treatment that I received.

Mr. J. J. Bennett being duly sworn deposes and says: I wrote this letter, I thought that some of the officers ought to be removed. The statement that I made to "count the rubbers" was in reference to a building that was erected on the Poor Farm, believing that it cost more than it should. I do not know what it did cost; it seemed to me to be an unnecessary building. I cannot think of anything else at the present time relating to the question of robbery.

I have never been in any other poor house but from what I have read and been told by others who have been, that was my reason for making the statement that this was the worst poor house to be found in the state, but I cannot state it from my own personal knowledge.

My reason for stating that it is managed by a ring for a few second class are political friends to all the members of the board and keeper were all Republicans and I being a Democrat looked at it in that way. I have no other particular reason for making this statement. I might be mistaken. I might have made that statement unjustly.

The statement in relation to the keeper and his wife is certainly unlady like and is a question in reality I have so fault to find with Mr. and Mrs. Sweet. They have used me kindly. I am sorry that I made that statement as I did.

In relation to old dishes would say that they are used only for the purpose of carrying the food to the inmates' quarters where they have other suitable earthenware dishes.

As far as washing dishes is concerned, I was mistaken and misled, informed by one of the inmates. I prefer to wash my own dishes.

Relating to the matter of Mr. White, I do not believe that Mr. Sweet used as much force in assisting Mr. White into the house as I should have done under the circumstances, as it was very aggravating. I do not think that he intended to hurt him or did hurt him. Do not think that Mr. White had cause to complain at all. I know that Mr. Sweet treated Mr. White very kindly in the very end.

As to the statement of Mr. Sweet that he would use us just as he liked can't help ourselves, had reference to buying tobacco, over which we had some words.

In reference to the question of eggs, I did not hear Mr. Sweet say so and cannot say for myself. I took Chadwick's word for it.

I have no fault to find with my food or treatment at all and the only time that I could have found fault, and did find fault, was when I wrote the letter to the Charlevoix Sentinel and at that time Mrs. Sweet was sick and I knows if she had time would not have written the letter I did. As soon as I was over my passion I was sorry that I wrote the letter and sent it. I would further state that Mr. and Mrs. Sweet have done kind to me and have granted any favors that I have asked for.

These gentlemen were directly interested with Mr. Thatcher in securing the street railway franchise from the city council last fall. They intend, if nothing unexpected transpires to prevent their doing so, to be able to commence work on the road within two or three weeks, and to have a considerable portion of the same in operation this coming summer.

In Vice Town of Boyne City, one among the brightest and most successful of the many bright and successful railroaded lumbertown of Michigan, was in Chicago Wednesday and Thursday of this week, and favored the Herald office with a call in Vice Town's capacity as a member of the committee appointed by the Michigan Hardwood Lumber Association to attend the Cincinnati meeting, the other members being, William H. Wheeler of Bowe City, D. H. Day of Grand Haven, W. C. Hall of Traverse City and James Cameron of Torch Lake.—Chicago Hardwood Record.

Traverse City Record: W. J. Irwin returned yesterday from Elk Rapids where he has secured the contract for the mason work on the cement works to be built there. This will include among other work, the laying of some 400,000 brick, and will employ about 15 masons for most of the summer. Four buildings will be constructed, one 184x74 feet, another 100x75, another 32x60, and a stock shed 200x70 feet, all the buildings being 20 feet in height. W. J. Irwin reports Elk Rapids booming, with no a vacant house to be had for love or money. He will have to build a habitation for himself this summer, as it is impossible to rent.

Central Lake Torch: The lifeless body of Henry King was found near the depot at about 10:30 Tuesday evening, by a party of gentlemen who were going to the depot to meet the 10:45 train. A dark object was noticed by the light of the lantern—good substantial food, enough for any person. Treatment has been good.

Henry Ostrum and wife returned home from Grand Rapids on Monday.

Spencer Martin has purchased forty acres of land on Sec. 10, formerly owned by Wm. Ostrum.

George Bacon commenced the erection of a fine farm residence a few days ago.

Axel Blomgreen, generally known as Alex Brown, has sold railroading, sold his Bayshore property, and removed to Petoskey. He will work for the Booth Packing Co.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church held a social last Friday evening, the proceeds to form the nucleus of a fund for a new organ.

The chapel was opened for services a week ago—the Easter Sunday. It does one the spirit of worship to sit in the church. The pews are exquisite, and plentifully supplied with song books.

Isaac Bacon, who has been sick a number of weeks, died at the residence of his father-in-law at Bayshore last Tuesday.

Navigation is open and a portion of the highway is navigable for sleighs.

Judge Stroud is building a barn on his farm adjoining the town of Hayes.

Spring has been lingering in the lap of winter and as the old moss-backs used to say, the season of leeks and suckers is now upon us. The dangers of starvation are at an end.

One of our Hayesites got into an altercation with a Home Comfort Wrought Iron Steel Range agent and intimated that he was a fake, when the agent declared war, and made an attempt to smash the armor of our Hayesite, but he failed to his sorrow and—the agent took his horse and buggy and gave chase. It was a record breaker, but the Hayesite came in on the home stretch neck and heels ahead.

Nothing could be more ridiculous than to see a great party dealing a fundamental political question out of the Porto Rico tariff. The opposition to the measure which has become a law was as absurd as the advocacy of the unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. Yet the whole Democratic party in the House, with two exceptions, arrayed itself against the Porto Rico tariff bill and employed as strenuous efforts to defeat it as to elect a President. To defy the country on such a miserable, flimsy question excites amazement when one remembers the great names of Jackson, Livingston, Marcy, Wright and others, who, if they made no issue with the opposition, placed it on such a basis and upon such principles as to stand the test of time. It is certainly the day of small things and small men when the nation is to be divided on the question whether the United States should levy 5 per cent. duties or be returned to the island for the benefit of its inhabitants. There is no injustice or robbery committed, but merely changing the form of taxation from direct to indirect in order to obtain some income for the maintenance of the island government. The stupid blunder of the leaders was manifested in 1896, when Bryan compelled a whole party to adopt a ratio of 16 to 1 for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and now in 1900 the Democratic leaders have seized upon a still similar issue to make a name if a national one. It is no surprise that the intelligent voters of the United States consider a party so misled that it lacks ability to distinguish between a major and a minor issue.

—Farmers in southern Michigan are discouraged over the backward season. Many who have had their oats sown in previous years by this time have not yet prepared the ground. Wheat has been entirely killed as was first anticipated, but will average only about one half crop.

—A circular has been issued from the Factory Inspection Department of the state of Michigan, calling attention to the stringent law passed by the legislature May 25, 1899, relative to steam boilers. It requires the placing of two water gauges on steam boilers and provides a penalty for a non-compliance of the same.

—The republican county committee met at Boyne Falls on Saturday and, named the following delegates: To the Detroit convention, F. W. Mayne, W. Francis and J. L. Cramer. To the Bend City convention, F. W. Mayne, Wm. Moore and Wm. Harris. Delegates to the state nominating convention will be elected at the convention called for the nomination of county officers.

—The man who penned the following news wrote more words than these: "Every enterprising man is a help to his town. The more money he makes, if he uses it, the better for the community; a place cannot build up without him, and a wide awake, growing town is a benefit to the surrounding country. Hence, it is to the interest of all to encourage enterprising men in all walks of life and to frown upon the efforts of the petty, envious individuals who are ever ready to throw their more enterprising fellow-citizens in the back on the slightest pretenses in an attempt to inspire him to his usefulness."

—Wanted Hung, employed on the Hennepin harbor contract, got with a very painful accident Monday morning. He was hoisting with a 3 ton hoist when the rope slipped and struck him in the calf of the left leg, cutting the flesh clean to the bone. He was carried to Dr. Armstrong's office and the wound dressed. While not serious, the wound was a very painful one.

—Over 200 unemployed physicians unable to derive income from new practicing medicine in the state of Michigan. Thousands of people are daily under their care. That is the statement of Dr. Albert Leigh of the state medical board of registration. He also says it means full course of three physicians will be allowed to practice their profession in the state. "I expect the state board," said Dr. Albert Leigh, "will be able to complete the work of registration by next fall. From careful computation it is estimated that 20 per cent of the practicing physicians of the state will be rendered out of practice. This will leave about 3,500 in the field. When the work is completed it will go hard with those who are found practicing without licenses."

—Much talk has been indulged in regarding the next republican nominee for county offices. There are always people who howl about "ring." The people always make the "ring." Who cried "ring" at the virtue of nominees. It always comes back to the people to settle. Attend your caucuses and elect your delegates. There is never a "ring" that the people cannot break if they attend the caucuses. But we know of no "ring" in fact there is none. There are certain county officers who have well and faithfully discharged their duties and they will be renominated and re-elected. There has never a "ring" that there was not another "ring," and one state is as good as another. The republicans of Charlevoix county, when, through their duly elected representatives they assemble, they will nominate a good ticket, and it will be elected. The SENTINEL never knows candidates for nomination, but will do its best to elect the Republican ticket. This fact we state. The republicans of Charlevoix county have always nominated and elected good men, and it will continue to do so.

Interesting Letter From Our Soldier Boy, George McCallum.

In October March 8 you GEORGE CHAS AT MANILA.

Got a home letter the kids, also the photo and letter from the girls. About the boy, you must explain to your friend Dan we are in effect almost as far from Manila as she is. Unless duty or very urgent private business calls a man away from his company, it is impossible to get a pass; and if I were in Manila it would be like looking for a needle in a haystack to try to find any individual without knowing exactly where to look for him.

You folks in the states must remember that there are about 1400 different islands over here, the principal one of which we are garrisoned. Out the island of Luzon alone is about 700 miles long and contains as much territory as a couple of states—that towns here are only a couple or three miles apart and have a larger population in the aggregate than cities; villages in the states set down one to the other. I mean we are on things grand. Now we are the patrols and do not see any men of our own regiment outside the company from one month's end to another, although we have from company three within a radius of less than five miles from our station, consisting of company, as I company at Meimayan, two; L, company at Ingus, three; M company at Bigbig, four; of these three men of L company patrol to the north Indigo Rock ve, once each day and our near relative the other way to do the same. Three men of E company patrol to the south bridge, Marilao, once during the day and our men patrol north twice during the night. So you see no intercourse with others is absolutely limited. We are supposed to garrison three towns; Bocaue, north of the convent, to Lombog, at the convent, and Marilao south of the convent.

I wrote a short note a couple of weeks ago. I was at that time about to leave for Calumpit, the regimental headquarters, with a detachment of the regiment, and Marilao south of the convent.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

Republican gains have been notable both in Kansas and Nebraska. This is encouraging.

While wage-earners are on strike and resolve no pay the salary of the labor leader and agitator continues.

An excess of $50,000,000 a month in exports over imports is a pretty good favorable trade balance to carry on our national ledger.

Porto Rico is not very large, but the politicians in the Democratic party are hoping it is big enough to serve as a grave for free silver.

When the Supreme Court decides that the recent Porto Rican legislation is constitutional, Mr. Bryan will have another issue for demanding the suppression of that body.

The next measure to be taken up for consideration in the Senate is the Pipe-shipping bill. Its passage by a large majority seems assured when over a vote can be reached.

The United States Government is buying its Krupp armor, made in the United States, cheaper than any other country in the world. But of course the Democrats are dissatisfied.

Oregon Republicans are for expansion, like Nicaragua Canal, the open door in China, and, very naturally, for the gold standard as the basis on which oriental countries should pay for their goods.

The activity of the free trade enemies of the shipping bill, with one spurred on to oppose it by the foreign shipping interests, increase as the chances of its early passage grow more and more favorable.

One of the most noticeable things in all the Republican state platforms this year is the hearty demand for the passage of the shipping bill, which has been favorably reported to each branch of Congress.

From the way the the Democrats seem to be worrying over the condition, it would appear that they have forgotten that there is a Supreme Court, whose chief duty it is to safeguard the sacred document.

The trust question has been taken up by the subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, and it recommends either a new anti-trust law or a constitutional amendment that will give congress full power to deal with trusts.

Exports of American products and manufactures were almost $10,000,000 greater last March than in March, 1899. That wall of protection is not too high to prevent our goods climbing over it and getting out into the markets of the world.

As a kicker, the Democratic party is a screaming success. As a clog on the wheels of progress it beats the air broke. As a promoter, it outpromotes the man who carry keys his debts. But when it comes to keeping its pledges, the record is different.

The Hon. Frank H. Jones, who has been New Hampshire's most distinguished and influential Democrat, having come to the conclusion that the Democracy's attack of Hyatism is incurable, has moved out the Republican party, hog and baggage.

The fact that as much has been paid to foreign shipowners during the past thirty-five years as has been collected at American custom houses is one that vitally calls for the passage of the shipping bill, which is designed to turn our foreign carrying over to American built ships.

Imports of foreign goods, admitted into this country free of duty, were 20 per cent greater in value in March, 1900, than in March, 1898. This increase, however, is chiefly in material for manufacturers which we do not produce at home. Hence, this increased importation means increased activity on the part of our manufacturers and their employees.

The Porto Rico Act.

The change in public sentiment regarding the Porto Rican act, now that its principles and underlying motives are understood, has been remarkable. People who a month ago were clamoring for immediate free trade with Porto Rico say frankly now that they let as general is vastly better and for very important reasons. To have established immediate free trade with Porto Rico would have taken away the easiest method of raising revenue which that island must have, and which it could otherwise only have had by an internal revenue act—a tax which would have been extremely burdensome—or by direct contribution from the Treasury of the United States. This absolutely necessary revenue will now be supplied from the collections under the Porto Rico act on all dutiable goods imported into the United States from Porto Rico or into Porto Rico from the United States. If this system of raising money is unsatisfactory to Porto Ricans they can put an end to it within a few months if they desire, since the act authorizes them to elect a legislature and specifically provides that all tariff between the United States and Porto Rico shall cease when that legislature shall provide the necessary funds for sustaining the governments of Porto Rico. An equally important result, however, of the enactment of this law, which retains a mere shadow of tariff duties between Porto Rico and the United States, lies in the fact that the right to determine matters of this character as they are reached is retained by congress, and thus no precedent is established by which anybody could claim, or the Democratic party can successfully assert, that free trade with the Philippines or other possessions of that character must or would logically follow. It is only justice to the workingmen of the United States, whether on the farm, in the factory, the mines, or elsewhere, that congress should retain in its hand the absolute power to determine these matters one by one, as they may offer themselves for determination.

A Keen Clear Brain.

Intense suffering was endured by witness T. L. Martin, of Dixie, Ky., before he gave this evidence: "My cough held every night until my throat was nearly raw, then tried Dr. King's New Discovery which gave instant relief. I have used it in my family for four years and recommend it as the greatest remedy for coughs, colds and all throat, chest and lung troubles. It will stop the worst cough, and not only prevents but absolutely cures consumption. Price 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co's. drug store.

American Cotton for China.

The years of railroad building ought to bring at least half of China's population within reach of our cotton goods, and that, without any increase in the per capita use of our cotton would amount to 2,000,000,000, or more than the total exports of cotton now raised by us for export. China lies largely in a zone of severe winters, and while it has the greatest deposits of coal, the Chinese have never yet solved the problem of building heating stoves. The introduction of cheap American heaters into 50,000,000 Chinese homes is one of the possibilities which the heirs our manufacturers.—Louis's Weekly.

Diamonds in America.

Diamonds have been discovered during the last few years in the neighborhood of the great lakes, principally in the state of Wisconsin and the first discovery recorded was at Eagle, Waukesha county, in 1876. Since that time several well identified diamonds weighing from one-half a carat to twenty-one and one-fourth carats have been found about the great lakes, and their discovery has given rise to considerable speculation and the formulating of theories.

A Mysterious Box.

On his death, in 1894, Mr. Francis Deloz, an amateur of some renown, bequeathed to the authorities of the British Museum, a sealed box, which was not to be opened until January 1, 1900. The authorities, acting under these instructions, have now opened the box, and found it contained a number of manuscripts, the character of which will, however, only be disclosed in a report to be presented later to the trustees.

Deserting Railroads.

A small contingent of Boers has realized the nuisance of merely tearing up a section of railway and throwing the rails into a stream—the usual Boer method of destroying a line. What they do now is to heat the center of a section to white heat, and carry the rail by its two end ends to the nearest tree or telegraph pole, round which they twist it in such a way that it is absolutely impossible to use it again for railway purposes.

French Pension System.

In France military pensions are granted only for wounds or for disease contracted in the service. The annuals range for privates from $128 to $145 per annum, for corporals from $150 to $152, for sergeants from $160 to $185, and so on up to an annuity whose maximum is $526. The limit for officers is $600 for captains, $800 for chefs de bataillon, $1,000 for colonels, and from $1,000 to $2,000 for generals.

Negro Development in Italy.

Italy is developing as an electrical and manufacturing country. Its immense water powers are now moving industries. Through the harnessing of the numerous streams which rush down the Alps it can secure enormous power at more nominal cost. The Italian municipal authorities have just placed contracts for 27,000 tons of steel wire electric material.

Comparative Wealth of Languages.

The English language—according to a German statistician who has made a study of the comparative wealth of languages—heads the list with the enormous vocabulary of 360,000 words. German comes next with 50,000 words, then Italian with 75,000, French with 20,000, Turkish with 22,000, and Spanish with 20,000.

Various Treasures Now on View.

A few decades ago the manuscript treasures in the various library were practically inaccessible. Since then one barrier after another have been removed, and now the present director has decided to have duplicates made of many of the most valuable and interesting manuscripts for the benefit of other libraries.

India's Many Plants.

India has perhaps a greater variety of plants than any other country in the world, having 15,000 native species, while the flora of the entire continent of Europe only embraces about 10,000.

British Financial Consideration.

A group of liner horsemen who possess slightly is a chemical. Gloss work has been forbidden that part of their program which represents a victory over British redcoats.

Gold Mines from Sea Water.

It has been reported in the British government that the making of iron and steel in India is entirely practicable owing to the large deposits of iron ore which are found in Madras and Tenasi, a plentiful supply of native coal, and limestone to be procured at small expense, from Burmah. The chief labor of India is also an important consideration, and if the plant were so fortunate large and located near Calcutta it is believed that the works would prove successful.

Cider Matured in 1820.

Mr. Wm. Farley of No. 41 Windsor avenue, who is one of the best known of the older residents of the Northwest, passed his 81st milestone on life's journey on Tuesday. During the evening he partook of his family and friends met with 25lb. and as a reminder of old days he brought out one of three bottles of cider which he had stored in the year 1820. He remembered the instant well, and that the cider came from Mr. Hurdon's place in the Ridge section. With age its juice it was very palatable, and at all "age." And he has made quite family but distinctly that of cider-brandy.—Hartford Times.

Working Your Sentiment.

Proprietors of New York saloons frequented by gentlemen decorate their place with fancy bunches filled with bottled liquors, the whole decorated with the colors of the Boers—red, white, blue and green. It is said that it is a new way to arrest the trade of both Irish and German sympathizers with the Boers, to cheer fight against the Kaiser.

French Honeymoon Ancient.

Hotels wedding trips are all the rage in France. One couple recently returned to Paris after a tour of 1,100 miles, all made on their bicycles. They made it about seven weeks, and had visited 251 villages.

Philippine Finances.

The receipts of public funds in the Philippine islands, beginning Aug. 13, 1898, and ending Jan. 31, 1900, amounted to $5,604,939.

TORTURED AND THEN MURDERED.

Dolightful Treatment of American Prisoners by Filipino Fiendlets.

The Manila papers, the Americanos, with a certain air of knowing as too stale and other matters, cabled upon your Americanos published in our dailies of some days ago. A Pasay lieutenant, Lieutenant Bell, Thirty Fourth Infantry, and Messrs. of Company F, Twenty-sixth Infantry, and a Mr. Jones, a civilian, were captured by the natives of Pasay and tortured to a speech in Tagalo. The story goes that they were first stripped of their clothes and then tied to a tree and pricked with bayonets and knives, and then they were cut and slashed and pricked and tortured in a manner too horrible to be even hinted at in a family journal. Finally they were released and sent to Manila, where they arrived on the morning of the 16th. Bell died on the morning of the 17th, and Jones and the other two are in a critical condition.

An Unknown Disease Brought Back from Cuba by Mrs. Harry Wickham.

Surgeon Generals, Elliot Lazy Dispensaries, and Mrs. Harry Wickham are experimenting upon the prisoners in the Ludlow street jail with a disease which they claim they got in Cuba. Mrs. Wickham, who is a sister of Lieutenant Hobson, and who was married in Havana last January, has been visiting at Montauk Point during the past week. Yesterday she was accompanied by her husband, who is a lieutenant in the Twenty-fourth Infantry, and who was stationed at Santiago during the occupation of that city by the Americanos. Mrs. Wickham is a very pretty woman, and she is a great favorite with the officers of the Twenty-fourth. She was married in Havana on the morning of the 15th of last January, and she left Cuba for Montauk Point on the 20th of last March. She was accompanied by her husband, who was then on the staff of General Lawton, and who was ordered to Montauk Point a few days after the departure of his wife. Mrs. Wickham was married in Havana to Lieutenant Wickham, who was then a captain not there. We drove around town a considerable, but did not have time to really see much. This is a town that wants to sweep around us—you must take your time—and everything is so different from anything one has seen before, that it is like trying to see the World's Fair in an afternoon to try to see anything of Manila in less than a month.

Do you realize that I have seven months of service in and have been on the island over five of them? At this rate my three years will be over before I know it.

The natives are making an effort to reorganize their army, but I hardly think they will make a success of it. They are watched too closely. When, I came back from Cuivasan I went on bridge guard to take the place of a "native consist" who was "beating the sick report" and while there a troop of cavalry came up from Calivasan and took about thirty of our men and our Bill, vanishing expeditious. They got nothing, to be sure, but those Bill the expeditions are going out now and then all over the island and they tend to cast a wet blanket over the ardor of those native who want to reorganize the army. Too many of the ex soldiers (native) are in every town for their recruiting officer to do much, as some of those who were better than brigands before the war want any more of it. They are satisfied to be well enough alone. Of course there is quite a large element of professional idlenies who found the war a good excuse for existence, who are willing to remain in the field, or rather can do nothing else, have no occupation, and probably will want no other. Oh they die either in the course of business or at the end of a rope. It will be unsafe for a man to go about unarmed here for some time I suppose, but that is no more than might be expected of a semi-civilized people brought into subjection by force of arms.

FRANK MORSE.

My letter has laid till now and I must inclose it to-night so to morrow we go on bridge guard again. Last time I was at the south bridge, but time I go back to Bacnay again.

Just here, if you will enclose in your next letter a package of good American tomato seed I will have some for with them next dry season. The natives grow tomatoes here and take great care of them, watering and hoeing them, but they are like many other things here—you cut the Spanish government, Aguirre dirty and the fruit averages about as large as pigeon eggs with an occasional one as large as a hen's egg. I was trying the other day to explain to an old boy that "Americano" tomatoes were "mucha grande" and that it took only from three to six to fill the quart can we got here, and the boy on her face made the receive to get some seed and amplitude her divide.

J. H. Frazer, one of the Traverse boys, who has been in this company since he came, or rather for the last point at Pontito April 2nd. He has been tormented with chronic dysentery ever since he has been on the island. The doctors tell him he will probably be all right before he leaves the best, but he is to stay in the station six months and try to get back to his normal condition before he comes back. He will probably be able to get a furlough and go home while he is there.

You have asked several times about our reading matter. This regiment was stationed for about thirteen years at Fort Snelling between St. Paul and Minneapolis and the people up there very kindly remember us fondly every mail with bundles of magazines and papers, so we have considerable good reading. It is from one to ten years out of date. The other day I found some exceedingly good stories in an old copy of the Sunday Inter-Ocean. It seems rather funny to send a paper twice across the Pacific or about two things of the way around the world to get it old, either from its starting point, but Uncle Sam carries his soldiers mail at domestic rate and I want you to see the articles as I am going to mail them anyway.

A couple of nights ago E company at Meinoyan made a raid and captured over sixty cities in the town. With we could make a few raids. Six of us went out the other night to set up some telegraph poles that were down, and the exercise did us a lot of good. We got out about an hour and a half and walked five miles to stide rectify at the south bridge, the poles had been fixed by Indians from Calivasan before we got there. About four days' "stake" is the best regulator we can get—the canned stuff and hardtack bilm the dysentery out of a fellow, and the sweat drives out fever germs, and there is nothing like getting long dog tired that most forgive sleep and for humanity.

Oh I almost tell you what quinine is—more than give over here. If you have a case of fever from being out on a damp night you get 15 grains of quinine before supper, 10 before bed and 5 the next morning. A little more fever and it is 20, 15 and 10. A pretty warm fever, 30, 25 and 15. For dysentery and cramps dilute carbonic acid and castor oil and opium pills. For fever, half a teacup salts followed by castor oil and quinine, and so it goes. My good old fashioned doses are homeopathic alongside the doses they give here.

Well, I have done pretty well this time, so guess I'm say good-bye.

—Chicago Times-Herald: Charles H. Ferguson & Son, general agents in Illinois for the Mutual Life of New York, have resigned and by that action set the entire life insurance fraternity into a state of speculation. Representatives of the firm yesterday declined to discuss the reason for the resignation, but stated that the relations between the general agency and the company had ever been harmonious through the long years they had been connected. The general headquarters in the Tacoma Building were placed in charge of a special representative of the company yesterday, after all the accounts with the New York office had been balanced. Charles H. Ferguson, at the head of the general agency, had been connected with the Mutual Life for twenty five years, and is widely known as a successful life insurance manager. Some years ago Mr. Ferguson took his son, George M., into partnership, and as the other sons grew up they were also given a place in the firm. At the time of the resignation, which is stated to have taken place suddenly on Thursday, the firm of Charles H. Ferguson & Son was composed of Charles H., George M., James L. and Charles H. Ferguson, Jr.

Mr. O'Neill was a devout Catholic, and the funeral will be according to the rites of that church.

—Robert Carpenter who is building himself a winter home in Greenville, S. C., writes his son-in-law, F. O. Hines as follows.—"There are lots of McKinley men in Greenville; in fact I think nearly all the prominent business men will vote for him. I was introduced to the mayor the other day as a Michigan man." "Well," he said "you being a northern man I suppose you are a protectionist and an expansionist, a gold standard man and a Chinese-open-door man, and a McKinley man." "You have sized me up exactly, I said." "Well," said he there is some difference between you and me, you are a northern man and I am a southern man, and that is all the difference there is. The south is running a stream of prosperity such as she never enjoyed before. The south is to raise horses. We think Mr. Finley is the right man in the right place. He won't be likely to carry any of the old time southern states but he will get lots of votes here, and those from the most intelligent part of the community. Under the stimulus of good times the south is boiling when the farmers get eight to ten cents for their cotton and the mills get the stock holders good dividends it makes good times. The trees are in full leaf and the flowers in blossom which makes it look nice on the mountain too so we will be glad to get home just the same. Mr. Wilcox is postmaster here also. There is another other at the other end of the mountain called Altamont, three miles from here. A back runs to the city of Greenville and mails from both offices. The woman is waiting to take this to the office so I must close.

Death of Miss Ella Carr.

There are few instances in the history of Charlevoix where the "great reaper" has brought to our people so general and sincere sorrow as that which came to us Tuesday night in the death of Miss Ella Carr. Young, bright, ambitious, the idol of a widowed mother and a fond brother, a promising life has been cut short, and a happy home cast into a gloom, that even time cannot dispel.

Miss Carr was attacked a little over two weeks ago, with what developed into appendicitis. Every effort of the physicians was exerted to effect a cure without resort to further methods which avail, and Tuesday morning, as a desperate resort, she was operated upon. Her vitality was not sufficient to withstand the shock and death came that night.

Ella was an only daughter of Mrs. H. A. Carr. She was born in Sutton's Bay 24 years ago, most of her days since childhood having been spent here. Words cannot express the deep sympathy that goes out from the entire community to the stricken mother and brother.

The funeral will occur Friday afternoon.

Last year's coal production of the United States was 240,000,000 more tons, as compared with 219,974,077 tons in 1898, and 180,000,000 tons in 1897. This was an increase of more than 60 per cent within two years. In 1898 and 1899, the coal product averaged almost 168,000,000 tons each year, dropping off to 154,000,000 tons in the Democratic year of business stagnation, 1894.

THE MISSING SKIP

By NATHAN D. TURNER

CHAPTER VI.

"Mine things" said the Missing Skip one day a week's freedom arriving could not, which I shall tell you the reason of my baby hearing. I know that you have some idea of the Cockroach.

"Cockroach, mister man, what I mean? Cockroach, mister man, what I mean?"

"Why, I don't know, I suppose it means the cockroach, mister man, what I mean."

Charlevoix Sentinel.
WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

Mr. Ostber is coming home to make his November collections.

The smokeless factory smokestack was one of the leading features of the last Democratic national administration.

Up to the present it has not occurred to Mr. Pettigrew to introduce a resolution making inquiry concerning the Republican gains in South Dakota.

The pending shipping bill stigmatizes shippers and foreigners in opposition, and undoubtedly Americans in advocacy. That is why Congress regards the present session as the one in which to pass that bill.

A Tennessee Democrat has been defeated for Congress because he voted his son after Grover Cleveland. Yet it is claimed that the Democratic party is a harmonious institution.

It is quite evident that the Kentucky Democrats hope to carry this State this year by the grand jury vote.

The Crokers than strike was rather disappointing to the Democratic leaders. It didn't last long enough to help their cause.

Foreign lobbies against American shipping interests ought to furnish a strong object lesson for American legislators.

Before adjournment Congress intends to apply an effective legislative stop-gap to the annual payment of $100,000,000 to foreign ship owners for carrying American imports and exports.

The government provision for Porto Rico is far more liberal than that given to Louisiana when that state was admitted to the Union. A little experience will assure the Porto Ricans of the character of Republican administration. Democrats will still be dissatisfied.

The leader of the Democratic minority in the House of Representatives has been quite prolific in the matter of resolutions of inquiry. How about a little probing into his own business of private publication of public documents?

Those who are opposed to the United States acquiring any more territory seem to be under the impression that Columbia has had all the children she can take care of, and has not her ability to look up the interests in the way they should go.

Democratic millionaires are forming a trust to buy at least one newspaper in every Republican and doubtful state. The time to be played on these misnamed organs of the latest Democratic fraud will be set to five silver music.

Is it not about time for the Democratic party to call upon the country to put them in power, so that they may reduce the dangerous surplus in the United States Treasury? That is one of the few promises made by it that was faithfully fulfilled, and, in doing so, it also reduced the surplus of almost every citizen in the Union. As a surplus reduced and a surplus creator that party has a record that cannot be successfully assailed.

Colonel Watterson continues to explain his explanations of why he proposes to support a platform that you can read made into desert his party in 1900. It will be remembered that in less the Colonel conducted his hot canon a "No Compromise With Dishonor" banner. His various explanations go to show that the Colonel has sold cows purchased. His connection with Goebel has caused him to execute an unqualified surrender.

Now that civil government has been granted to Porto Rico, the Democrats would have the country believe that a great injustice has been done to that little island, when the truth is that it is to be granted the largest possible measure of self government and advanced in American ideas of citizenship. Not one cent of tax, either direct or indirect, is to be collected from them that will not be returned in the way of wheels, ports, bridges, roads, lighthouses and all those improvements that mark the progress of a vigorous and growing people.

Hon. Henry C. Payne, of Milwaukee, the Wisconsin member of the Republican National Committee, says: "This little flurry about Porto Rico will soon be over. It will not affect the result of the Presidential election. The administration stands well with the people. It has fulfilled its pledges to them, and more, too. On the country question it has done more than it promised. It has builded better than the Republican platform. It has restored confidence and has restored business to the extent that we have more prosperity even than we had in 1892, which was high tide. I cannot doubt that such an administration will be sustained."

FROM LUCON.

Interesting Philippine Letter from Bert Somerville.

Transmit, P. I., Feb. 21, 1900.

DEAR PATRIOT: I meant to write to you long ago, but we have been so fully busy since we have been here, night and day almost, and when we were off duty were too tired to do anything but sleep. I have been in eight fights since Jan. 1st, and have had two horses shot from under me—had one killed a week ago last Monday the 12th. Talk about your deer hunting, it is not in it with the Filipinos you have to do some few shooting to be shot yourself—they fight in extension Indian style.

We just got in from an eight day hike after niggers yesterday and only had one scrap. We were going through mountains most of the time and saw some of the finest scenery I ever saw; covered groves for miles and bamatas till you could not see a tree. I saw all kinds of mahogany, rosewood, teak and tamlad wood. We had the fight the third day out when my pony was killed and I had to wait, the rest of the way, on an installation hoofer and an Forker ed a horse. We killed 19 niggs and one gogo captain. Our loss was one man killed, one lieutenant and one corporal wounded, all of Co. I. This was the neatest lot of niggers we have run against yet, they stood right up and shot from the shoulder and go and shoot for as to charge in four times—something new to us. After about two and a half hours fight, we thanked them and drove them out. We captured Gen. Maximo Mellows land 2 Colonels, one Major, 3 lieutenants, 20 Manser rifles, 20 Remington rifles and a lot of ammunition, $1,000 insurance policies and the envelope I use for this letter is one of Gen. Mellver's. I got two bullets out of his house, also a note which I am going to keep as long as I happen to can against a Manser bullet. I tell you they have a nasty whistle and especially when a sharpshooter is after you.

The other day I stuck my head up above a little bank of earth, when "zip" whizz! and a bullet is right at my heels. He was somewhere up a tree so we could not locate him. He was the one that shot our Lieutenant, but it was only a flesh wound in the arm. Our regiment has a specialist concerning them the big guns say that we have done more marching and fighting and have taken more towns in a shorter time, than any other regiment on the Islands, and I have been in all and like it first rate—haven't had a scratch for one, when an old Dem nigger ought be on the left side of my head near the ear. But I don't think about getting wind until after I am out of a fight and then I get scared until we get into another.

We have had 21 men killed and 80 wounded in the regiment since Jan. 1st, one of the killed and two wounded being in Company I. Well, you will hire of hearing me brag about our regiment, so I will tell you a little about the country.

The people all live in Nipa shacks and don't wear any clothes to speak of although they are quite intelligent—most of them being able to read and write their own language, and a good many of them read and write Spanish also. They are all catholics and every town has a big church in it, some of them being 300 years old, built of stone and roofed with red tile. The most of them are dried up like insides have marble floors and stairways—we are quartered in one now. The Filipinos are dated up like insides and I expect we will have to move.

I was sent with a message to headquarters at Santo Thomas, two miles, one night a couple of weeks ago, and on my return two niggers jumped out of the bush and one tried to grab my nose's head—one of them will never grab again, the other ran, or he would have had the same.

I hate to think of killing a man, but it is it must be one of us, I prefer that it should be the other fellow.

We expect to go into Manila for the rainy season, to rest up, and I shall be glad. Here it is like every other day and sometimes for eight or ten days at a stretch. A good many of our boys are sick with malarial fever, which is always rampant in this country. I have had two twists at it myself, but have finally knocked it out with quinine. This is about all the medicine we get here get it for everything from the fever to the toothache, but it seems to do the business.

Well, Maurice, I must close as taps have sounded and the 1st Sergeant is calling "lights out."

The free trade New York tariff reform club is now saying that the passage of the Dingley bill will cheapen the fare of immigrants, and increase the number coming to the United States in order to stir up the opposition of the labor interests. But, as a matter of fact, the passage of that bill will decrease the foreign ships coming to this country, and thus reduce the number of immigrants, at the same time giving increased employment to our own citizens in all parts of the country.

Sixteen Fastened Together.

Four kittens, all alive and fastened together by nails and tacklers, is a remarkable freak of nature that is attracting considerable attention at the home of John Pinneer south the City. Pinneer did not discover their peculiar formation until that morning, but that mother cat was neglecting them. When he took them he supposed was the top kitten out of the box, but when the entire family came out, like a bunch of grapes, he dropped them with a gasp of astonishment. The kittens are active, have strong legs, and are apparently well developed, but all are joined together at the abdomen, near the hind quarters, giving their legs four movements. There is a duplicity of the heads, bodies, legs or feet.

England's Boy Choirs.

Julian Ralph, writing of the choir boys of England, says: "Small boys are much preferred for the reason that they develop into manhood later than big stalwart children, for it is at the coming of manhood that their voices break and they are obliged to stop singing until their adult tones are reached—a matter of years. A boyish treble is as delicate as the bloom on a peach, and its possessor must lead an orderly and innocent life, which is why so many choirs are made up of boys taken from their homes and boarded and lodged in church institutions. These sometimes are able to sing till they are 17 or 18 years of age, though between 14 and 15 is the usual period when their voices break." Ladies Home Journal.

Unfamiliarities Are Not Friendly.

The better element in Guatemala are very partial to Americans," said a late visitor to the republic, "but the native hate a gringo," and that sentiment is especially in evidence on the trip between El Rancho, at the end of the railroad track and Guatemala City. The distance is about sixty miles, and a good horse and a fine ride is sometimes all of three days getting across. Frequently in remote sections one may be obtainable from the natives, but if the traveler is both a stranger and an American he discovers as soon that he can't get anything but corn bread for love or money."

Safe Nuts "Cracks."

That curious habit of the ants, which is every school child, of attending the little insects called aphides which they use much as human beings use cows, has then the more intriguing than that of being a mere entomological freak. The ants are said have found in it a vast danger to their ostacts. The black ants, it is said, is a particular pet of the ants, and these intelligent little workers not only transfer their "herds" of aphids from one tree to another and from orchard to orchard, but they actually eat and graze the stocks of the trees to give to their insect cows proper food.

Ingenious Yankees.

An ingenious New Yorker has invented a set of dice which have spots that represent from the representation of a full pack of 52 cards. There are 12 faces on each die, and on four of the dice two of these faces are blank, but are rounded in such a manner that they cannot possibly come up. The distribution of the cards is such that no single die contains more than one of each denomination. Each die has two or three cards of each suit upon it, the denomination being given in the center of the suit mark.

Kansas Fifteen Anniversary.

Kansas is to have an exposition in 1904, in celebration of the 50th anniversary of its organization as a territory. The initiatory steps have already been taken. The Topeka Commercial Club has presented the matter to the executive council of the state, and the latter will issue a call for the organization of a committee to promote the enterprise. The committee will be composed of one member from each county in the state. The plan is to hold the exposition in Topeka.

Dollars in Bad Checks.

There is a girl in Germantown, Pa., who defied the false to an apartment which she rents for a bedroom. Everything which is genuine in her room is a gift from her fights in. For instance, superstitious people think it unlucky to walk under a ladder. No one can enter this room without doing that very thing, for suspended directly over the door is a small ladder. The mirror is cracked, and everybody knows how unlucky a broken looking-glass is. Peacock feathers are strewn about the room, too, and what are more unlucky than peacock feathers? To open an umbrella in the house is the height of madness of ill fortune, and yet directly over this girl's bed is suspended an umbrella which is never closed. There are thirteen articles of furniture in the room, and on the walls are hung thirteen pictures. The door to the closet except spots, and will only have to room closed on Fridays.

Stockholders on the Stage.

Snowballing, says a person who looks after theatrical properties, are comparatively cheap. Snow is given by the pound, and a storm would take about eight pounds of snow at fifty cents a pound. The snow is put in a bag with holes in it, and then two men pull it, one up and one down. The snow falls from a height of about thirty feet, and when it gets within ten feet of the stage it begins to flurry from the currents of air it meets. Snow can be used over and over again, so it isn't expensive. Fog is a great extravagance. One will cost $25, without making it takes the very finest grade, which is $50 a piece, and then there are 10 ropes and other things that are required. Hail is made of beans falling on wood or iron, according to the force of the storm.

Water Beneath Deserts.

Subterranean water is found not only under localities of abundant rainfall, but under desert regions as well. Springs come up in many places in the depths of the desert, and artesian wells reach water almost everywhere. Even the great Sahara desert appears to be underlain with a bed of water at no great depth. If it be asked where this water comes from an answer can readily be made. The interior water not only moves downwards, but laterally, as the rains find channels to carry this water widely over the surface. So the subterranean water finds similar internal passages and works its way to regions far away from its place of origin.

Weight of Europe's Queens.

Among the queens of Europe Queen Margaret of Italy, in spite of her mountain climbing, is the heaviest. She is said to turn the scale at 172 pounds, although she looks much slighter. The queen of Spain weighs 147 pounds, the queen of the Netherlands takes fourth place with 140 pounds, being a few pounds heavier than the queen of the Belgians. The German empress has reduced her weight, which was an anxiety to her, to 134 pounds, and the czarina, at 128 pounds, is the lightest of all. The tallest princess is the crown princess of Denmark, who is well over six feet high.

Money in Auckland.

Horses are so cheap in Auckland that pedestrianism side fair to become extinct, says Blackwood's. The postman does his rounds on horseback; the butcher, a huge basket slung over his arm, canters up with ordered provender. School-boys, two to quantity during a month, ride to school, where a paddock is reserved for their ponies. Even the lamplighter performs his duties perched on an amazing nag, while the droves of live stock passing along the roads are always under the care of a mounted escort.

Short Career of Singers.

The public career of a great singer, especially that of a woman, is a glorious one while it lasts. She touches the hearts of her hearers and makes them happier; she moves their souls and makes them better, and in return they make her famous and beloved. She may become the idol of two hemispheres. But her career is short-lived, and just when she seems to have reached the zenith of renown, her voice begins to suffer from constant wear and tear, and shows it.

Venerable and Brave.

The oldest recipient of the British Royal Humane society's medal is the Rev. William C. Ledger of Lisnaskea, Ireland, who is 78 years old, to whom there has just been awarded that honor for rescuing a drowning woman last month.

Silk Likely to Increase.

Silk is likely to go up in price, as there is an epidemic among the Italian and French silkworms. They refuse to eat and are dying by myriads on their feeding stages.

Queen Lotte Island Kingdom.

There is present a movement in this grotesque age, after all, if one looks for it. The Queen Lotte and Christiana islands, lying in the Arctic ocean, 200 miles southwest of Sumatra, are evidence of this. In the early part of the century a Scottish sailor Ross was in a storm and was driven out of her course, and stopped at the Cocoanut islands. He found to his new that the island were fair, and soon afterwards he found that they belonged to no nation. He sailed to Calcutta to Rajah he went to singapore, gathered a few men and a few guns, chartered a schooner and sailed over to Queen Lotte. There he established a little kingdom of his own, proved up land with his sword, made world and exportune ships and other business, and the Queen Lotte islands to this day are prospering. The Queen Lotte islands and of Christiana Island which was annexed to as "expansion" movement.

Australian Millionaire's Home.

Sir Rupert Clarke, the millionaire Australian baronet who has just arrived in London, has the most magnificent private residence in Melbourne. It is called Cliveden, and possesses the finest artistic and rare collection of pictures in Australia, including several, which were exhibited at the Royal Academy. His country seat, Rupertswood, fifty miles from Melbourne, is one of the show seats of the colony for distinguished visitors.

Foreign Commerce Large.

February 1900 made the most remarkable record of any February in the history of America in the commerce. The exports averaged $1,000,000 for every business day and the total exports were $119,767,972 or more than 25 per cent greater than those of any preceding February.

Three New American Calliopes to Be the Floral in North.

The three new calliopes to be recently purchased by the United States will arrive during the coming month and will be forwarded to Seattle for operation on the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, which will be held in that city next year. The calliopes are to be placed on the Floral Pavilion, which is a room or hall capable of the most elaborate decorating, and which, when lighted, will be one of the most attractive places on the grounds. The Floral Pavilion will be located in the Horticulture building, which is one of the most elaborate structures of the exposition, and is to be devoted to the display of the products of the Pacific coast. The calliopes will be placed in the Floral Pavilion, and will be used in connection with the Floral Parade, which is to be a feature of the exposition. The Floral Parade will be a pageant of floats, which will be decorated with the most beautiful and costly flowers and plants that can be secured. The floats will be drawn by horses, and will be so constructed that they will be able to pass through the streets of the exposition grounds

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COND'N.

Keeping after school fails, and must fail, to promote good conduct, to secure well prepared lessons, to incite ambition, to awaken exertion, or encourage good attendance. The results are evil and evil only.

Howland, in his hints to teachers says: "Never have I known of a pupil renewed, reformed, reclaimed or reconciled to his surroundings by being kept after school, by making education a punishment—that first resource of the incompetent teacher.

"By some chance or mischance, he comes in five minutes late. He stumbles in hurrying to his seat—'remain after school.' He makes a mistake in the recitation—'make it up after school.' He whispers, winks with one eye—'stay after school.' He asks to leave the room—'twenty minutes after school.' He fails to respond to a querulous or sarcastic question—'I will see you after school.' And if ever he succeeds in any business or calling or has any interest or happiness in life, it will assuredly be after school, school methods and school marks have gone by.

If the room cannot be controlled why prolong the agony after teacher and pupil should have been relieved of the unwholesome air and vicious influences of weary hours and unrestrained disorder.

If the lessons are unprepared, quicken the ambition and revive the spirit of improvement and, for an occasion only, some curious inquiry, some ingenious device, and by prompt and pleasant dismissal with an inspiring 'good night,' but do not look for a renewed love of learning and a higher respect for authority from this ruinous resort of the incompetent, keeping after school.

Mental arithmetic should precede and accompany written arithmetic. Exercises in rapid calculation should be frequent, when the division is less than 12 long division should not be permitted. In beginning fractions, great pains should be taken to lay the basis thoroughly. Comprehension of dimensions and readiness to perform operations should precede rules.

The relations of decimals, common fractions, and percentage should be illustrated. Notation and numeration of decimals may be taken up with that of whole numbers. Decimals should precede common fractions, where the text-book places common fractions first, they may be passed over until decimals are finished.

After canvassing any subject as laid down in the book, the teacher should furnish supplementary work to make pupils understand the principles canvassed before passing on to the next subject.

Exercises for drill in rapid calculation should be given almost daily. In this work let accuracy and rapidity be the two goals to be reached. The form of work is frequently neglected. Teachers should insist on having the work in good form, whether on paper, slates, etc.

It will take time at first but will be a great saving of time in the long run.

Pupils should learn that there is a mathematical language, that figures, signs, and symbols properly employed, and that these should not be confined any more than the words of a sentence. The habit of doing work plainly, clearly and systematically is of great practical importance. The habit formed during school life goes with the pupil into business and is not easily changed.

In practical life, one of the most important processes is the habit of being sure to have correct premises, of starting out with correct data, of thoroughly analyzing all data at hand, all known quantities before trying to make applications to secure deductions from the untried and the unknown. This very important mental habit may be largely strengthened and developed by drilling pupils on the reading, analysis, and thorough understanding of the language of difficult problems, before attempting the solution.

If the teacher succeeds in cultivating this habit in pupils, it will prove a great help throughout their course in mathematics but, what is far more important, they will have developed one of the most important traits for solving the problems of life.

The Election.

What Charlevoix Democrats Think About the Charlevoix Convention.

Portland, Mich., May 7th, 1900.

MR. DEAR MR. SENTINEL:

I have had it in mind for some time to write you asking the date fixed for the next meeting of the Michigan Republican Press Association. Remembering the only time it has been my privilege to be with the boys, which was at their last meeting in Ottawa, I shall never willingly miss another meeting, and I desire at this time to know the date of your next meeting, in order that I may arrange to be with you.

I am wondering if the good people of Charlevoix realize the importance of having their town selected as the place for holding an annual meeting, or the work done by yourself in securing such preferment. Up to an hour before the final vote was taken, I was fully satisfied in my own mind that you were making a losing vote, and when you finally scored a victory in the face of apparent certain defeat, you were honestly entitled not alone to the congratulations of your friends but to the thanks of every republican in Charlevoix county. I again congratulate you most heartily upon your victory at that time and assure that the pledges you then made to the members of the Society that they should be royally entertained by the good people of "Charlevoix the Beautiful" (filched from the advertisements of the late lamented Geo. DeHaven) will from my knowledge of your people be more than fulfilled.

With kindest regards I am yours sincerely your friend.

The steamer Hiawatha, of the Boyne City route, is making daily trips. The steamer received a new compound engine the past winter.

Capt. E. P. Partridge, at Chicago last week, bought the tug Lennie Bros., and engineer Blanchard, of the Avery, went to Chicago Sunday to bring her out. She is expected here the 15th.

The schooner St. Lawrence is here with coal for Tod Bock, and the John Schantz is unloading a cargo for Graham. The South & Post is on her way with a cargo for Wilbur.

The big steamboat Spinner, with a crew of fort 12 hands, and drawing over fourteen tons, hacked through the ice almost Friday night, with less than thirteen tons in the steamer, and only got through by the help of twilight. She dragged out two telegraph poles carrying one of them to Traverse and with her, probably, as it could not be towed with drags. Besides this she was doubtless damaged the banks on the route side. There should be some means adopted to stop that kind of business.

Milwaukee Dispatch.

Milwaukee Dispatch. While sailing out of Manitowaukee Friday afternoon a boy and his two companions of a small boat were thrown into the water at a considerable distance from the shore. The boy was twenty-five years old. At the time the steamer Pomeroy City Capt. Gibson, was on her way from Buffalo to Chicago and has quite brought the steamer around as possible and picked up the almost drowned men. The incident had an equal Capt. Gibson's memory until this week when Jake Lyons, of Charlevoix, arrived to take his position as steward on the Chili of which Capt. Gibson is now in command. The steward handed the captain a valuable pair of umbrella, with the message from the donor: "You pulled me out of the wet and I want this to keep the water off you." The gift came from Capt. Cornett of Crosby's reef lightship 57. It appears that Capt. Cornett had tried for years to discover his benefactor, but was not successful until last winter when steward Lyons incidentally mentioned to Fountain City and Capt. Gibson in connection with the capsizing incident.

Auditor of Cecil Rhodes.

Cecil Rhodes hates women. He at one time had a private secretary of whom he entertained a high opinion and whose services he greatly valued. One fine morning this secretary quietly announced that he was going to be married. The Colossus was speechless with indignation for a moment, and then, stating at the culprit, he growled out: "What do you think I am going to do for another secretary? Without waiting for a reply he strode from the room, slamming the door behind him with great violence. His good nature, however, prompted him to extend the forgiving hand later on, and he gave to the bride some fine diamonds. In addition, he lent them his own carriage and horses for use to and from the church. It never entered his head to give his erstwhile favorite secretary any more employment. Such a crime as matrimony, though forgiven, could not be condoned.

Wonderful Man of the Sea.

Admiral Sir Henry Keppel is a wonderful old man of the sea. On the verge of ninety-one, he has left his comfortable chambers in the Albany and undertaken a long voyage to British North Borneo. The British North Borneo Herald, describing his arrival at Labuan, calls him "a miracle of physical vitality." He is no stranger to that remote corner of the empire. Thirty years ago he was chasing pirates in Bornean waters and storming their strongholds. He has ever since retained an active interest in the British protectorate of the far east, and has devoted a good deal of time to his duties as a director of the British North Borneo company. His "Expedition to Borneo, with Rajah Brooke's Journal," was published in 1847.

A Cause of Mohammedans.

The number of Mohammedans has been estimated by missionary in Asia at 196,500,000. Of these 19,000,000 are under the rule of the Turkish government. 28,000,000 are ruled by other Mussulman sovereigns, 30,000,000 are subject to African princes, 20,000,000 live in China, and 99,000,000 are under Christian rulers. Of these last about 58,000,000 belong to India and Beloochistan. The religion of the Arabian prophet extends from the north of China to the coast of Sierra Leone in Western Africa, but has no footing in Japan, Australia, Southern Africa and America.

Captured Jefferson Davis.

General Henry Harnden, who died at Manteno, Wis., the other day, was the commander of the detachment which captured Jefferson Davis. During the war of the rebellion he had six horses shot under him.

German Universities Are Large.

German universities are still a long way ahead of American in point of size. Berlin has 5,111 students, Munich 4,649 and Leipsic 4,481. In 21 German universities 32,462 students are enrolled.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Walter Gibson, one of the earliest pioneers of Louisiana, died lately of neuralgia of the heart, at his home at Northport, after a brief illness.

The largest rainbow trout ever landed in northern Michigan was caught in the Boardman river lately by George Hall, Jr., son of postmaster Hall, of Traverse City. It took half an hour to land the fish, which measured 26 inches and weighed over 6 pounds. The largest reported previously weighed six pounds.

Petoskey is to have two G. R. & I. depots and two station buildings, and also two sets of agents. One will be for the care of through train business, and the other for the accommodation of suburban traffic entirely. The arrangement is a novel one, and it is expected that it will simplify trade among the resorts to a considerable extent. The plans are all made for the new station buildings, and work on it will commence next month. The station will be large and well adapted to the use of summer tourists. It will be farther south than the present depot, and on the opposite side of the tracks, directly in front of the Occidental hotel.

A Woman's Awful Peril.

"There is only one chance to save your life and that is through an operation" were the startling words heard by Mrs. L. B. Hunt of Lime Ridge, Wis., from her doctor after he had vainly tried to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. Gall stones had formed and she constantly grew worse. Then she began to use Electric Bitters which wholly cured her. It's a wonderful stomach, liver and kidney remedy. Cures Dyspepsia, loss of appetite. Try it. Only 50c. Guaranteed. For sale by F. G. Hines & Co., druggist.

Marine Notes.

The tugs are kept busy these days. One day last week the Martin brought in four from Gaylord.

Harbor Springs Republican: Capt. Charlie Wright is at Mackinac Island, and employed for the season by the Arnold Transportation Co. June 15th he will take the position of first mate on a new steel steamer the company are having built at Toledo. It, which will be completed on that date, and run between the straits and the soo.

The new passenger steamer that is being built at the Craig shipyard at Toledo for the Arnold Transit Co. was christened Monday. Her name is Chippewa. She will ply between Cheboygan and the Soo. It is expect of that the Chippewa will be launched about June 30. The Arnold Transit Co. is the name of an organization recently formed to succeed to the ownership of what has heretofore been known as the Arnold line of steamers plying on the route between Cheboygan and the Soo. The capital stock of the new company is $125,000.

The schooner Thos. Howland was cut through by the ice in Lake Huron near Buffalo, one day last week and sank off Tidewater Point in three-fathom of water. The crew were all rescued. Th. Howland, under command of Capt. Jacob Jacobson, had 1200 tons of coal on board, and was in tow of the tug Dunforth. She had got about two and one-half miles beyond the breakwater, when it was discovered that the vessel was sinking. The yawl was immediately got ready, while the captain went to the cabin to get his papers, when he came up the water was even with the gallery. The yawl was early launched, and the seven men were picked up by the Dunforth and taken to Buffalo. The schooner went down fifteen minutes after the crew left. She is owned by W. H. Irwin, of Michigan, and was not insured. The Howland is well known here.

Hewer Island.

Hewer Island, Mich. June 14, 1900.

Improvements all over! You will hardly recognize old Beaver Island any more. Not to speak of a dozen new private dwellings, residences and houses which are going up, the public improvements are really grand. The old ice house which stands in the street, disfiguring the beautiful village of St. James, will have to go as soon as Mr. McCann, the present owner of the Booth property, takes possession of it. He is always loaded with liberality toward his customers, and will give the street the required width free of charge.

"The Hall" has been thoroughly overhauled by the new proprietor, Mr. C. C. Gallagher. The balls and dances are given under the personal guardianship of our venerable Rev. Father Zugelder, will be models, though a few pious people believe that a dancing hall don't belong just exactly to a priest's domain.

The old Boyle saloon has been transformed into a chapel and is fitted up with a little expensive but very stylish chairs, and a mass is read every morning.

The green house, formerly the Boyle residence, looks now very fine and fashionable inside and out —indeed high toned. There the four sisters are living, and music is to be heard all day long, as one of the sisters gives piano and organ lessons, free of charge, of course, as sisters do everything. She has many pupils, old women and young girls.

Up on the sandy hill the Court House and jail is now a school with two grades. One is conducted in a tent school by a sister—the other (where the prisoners were kept cool once) as a sectarian school, by our graceful Sister Superior.

The road through the very beautiful groves will become really a metropolitan drive after some holes are filled up.

The old church, where the unforgotten Rev. Fr. Peter Gallagher worked for 13 years, is enlarged. Of course, strangers believe a Catholic church has shape to be a Catholic town hall; but no, it is a church and a spacious one too, with an artistic altar, a patented floor, an organ, gallery, organ, and plastered all over. This big improvement gave many boys work all winter for spot cash.

The church is located the old school house—a sister is teaching there—Dist. 1. Twelve township, a real longitude "Maria Assumptan School House." It is intended to put up a new big house, with two halls, two class rooms, for two teachers in two grades, and school shall be held for 8 or 9 months a year. The originator of this great and ambitious plan is Mr. Owen Gallagher, and it is only the question how the people of that district can raise the money required. Because, beside the special tax for the new building, the permanent taxes would be four times higher than ever before and would excel the limit of school taxes allowed by law, by far.

At present only one among the Sisters has a certificate, No. 3, but our progressive Rev. Fr. Zugelder has promised to bring over a few more sisters.

For public amusement of the season it is a little early yet, but I am sorry to state that there are signs that base ball, lawn tennis, rowing and other healthy as well as joyful outdoor exercises will be a little subdued this season. However, an ice-cream parlor, with pastry and confectionery attached, which we need badly in order to get our share of summer coin pilfered, hitherto unknown to this island.

Yours Truly,

ST. JAMES.

Atwood School Notes.

We are using report cards which we believe will aid in the co-operation of parent and teacher in the education of the pupil.

"Who is he?"

"Mr. Lambton, the second officer."

"I didn't know he was aboard."

"He was, and he was the only one I could find."

"Where is he now?"

"Gone to sleep. He was exhausted when I left him."

"Did you tell him I was safe?"

"Yes, I told him everything."

"Does he know I saw the Wanderer?"

"I don't know what he knows or what he thinks. He was delirious when I left him."

"Delirious! Why, he was all right when I left him."

"Yes, but he had been through a terrible experience. He had been in the water for hours and had swallowed a lot of salt water. He was delirious when I left him."

"Do you think he will be all right?"

"I don't know. He was in a bad condition when I left him."

Aguinaldo's nest is to encourage men not to be carried in the Kansas City platform.

The Democrats are very much in fear of a few more principles and a few less expectancies.

The political organization that depends upon unrest and discontentment for its success is an excellent thing to deprive of power.

The value of raw sugar to the countries of its production was 23 per cent higher last March than the average price in 1897.

The Kentucky Democrats may find the locking up of a Republican majority a rather costly experiment before they are done with it.

The closing of a mill opens a fresh portal of Democratic hope. Unfortunately few such openings and closings are taking place these days.

Free traders and defenders of foreign interests in the United States are cheerfully predicting the postponement and defeat of shipping legislation.

"Republican legislation has thinned our bands; we could do no great amount of harm to-day even if we tried," is the voiced prepared to turn the government over to men who come to them with such sentiments.

Whether it is better to keep on paying $200,000,000 a year to foreign shipowners, or legislate so that American ships may earn that money and keep it at home is one of the things Congress will decide before adjournment.

The usual enthusiasm shown at recent State conventions, and the earnest efforts put forth to get places on the ticket by the Republican candidates, form good evidence that they are convinced that this is a winning year.

If the Democratic party could secure a new platform, new campaigners and a new candidate as easily as they secure a new convention hall, the Republicans might not feel so confident of the result of the coming election.

With our iron ore in the ground, ready to be mined, our rolling mills in resultless to make shapes for shipbuilding, and our shipbuilders already to begin the upbuilding of an American merchant marine, it will be a marvelous thing for Congress to neglect to provide the necessary legislation to that end before adjournment.

The Administration expresses an opinion of the floor war between some of its business to do so. What would have been thought, for instance, if any European government had expressed an opinion, or attempted to interfere, in our war with Spain? The whole country would have heated, and rightly so. Why, then, should we meddle with the affairs of others?

If the hard times that the country suffered during the former administration were not on account of, in spite of, Democratic effort to prevent them, and the present prosperity is due not to Republican efforts or laws, if about, but in spite of the same, the only safe thing for the lover of prosperity to do is to endeavor to keep that party in power whose blunders make good times.

Sir J. Heumker Heaton, a prominent member of the British parliament, a few years ago said that the United States was the only nation that could stand an annual drain of $100,000,000 in ocean freights paid to foreign shipowners. The drain is now $200,000,000, but it is hoped that Congress will effectively check it by appropriate legislation at the present session.

Chaplain Charles C. Pierce, of the United States Army, in a report to the adjutant general on the liquor question in the Philippines, says: "I am forced to give my testimony that the substitution of regimental canteens, in which only beer was sold, in place of traffic in native gin, resulted to a most immediate and perceptible improvement in the sobriety of the troops."

The Manila correspondent of a Paris paper, "Le Temps," wrote that of the Filipinos did not expect help from the Democrats the killing of Aguinaldo offered and the expense of the war would end at once. Every human being who wishes to see our soldiers defeated is opposed to McKinley. It is singular indeed what sympathy the Democratic party inspires among the enemies of our country.

Last year there were sixty eight railroads representing 9,061 miles, in the hands of receivers. During the last Democratic administration the average for the three years ending April 1, 1897, was 177 roads, representing 36,369 miles of line. Railroad conditions are certainly more prosperous when there are no Democratic jacks running at full speed all over the country. Protection and prosperity are now running well, a full load of steam.

Every foreign ship owner trading with the United States will plead for joy if Congress adjourns without legislating in behalf of American shipping, while the few American shipowners will be correspondingly despondent.

The Pacific Ships, from Puget Sound to lower California is a cast for expansion. The voters out there will no more vote to retire from the Philippines than New Yorkers would vote to abolish all Atlantic commerce. It is not difficult to convince them that trade follows the flag.

It would be amusing enough if the predictions of the free traders that nothing will be done for American shipping at the present session of Congress, and that nothing can be done for American shipping at the next session, should turn out to be prophetic.

Canadian efforts to drive American goods out of the Dominion market by discriminating duties in favor of British goods have not yet been successful. On July 1 last Canadian tariff rates will be still further lowered in favor of the products of the United Kingdom.

If nothing is done for American shipping by the present Congress, a great deal can be done, we hope, for foreign shipping, by perpetuating the present monopoly of American foreign carrying, for which it received $200,000,000 a year from the American people.

A Kansas editor has referred to the Hanna Mark Clark as "a diamond pin in the shirt front of freedom." Those who have witnessed the manner in which the gentleman from Ohio wears his jewel from home to issue are disposed to regard him as a set of a great pin in the shirt front of Dealism.

In the four years of President Harrison's administration the receipts of the national treasury were $1,546,000,000, more than the expenditures. During the eight years of Cleveland's term it was $1,596,000,000 was raised—the expenditures were $1,595,000,000 more than the receipts. The balance in favor of a Republican administration was therefore $151,000,000.

Not for a year ending April 1 last, the bank clearings at Cincinnati amounted to $1,045,291,700, an increase of almost $211,000,000 in the twelve months. The increase largest total was for the year ending April 1 1891. Both the big records were during a Republican administration and protective tariff which kept the mills open.

Out of 442 sailing vessels that left San Francisco last year, no less than 141 carried cargoes of American products and manufactures to the Hawaiian Islands. The value of those cargoes from this one port was $2,064,000, and has almost doubled within two years. Expansion is a good policy for Pacific Coast trade.

Notice has been served on the gold Democrats that, if they will return to the fold, the Chicago platform will be changed to the extent of varying the order of the subjects treated, and if they insist on this further changes, those having the matter in charge may shift the 16 to 1 plank, round so as to read 16 to 1. But all backsliders who come in under this new confession of faith must do works meet for repentance before they can hope to have a place at the pie counter.

Tortured a Witness.

Intense suffering was endured by witness T. L. Martin, of Ilion, N.Y., before he gave this evidence: "I coughed every night until my throat was nearly raw, then tried Dr. King's New Discovery which gave instant relief. I have used it in my family for four years and recommend it as the greatest remedy for coughs, colds and all throat, chest and lung troubles. It will cure the worst coughs, and we only guarantee it and absolutely cure consumption. Price 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at F. H. Hines & Co. drug store.

LINCOLN'S PRIVATE CAR.

Colored People Attempt to Save It from the Scrap Heap.

A movement is now on foot to rescue the old Lincoln car from the scrap pile in Omaha and preserve it as a relic of the closing chapter in the career of the great emancipator. The colored people of that city have taken the matter in hand and petitioned the council to make an appropriation, looking to that end. The interesting relic occupies an isolated place in the yards of the Union Pacific Railroad company. It is hoped that the company can be prevailed upon to donate the car to the city if Omaha provided for an appropriation is made to have it preserved and a building furnished for that purpose. Booker T. Washington heard of the car when in Omaha recently, saw it and interested the colored people of the city in it. If the car is secured it will be made the object of a national subscription among colored people and all the original finishing remains. Though merely a collection of its original, the memories that clung around this relic of the greatest president make it an object of veneration to all. The car is not a thing of decayed wood and rusty iron today, but when it was constructed by the military shops in Alexandria, Va., in 1864, it was the marvel of the railroad world and the most elaborate piece of workmanship on wheels. To absolutely free with every Majestic Range sold next week at L. D. Bartholomew & Company's.

LIFTS A STREET CAR.

EXPLOSION ON TRACKS OF ST. LOUIS ROAD.

Nitroglycerine is Used with Stunning Effect—Spares Dirty Mechanician with the Mans—Another Scenario for Jesse James—Pennsylvania Bank Robbery.

At the early hour this morning a terrific explosion of nitroglycerine was heard in the vicinity of the Jefferson Avenue car barns. Some 50 people were in the vicinity at the time, and they were thrown from their feet. The explosion was so heavy that it was felt in various parts of the city. The place where the explosion occurred was in the rear of the Jefferson Avenue car barns, on the tracks of the Union Depot Railway, and the force of the explosion lifted a street car from the rails and dropped it back upon the rails. The motorman of the car was stunned by the shock, but not seriously injured. The explosion was caused by some dynamiters who had placed the nitroglycerine under the rails. The dynamiters had placed the nitroglycerine in a tin box, and it was thrown into the air and scattered in all directions. The force of the explosion was so great that it dug a hole in the ground 3 feet deep and 4 feet in diameter. The explosion was heard for miles in the city. The dynamiters had placed the nitroglycerine in the rear of the car barns

FROM LUZON.

Another Interesting Letter From Dan Hosmer.

TOCANO, P. I. March 11, 1900.

Well, we have licked the niggers (?) thus we have come against them so far, and lots of times when they had two men to our one and the last time they had 200 men and we only had 65. They had us almost surrounded and yet we charged right through them and back again, and drove them into the mountains. They are no good and are fools for fighting us. They had a provision train of the 36th surrounded 3 miles south of us yesterday, and we had to go out and drive them off—they ran when they saw us coming. They are very much afraid of the 37th, but would attack the 36th any place. They captured a number of pack horses from the 36th about 3 miles from here some time ago, besides killing two men, wounding a number and capturing six.

Our company have only lost two men killed and three wounded so far—had one killed this week. I guess our scrapping is about over now. In January we marched and fought for 19 days straight, covering a distance of 200 miles, and I tell you we were thin when we went into garrison here. All we had to eat was hard-tack and bacon and coffee and not enough of that. It was not so hard on me as I have a pony and rode with the major, and some of the poor fellows suffered. Some were bare-footed before we got back and their feet were all swollen and bleeding.

The country is all garrisoned now and all we have to do is to run down bands of Ladrones but none of them put up quite a scrap; that is, they would if they could shoot straight. They can't hit the broad side of a barn. I had eight or ten of them shooting at me and was only about ten yards away and they never touched me. I was carrying orders for the major and ran into them. When we came upon them unexpectedly, they will shoulder their guns with the muzzle toward us and run and shoot (!) in the confusion for anything.

Well, I suppose you want to hear something about the country here. It is a fine place and has all the natural resources that any country needs—minerals in abundance, timber such as mahogany, rosewood, lignumvitæ, ebony and the gutta percha or rubber tree of which there is an abundance. The soil is very fertile and nearly everything you can imagine is raised here, such as rice, corn, coffee, sugar cane, all kinds of vegetables that are raised in the states and all kinds of tropical fruits.

The country here is not developed. Agriculture is carried on in the same way as it was 200 years ago. The plowing is all done with a wooden stick with a water buffalo hitched to it. This does not turn the sod over but just stirs it up for a depth of 6 or 4 inches, and everything else is done in the same way. Rice is all hulled by pounding it out with clubs, and hemp is all pieced to pieces by hand instead of by machinery.

The people are a queer lot and are not nearly so ignorant as I supposed they to be before I came here. A good many of them read and write Spanish as well as their own language (Tagalog) and lots of them are picking up the English language. I brand a little nigger not more than five years old cursing a blue streak this morning. That is the first thing the kids learn. The people here are treacherous and a fellow has to keep his eyes open or they will get him off somewhere and knife him. A knife is a kind of fighting knife or sword that they use against us.

This has been the hottest winter that I ever put in. It has never been below 90 degrees in the shade, and from that to 140 in the middle of the day. That makes it pretty hard to march in, especially when we have to wear those woolen army shirts. It is 110 degrees in the shade today and the sweat is just rolling off me. I wish I had a few Michigan zephyrs.

The water here is all warm—haven't had a drink of cold water since I've been on the island. It is warm when it comes from a well 50 feet deep. That may seem queer but it is a fact. All the water has to be boiled here to kill malaria germs.

I guess we are elected to stay here our full term of enlistment. I see by the Army and Navy Journal that the troops will be sent home in the same order as they were sent here—the regulars first, and that the volunteers would serve their full term. I don't care much though; I have been in 9 months and have not been very sick yet. Had two little touches of malaria but am feeling fine now. I think I am the best possible cure of myself in every way and expect to come home as sound as a dollar. The gugus can't all you if they do shoot, and if a person lets the fruit and the booze they have here alone, he is all right; and I am doing both.

Oh, yes! I more tell you that we have a Philippine cockatoo here, and they play in front of our quarters every night. They play "The Star Spangled Banner," "After the Ball" and "Just as the Sun Went Down," besides all kinds of Spanish waltzes, etc. They are the finest musicians I have ever heard anywhere and they help to pass away more than one hour that would otherwise long heavily on our hands. I am orderly to-day and had a little space time but must close now.

H. S. HOSMER.

Woman's Missionary Convention.

The W. F. M. S. of the Grand Traverse District, met in annual convention in the M. E. church this week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Delegates were present from Cross Village, Harbor Springs, Clarion, Lake City, Traverse City, Beitzhe, Northwood, Ironton, East Jordan and other places.

Mrs. J. C. Greenhaugh of Petoskey, presided with fine grace and tact while Mrs. Frank Eldred, of Traverse City, efficiently occupied the secretary's stand.

On Tuesday evening, Mrs. C. B. Carpenter, of Grand Rapids, gave an interesting and instructive address on the work and progress of the organization, and as she had just returned from the great ecumenical conference of missions at New York City, she also gave some very inspiring facts concerning that great gathering of the world's gospel missionaries.

On Wednesday evening Rev. M. D. Carroll, of Traverse City, district Presiding Elder, spoke on the efficiency and importance of woman's work in the church, to the manifest pleasure of a large congregation.

During the day sessions there were many interesting papers and discussions, interspersed with select songs and other exercises, which taken all together, made this the best convention of its kind ever held in the district.

The Great Majestic cooking exhibit is in full blast every day this week at L. D. Barthoolomew & Co's. If you want to see a real range bake biscuit in three minutes, just watch the Great Majestic.

—Chalcopyn Fritlone: The trouble with some people in places about this size is that they will not rest their head upon the waters unless assured in advance that in a few days it will come back to them a full grown sandwich, all trimmed with ham, butter and mustard, rolled in a warranty deed for one half of the earth and a mortgage on the other half.

—As a certain vessel was passing through the draw of a bridge at Manistee Monday the captain saw standing on the bridge a man to whom he owed 65 cents. Next day as Oliver Johnson was taking near the spot he landed a large anchor, and when he cut the fish open there was the identical half dollar the vessel captain had thrown overboard the day before.

The dispatch states that Mr. Eddy passed away in the city of Aix, where he was residing, on May 9, a victim of pneumonia. It is announced that the remains will be interred in the family burial plot at Corsica, N. Y.

—The Chalcopyan Fritlone is authority for the following: "A reliable farmer in this county says that if you take a quarter inch hole in the lower end of a fruit tree, or any kind of a tree that is infested with insects, and insert a small dry sulphur as possible into it, insert a plug to keep the sulphur in place, it will cure blight and make the tree strong and healthy, and in no way injure it."

—The Charlevoix No. 1 and Gun Club have received the beautiful silver loving cup that serves as a trophy for which all the gun clubs in this section will contend in a blue rock "shoot" May 29th at this place. The cup is about twelve inches high, standing upon a base that is reinforced by an artistic design of two sporting dogs and a perfect pointer dog in a pose of sudden discovery. It is a pretty thing and well worth contending for. There is hoping that it stays in Charlevoix.

—Mr. Watson supplies says that one morning last week he saw, from the Hughes house in Bay View, a magnificent mirage of the Wisconsin shore, which is about eighty miles distant. The sand dunes, crowned by spruce and pine trees, were sharply defined and the whole picture was as clear and distinct as if but a mile away. Petoskey Herald: We are sorry to dispel this beautiful illusion, but what Mr. Snyder saw was probably Fox or Beaver Island.

—We call the attention of our readers to the recital at the Bartlett House parlors on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Charlevoix Musical Club. This organization has done much hard work the past winter to raise the musical standard of our town, and should be encouraged in continue its efforts. Music is one of the chief factors in the elevation of society. It refines and ennobles humanity, and sinks the selfishing heart. Let the Charlevoix Musical Club be well supported. The attention to the recital will be in order.

—The Congregational church will be reopened on Sunday after being closed for three weeks. The exterior of the place has been painted, the ceiling whitened, the walls papered, the woodwork and pews varnished, and the floor re-carpeted, which, together with slight changes in the platform and pulpit, make the church more comfortable as pleasing. The Ladies' Society deserve credit and the thanks of the entire congregation for their diligent efforts and no doubt they will receive both credit and thanks. The Grand Army will meet there on Sabbath morning when special music and sermon will be appropriate to their visit.

—The fuel man hereabout begins to see a big drop in the market occasions no surprise. Lumbermen lost winter fairly outbid themselves in their endeavor to take advantage of the prevailing high prices. Naturally, they wanted to reap as big a harvest as possible and as a result the market was flooded. Birch and hardwood remains firm but all other grades have declined. Good judges can and does create an increased demand and an increased demand nearly always raises prices, but the law of supply and demand will continue to govern and when the demand has once been satisfied, and the market is overstocked, lower prices must inevitably result.

—A man who claimed to be, and from appearances might be, the real Simon, a peripatetic knight, blew into town last spring, and for two weeks worked at the case in the Argus office, and then disappeared. His name was William Nugent, and he was an expert job printer, but indulged in drink. While here he started on one occasion that he was a detective, but little attention was paid to it. He has turned up now in connection with the Chicago & Northwestern head up recently, as a detective in the employ of the road, and everything in the Pinkerton line given valuable assistance in securing three to the robbers. Nugent was here yesterday and had a long talk with the Sentinel office, and has lost "off and on," for more than three years. The statement that he did the C. & N. W. valuable service is true.

—Aunt Cynthia Vosburg and Uncle Witman were tendered a reception at H. P. Hall last Friday evening that brought the blush into agility of youth in the old people. At the council voting contest, under the auspices of the Congregational ladies, Aunt Cynthia was very properly voted the most popular lady. It could not be otherwise, under the inspiration of a quick-eved lecturer. Before Charlevoix was Aunt Cynthia was here, and we can remember when the genial couple participated in every dance for miles around. On Friday evening dancing was on the program, and Uncle Hiram and Aunt Cynthia were among the liveliest on the floor. The venerable couple have many well wishes in Charlevoix.

—In the Beaver Island letter we published in this paper last week, reference was made to the dances at St. James Harbor, in the way that some might consider it a reflection on Rev. Father Zegotzke, the good priest of that parish. Father Zegotzke was in town Friday and, as usual, called at the Sentinel office. So far as the Sentinel office, so far as the Beaver Island letter is concerned, it was unnecessary for the Reverend Father to make any explanations, as we believe that the writer of this is familiar with the facts in a general way. Neither do we believe that the correspondent meant to reflect on the good priest. Beaver Island dances are a traditional and fixed institution. They are the warehouse where the people are housed during the long winter of isolation. We say harmless, in the abstract sense. There may have been dances where evil crept in, as there always does, whether in the islands of the lake or in the broad peninsulas. This being the case the priest would be a fanatic who would seek to prohibit. Where, in the work of religious prohibition is impossible, regulation and restriction is feasible and wise. To our mind the priest is no slander dances during the long winter of isolation. We say harmless, in the abstract sense. There may have been dances where evil crept in, as there always does, whether in the islands of the lake or in the broad peninsulas. This being the case the priest would be a fanatic who would seek to prohibit. Where, in the work of religious prohibition is impossible, regulation and restriction is feasible and wise. To our mind the priest is no slander on his islanders. Rev. Father Zegotzke seeks to do so. We believe the Father to be an honest Christian gentleman and a progressive, zealous and high-minded clergyman, recognizing the traditions and environments of the people and their political change and sincerely working for their best gov't. He has already, in the brief time that he has been in charge of the parish, worked wonders in the rejuvenation of the island, shooting the people out of the deeply rut into which they have been traveling so long, and awakening them to a true realization of the spiritual and temporal possibilities of the island. Although a German, the people of the island love him and quickly resent anything that may seem to reflect on his honesty of purpose.

Hastings from Hayes.

Our highway commissioner has commenced work in the State road. The Greensky hill will receive considerable attention. The sandy portions are the bases of the hill will soon be converted into a boulevard under the manipulations of Jimmie O'Brien. Jimmie will leave a monument behind him in the good roads he is building that will be greater than a marble column.

Hayes assessed one half of one per cent for special highway purposes, and the same for statute labor, we intend to have good roads, we do not ask anybody to donate funds to fill up the mudholes.

We have taken off our coats, grabbed up a shovel and now with ditching, scraping and graveling our Bay Shore and Lake Shore roads will be converted into an excellent driveway for all manner of schicklts.

The sides of the road are being pulled out and there is nothing that will add from one to five hundred dollars to the value of a farm like a clean well kept road front. Instead of allowing you road front to be a dumping ground for stones, old stumps, brush heaps, briers, thistles and weeds and growing Keep your road fronts as neat as any portion of your farm.

—Several of our farmers are cleaning up this spring, and Hayes will no doubt take the praise it deserves, of having the best kept roadways in the county.

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Co Agricultural Society has been called for Saturday, May 26th at Fast Jordan. They will discuss plans and dates and make other arrangements for the Fair this fall which is to eclipse all previous efforts.

THE MISSING SHIP

By NATHAN D. URNER

Wednesday dawned on the Island with a cloudless sky and a gentle breeze blowing from the southeast. Early in the morning Mr. Hodgkins had been out in a sailing boat. It was the boat in which he had come to the island, and he had gone in it on his journey over to the mainland to get the supplies for the Wanderer. He had taken with him a sailor from the village, who had come to the island with him in the boat, and who had been left behind to help the Hodgkins family in the work of the farm during the absence of the master. The sailor was a native of the island, and was known by the name of Jim Hodgkins. He was a cousin of the Hodgkins family, and was a fine specimen of a young man, tall, strong, and well-disposed. He was a great favorite with the Hodgkins family, and was treated by them more as a member of the family than as a hired man.

The morning was spent by Jim in the boat, sailing about in the bay, while his master was busy about the farm. The boat was a small affair, with a single mast and a lug sail, and was very easily managed. Jim was a good sailor, and was very fond of his boat, and was very proud of the fact that he was the only person on the island who was allowed to sail her. He was very careful of her, and was always ready to lend a hand to any of his friends who wished to go sailing in her. He was a great favorite with the young people of the village, and was in the habit of taking them out sailing in his boat whenever they had a holiday and the weather was favorable. He was also very fond of his master, and was ready to do anything in his power to help him in his work on the farm. He was a good-hearted, honest, and industrious young fellow, and was well liked by all who knew him.

The Wanderer had been anchored in the bay since her return from her cruise to the island, and had been visited by many of the inhabitants of the island who had come in their boats to see the Indian boy who had been brought to their island by the Wanderer. The Indian boy had been very much pleased with his visit to the island, and had enjoyed himself very much during his stay on the island. He had made himself very useful on the farm, and had won the good-will of all the people he had met on the island. He was very much pleased when he was told that he was to go back to the island with his friends, and was very much disappointed when he was told that he could not go with them. He was very much pleased with the presents he had received from the people of the island, and was very much pleased with the idea that he was to be allowed to keep the boat which had been presented to him by the people of the island. He was very much pleased with the idea that he was to be allowed to go back to the island in the Wanderer, and was very much disappointed when he was told that he could not go back to the island in the Wanderer

The Philadelphia Democracy.

If, during an American presidential year, the Rajah of Jawapur should be unwise enough to kick up a row with Viceroy Cherian, or the queen of Madagascar rebel against French suzerainty, the democracy would at once make the matter an issue.

Thanks to the ever revolving wheel of fortune, the British Bear was caught on the stage just in time to be used. Boer and Filipino, Kruger and Aguinaldo! What congeniality! Both fighting for freedom; both struggling to throw off the yoke of oppression. Imperialism in America and Imperialism in South Africa—both systems synonymous with oppression! These grand and enduring principles shall take the place of the former grand and enduring principles of free trade and free silver, and pure and undefiled democracy, the party of Jackson, Jefferson, of old, shall again assume its rightful place as the distributor of the crumbs.

And now, as the Boer sweeps away on our shores, McKinley's governo must must "rush or not lunch." It must grant what they ask, or, refusing, it must acknowledge itself an ally of despotic England and an enemy of freedom!

The poor defeated Boers are now and friend by Tammany New York they are escorted to Washington by a committee every member of which is a Bryan democrat. They will be presented to the President and will ask—what? They could ask for but two things, mediation or intervention. Mediation is the tendering of the good offices of the government to bring about peace. President McKinley has already done this, and was informed courteously but firmly that it is none of our business, which is true. Intervention means war, and nothing else.

But the Finlans and the Dutch have votes, hence the democrats are for intervention. The championship of the Boer cause serves the same purpose to the democrats that the character of Robespierre does to living the play of a hero until the mask is removed.

What a pity it is that the Dreyfus row in France could not have occurred a year later, or the civil war in Manchuria have been postponed.

Britisch Boer.

Where are those people who, a few months ago, talked so glibly about the disintegration of the British Empire—the decline of British prestige? Where are the prophets? England was to be driven from the African continent, and Natal and Cape Colony annexed to Kruger's domain.

Lord Roberts is marching to Pretoria conquering all before him. Stupidity and intolerance is giving way before the valiant, irresistible march of intelligence and progress.

Six months hence, under British rule, there will be more liberty in South Africa than there ever was before, and with greater liberty there will come greater prosperity.

Let the Boers rejoice. That is an age of "striking." The Indians have been striking westward and northward in America for a hundred years, and civilization has treeded behind them.

Spanish tyranny has receded out of the South Atlantic and the Pacific oceans and Uncle Sam has treked thitherward.

In both these American treaking expeditions good government has been taken along as a part of the outfit. So in South Africa. The winds of human progress are moving. The Krugers, the Stolzs and, incidentally, the Aguinaldos and the Democrats are behind the times.

Chicago reports that nine trunk line railroads will contract, this year, to spend more than $60,000,000 for extensions, terminal improvements and rolling stock. That great Republican warrior, General Prosperity, is still fighting for more work for the wage earner.

The Democrats in the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries have prepared two bills on the shipping bill, one favoring subsidies and repealing free ships, and the other favoring free ships and repealing subsidies—thus are the members of that party divided when it comes to a measure relating to the

The Southern Democracy defeated the navy, voted Bryan over over the railroads, taxes them without giving them representation, ignores those whom it chooses to accuse, without the formality of a trial, and yet holds up its hands in holy horror because they fear the Republicans are going to "oppress" the natives of Porto Rico.

With every Republican member of the House merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee united in favor of the shipping bill, and with a substantial number of the Democrats on that committee ready to join with them in voting for the bill, it would be remarkable to see Congress adjourn with the shipping bill undisposed of.

The gold standard is safe only as long as the party in favor of the gold standard is in power.

The important difference between the Democratic and Republican party is that the former promises and the latter performs.

In 1895 the value of our exports was $71.87 per capita. In 1899 it was $18.34. With protection we have expansion.

Shoin Falls sets the pace for Democratic platform making. The Kansas City bankers will be compelled to meekly fall into line.

In 1895 we exported 27,891,137 bales of cotton. That was a Democratic year. In 1899 we exported 174,000,000 pounds. That was a Republican year.

The Ohio Democrats have decided to be good and middle along in the Bryan column. The Ohio Democrats usually do this when there is no chance to do otherwise.

Representative Lentz has lost no time in entering upon the work of misrepresenting the testimony adduced in the Idaho investigation. But that sort of thing is decidedly Lentzy in type.

As long as competent and patriotic leadership is unable to secure a following in the Democratic party, the voters will not be disposed to trust that that organization with their interests.

The per capita circulation of the country was $20.25 on May 1st. It was $21.57 when Bryan was nominated in 1896. The failure of free silver has certainly not retarded the circulation.

Mr. Sulzer announces that, in case he is nominated for the Vice-Presidency, he will immediately take the stump. This should be no more variable reason why a political party possessing intelligent leadership.

The Hon. Wm. Alden Smith has not raised any Boer flags lately. This is a good thing for another Granville episode, while the Boer envoys are in Washington. He and Billy Mason should chip in and banquet the Dutchmen.

When several Democrats united in signing a minority report on the shipping bill, in which they favor subsidies and oppose free ships, as the remedy, the opportunity for making a campaign issue of the shipping question slipped from the grasp of the Democratic party.

G. H. Wheelock, internal revenue agent, declares that Shoshone county, Idaho, is developing rapidly under the protection of the troops. People who have left the country by the hundreds because of the troubles in the mines have returned and money is again being invested in the mines.

The passage of the shipping bill through each branch of Congress is assured whenever that measure is brought up for consideration. As this also is to transfer to American ships the carrying of American foreign commerce and the annual earning of $20,000,000 now paid to foreign ships, the bill can not be passed too soon.

In 1895, one of the Democratic panic years, we exported agricultural products worth $555,210,026. In 1899 they were worth $794,186,987. An increase of $239,000,000 in the foreign demand for American farm products is a pretty good year's record under a Republican administration.

Hon. S. B. Wilson, West Virginia's former Democratic governor, has written an able paper in favor of the retention of the Philippines. Mr. Wilson contends that he is still a Democrat, but none the less an American. He will have a splendid chance to engage in an argument with the Democratic leaders.

Rural free delivery is being extended among the farmers under Republican rule in the Executive Departments and in Congress. This Republican Congress has increased the appropriation for this purpose to $1,750,000, so that more farmers than ever will soon be having their mail delivered at their doors.

THE BRITISH LEADERS.

Campbell-Bannerman, Who Fills the Post Once Held by Gladstone.

The leader of the Liberal party in the British house of commons and one of the critics of the Tory government for its lack of foresight prior to the war is Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman. He has been in parliament since 1868 and has held various offices. He has been financial secretary to the war office, India secretary, chief secretary for the admiralty, has been secretary of state for war and for a brief period was chief secretary of Ireland. He was a home rule court connection and was a particular favorite of the grand old man. The father of Campbell-Bannerman was a rich double merchant who sat in parliament for the Universities of Glasgow and Aberdeen. The family name was Campbell, but the present Liberal leader inherited a fortune from a maternal uncle and also the name of Bannerman at the same time. The legacy was conditioned on his assuming the name. Campbell-Bannerman is not a brilliant man and will never earn a reputation as a great parliamentarian. He is genial, popular, however, and earnestly tries to maintain the credit of the great post once filled by Gladstone.

Rural Party in Country.

The town of Dunbore, Pa., may be on the top of the Allegheny, but rural as to some things, but it is not altogether behind in novelties. The latest in that direction was a "tea party," which took place in the town hall. The tea was drawn from the reverse of pretty young women, was served up on the stage behind the curtain, and one by one stuck a have foot in the curtain for the inspection of young gentlemen. The tea were attired in the highest bidder, whose privilege it was to accompany the owner to lunch. The fees brought all the way from 25 cents to $1. In some instances the young women had "tipped" their lower limbs, agreeing to divide their fees in a certain way in order to avoid being taken to lunch by other fellows, who, when they "caught on," was the bidding as high as they could before giving it up.

Castle Garden's Relighted Hard.

There are now about 2,500 deer belonging to the government in Alaska, which are feared out among the natives near the mountains, although, it is taken care of under the supervision of government agents. The people who take care of them are allowed half of the increase, which is about 50 per cent a year.—Indianapolis News.

Parlor Nasturtium Stains Other.

Parlor sound always garnish a dish resembling onions, so it takes away the odor that people object to. It even prevents the after taste if eaten by the individual who loves onions and must have them.

Light Shirt of Mail.

A Sheffield manufacturer has produced a shirt of mail that weighs less than twelve pounds that can easily be worn beneath the coat, which is impervious to any attack except that of the composition bullet. His product is having a large sale and is likely to be made widely used as it becomes better known. It is composed of small steel rings linked together so firmly that even the point of a rifle cannot penetrate through them. At the same time they are so flexible that they can be worn without the slightest discomfort. They cover the entire breast and back from the neck to the thigh, and extend down the arm to the elbow. It will protect anyone from an attack of assassins, or even a mob in the place. Its value as a protection against assassination is evident.

Rare Historical Treasure.

Amongst the treasures preserved from the Cossack Prisoner when it was burned, there is one which is looked upon as its sacred book. Register de Lagrange, which is the record of the affairs of the Hetman during the interesting period from 1649 to 1656, by Charles Varlet de la Grange, one of the Hetman's counsellors. Although intended only as a business collection of programs, receipts, and other details, the rather virtually kept a diary of the Hetman's doings, making the latter's episodes with him in the fields with their discoveries, and the strife with crosses. The style is simple, and the value of the MSS. is inestimable.

—The business men of the west end of Bridge street played ball with their confreres of the east side at the ball park last Thursday afternoon. Of course our side won, as did the other side. —Gen. H. A. Wheeler, our popular Chicago summer guest, writes to LeFevre, his sum-our family physician, as follows: "Baby a girl, Saturday morning, 9:30; full complement of fingers and toes—all white, weight 10½ old man, 20½; mother doing splendidly, father drive, grandma rolled through O. K. Entire outfit pleased over the sea."

—The trophy remains in Charlevoix. At the contest yesterday at Vermont the gun clubs of Charlevoix, East Jordan, Bellaire and Irondale participated. We regret that the short time between the event and our going to press prevents publishing the score. Charlevoix, however, won the beautiful silver trophy, and will defend it against all comers. Harry Lake was the "big gun" of the club, and Chas. Harrison second.

—Memorial Day in Charlevoix was, in all respects all that could be desired. The weather in the morning was threatening, but the sun finally came out, and shone quite well. It appeared over beyond the Manitous. The G. A. R. exercises at the cemetery came off according to program and were impressive to the extreme. The attendance was large, and floral decorations generous and beautiful. At the school grounds in the afternoon, patriotic exercises were held by the city schools, under the direction of Prof. Tice. In every way the day was a success.

—It is developing that Beaver Island real estate titles are badly tangled up, the missing links being of dates long previous to the existence of either Charlevoix or Emmet counties. The old Machinac county records will probably supply the deficiency, and our Board of Supervisors has instructed the register of deeds to get a transcript of them so far as is necessary, to correct our records. It may be necessary to go to Marquette for a record of some of the original United States patents. At any rate Charlevoix county should at once take all the steps necessary to perfect the title of every acre of Beaver Island realty. The future development of the island, so much to be desired, depends upon it.

Religious Items.

Revival meetings and reception of new members next Sunday morning.

In 1884 there were only 231,848,000 bushels of wheat retained for home consumption. In 1899 the quantity retained was 552,320,285 bushels. In 1884 there were thousands of people who were poor even to buy bread. In 1899 everybody could buy bread. These two comparisons represent the different conditions of the country under Democratic and Republican administrations.

Benjamin, State President, was present, and Friday evening gave a very able and interesting lecture on the work of the W. C. T. U.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

A few school houses in this county contain a small library. No other one thing will advance and help the schools as much as the introduction of the pupils reading circle into the schools.

The result would be better conduct, greater interest in school work, more intelligent school work, a desire to advance in the intellectual life, and greater interest in the school by parents who read the books and hear them read.

Some of the libraries have been started by socials, donations, and entertainments, and could be very much improved by more systematic methods.

We hope to see every school district in the county organize a school district library.

There are various and specific ways and means in vogue for obtaining more money to buy more books. They are as various as the ingenuity of teachers and their friends can devise "ebullient zest to godliness" should prevail. In the school districts from three to five dollars are paid yearly for polishing and cleaning the school house. The pupils in the district could combine to do this work for the school board and use the money for them to buy books

Children's reading is vital to good school teaching. Give the pupil biography, books of travel and adventure, the novels of history, the great stories of the noble deeds of historic men, history, poetry literature—a library.

Remember that no life can approach a very high ideal into which a love for literature does not enter, and the business of the school is to strengthen and broaden and elevate life. "A love for books may not help earn bread and butter, but it will awaken every manifest of bread and butter you will ever get."

We can do no better thing for our children than to provide for them good books, taking care that they are books.

If the school library develops the taste for reading, let us secure one faster it in every public school.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Central Lake will have another street fair this summer.

Boyne City will celebrate July 4th in big style. Title Bellaire.

John Scullegan has moved to Central Lake from Atwood and expects to begin work on his new warehouse in about 30 days.

Traverse City Record: The Oval Wood Dish Co. is loading a car of butter dishes for Cape Town, South Africa, which will be shipped by way of New York. This is the first large foreign order ever sent out by the company.

Traverse City Record: William Clement has returned from South Manitou island, where he closed a deal for 320 acres of fine timber land which he secured from the Garden City Sand Co., of Chicago. The tract contains a large quantity of fine timber and will prove a good investment.

Cheboygan Tribune: M. W. King, density state trespass agent, visited Lower Island to look after timber pirates. He was accompanied by Alex. S. McDonald, of this city. Mr. McDonald says they found several cords where timber had been cut from state lands and Mr. King made the parties settle, making the timber they had secured rather expensive.

Traverse City Record: The Traverse City fruit and corn Club received yesterday two settings of eggs of the Mongolian pheasant, which are intended to introduce this game bird into this region. This is the first attempt to introduce these birds in northern Michigan, the nearest place in the state where they are being at Louis, where they thrive well.

Bellaire Independent: F. M. Sewerson of the East Jordan Lumber Co., was in town a few days this week. He says the work of extending the company's railroad will be begun about June 1st. The high price of steel has somewhat hindered the making of plans for the road, but it is practically an assured thing that ere long the road will make a junction with the Pere Marquette at this place.

Traverse City Record: W. C. Meyers of the steam shooting gallery, had an experience Saturday night that he will not care to repeat. He was on board the evening train for Charlevoix to spend Sunday, when near the Williamsburg cliff he heard a shot fired, and a bullet crashed through the car window, narrowly missing his head. Who fired the shot and what was the motive for the deed, no one knows.

Traverse City Record: The record for big trout this season was again broken Sunday by Louis Cutman, a blacksmith who works for Victor Petersen. And the 8 pound rainbow trout caught by George Huff will have to surrender the palm so far as actual weight is concerned, to a German Brown trout captured at Mitchell's. The fish was caught in a shiner, and measured 26 inches in length, the same length as the rainbow caught by Huff. But the German brown weighed 8½ pounds, making it three quarters of a pound heavier than the one that held the record before.

Traverse City Eagle: About thirty old settlers accepted W. S. Andrews's invitation and met at his office Monday afternoon for an hour's exchange of early day recollections. The oldest settler was T. T. Miller, who was born at Old Mission in 1847 and who was greeted at the meeting by so fluent Indian language as the guests could command. Hon. Perry Hannah told of the hardships of travel over what did service as highways in the early days, and all could remember when the ride out of the city were impossible at times. The year when there was 180 days sleighing was generally remembered. Mr. Hannah said that it was common for teams to meet in the winter in the early days and await the digging out of a way around each other by the drivers.

General Traffic Manager Pattisen, writes to the Central Lake Torch as follows: "We are now very favorably impressed with surroundings of Central Lake and opportunity for developing the interesting features of the Traverse Bay region, by adding to the territory to which side trips can be made from the Charlevoix and Petoskey hotels. I have arranged to carry out your suggestions and shall run the inter-urban trains that operate east-south between Charlevoix and Petoskey, through to Central Lake and stopping of the through flight train which you referred to. In order to make this a success, people who have facilities for looking on the transitory idea should organize a plan that will enable the visitor to reach the points that interest in coming territory, and I would suggest that we shortly arrange a card of information to be distributed at Charlevoix and Petoskey for the guidance of those who would go to your locality, and suggest that you take this matter up first with our General Passenger Agent, Mr. H. F. Moorhouse, at Grand Rapids, who is interested in making the proposition a complete success.

Within a mile of Rapid City a scene is reported to have been enacted last week, which makes the municipal order that locality badly in need of civilization, says the Antrim County Sentinel. A demented girl, aged about 18 years, was terribly beaten by her mother, who, not being satisfied with the whipping, seized to the punishment by pounding the unfortunate girl's hand upon a sharp nail. The writer has seen both women, and the appearance of the mother evidences that she hasn't much common sense.

Traverse City Record: W. C. Johnson, of New York, arrived in the city yesterday, and he and his wife have taken up their abode at the Park place for the summer. Mr. Johnson says that the prospects for the building of the Traverse City and Old Mission Electric railway are very bright, now that the company in this city have obtained a franchise from the city, the thing that the capitalists have been holding off for so long. He says that the New York bankers who have promised the money are now ready to furnish it, and they have a firm in view to do the actual work of building the road.

The Rapids Progress: Contractor Desrivaux who is putting in a new dock at the cement works is progressing with the work and Tuesday took had seventy five piles driven and capped. Owing to the shallow water along the shore he has been unable to make as rapid progress as he will hereafter. Monday next he expects to be able to use a floating driver and with that can make rapid progress. The pier will contain 280 piles driven eight feet apart and capped with heavy timbers. When completed the Cement Co. will have a dock of which they may feel proud. Mr. Desrivaux, the contractor, is now working on a government contract at Charlevoix and the work here is under the personal supervision of his son George who has for years been associated with his father in this kind of work.

The annual meeting of the Old Settlers Association will be held this year at Old Mission on June 6th. This Mission is historic ground in the early settlement of this section of the state, and is, therefore, an appropriate meeting place of the Association. Besides its location and interesting in its associations, it will be a pleasant place for the old settlers to come together. The program will be informal, but there will be an opportunity for greeting one another and talking over old times. It is hoped there will be a large attendance. Bring your picnic dinners. Any person who has lived in the Grand Traverse region for fifteen years or more is eligible to membership in this association. It costs only 50 cents a job, including the first year's dues, and the annual dues are but 50 cents. The women members of the family have nothing to pay. Arrangements have been made for the steamer Columbia to leave the Traverse City dock at 8 o'clock sharp, Wednesday morning and remain at Old Mission during the day, returning in the afternoon. Fare for round trip 50 cents.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

The schools of today are much better than the schools of yesterday that is of forty years ago, as the means and methods of transportation of today are better than those of yesterday. The immense advance in the arts and sciences, the rise in the standard of personal comfort and living is not a bit more remarkable than the betterment of the schools. Every one recognizes the great progress that has been made in schoolhouse architecture, both within and without.

In the school of yesterday supplies, apparatus, appliances for objective work were absolutely unknown, supplementary reading matter was an unknown extravagance. So far as teaching is concerned, it may be said that there wasn't any, the only teaching was the hearing of lessons.

That some survived is true, but if those who are now forty-five years old and over will take a survey of their school life, they will agree that all their present knowledge of arithmetic and grammar has been gained by going over these subjects again in mature years.

There is a common belief that the boys and girls of yesterday learned to spell and write, but an inspection of the letters coming into any business house from men and women who went to school in the yesterday will have a tendency to shake this conviction.

Think too, of the continued increase in the character of the qualification of teachers, and with this has come a constant and steady increase in the salaries.

While it may be true that high wages paid to teachers do not prove that these schools are at the test, it is an economic maxim that relatively low wages paid to teachers is an advertisement of the inferior character of the school.

Teachers who have fallen out of the ranks, five, ten or twenty years ago and come back again now, find the requirements have increased, the complexity so developed, that they have to learn over again.

Teachers who have been long years in the service must remain young in spirit. The tendency in business lines is for younger men. Fortunately the teacher who remains young in spirit, who does not become cynical, and who becomes interested in literature, or alleviating the lot of suffering humanity may be reasonably sure of escaping crystallization.

A Woman's Awful Peril.

"There is only one chance to save your life and that is through an operation" says the startling words heard by Mrs. I. D. Hunt of Lime Ridge, Wis., from her doctor after he had vainly tried to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. Gall stones had formed and she constantly grew worse. Then she began to use Electric Bitters which wholly cured her. It's a wonderful stomach, liver and kidney remedy. Cures dyspepsia, loss of appetite. Try it. Only 50c. Guaranteed. For sale by F. G. Hines & Co., druggist.

THE HEALTH OF YOUNG WOMEN

Two of Them Helped by Mrs. Pinkham—Read their Letters.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I am sixteen years old and am troubled with my monthly sickness. It is very irregular, occurring only once in two or three months, and also very painful. I have no favorable symptoms and one in a while pains strikes me in the heart and I have dreamy headaches. If there is anything you can do for me, I will gladly follow your advice."—Miss Mary Gonser, Ajrich, Ga., July 31, 1900.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—After receiving your letter I began the use of your remedies, taking both Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier. I am now regular every month and free from pain. Your medicine is the best that was sold during my one year."—Miss Mary Gonser, Aphin, Ga., July 6, 1900.

Nervous and Dizzy

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I wish to express my thanks to you for the great benefit I have received from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered constantly from terrible sickache, bad chills, was nervous and dizzy. I had tried different kinds of medicine but they all failed entirely. After taking three bottles of Vegetable Compound and three of Blood Purifier I was all right. I cannot thank you enough for what your remedies have done for me."—Miss Matilda Jensen, Box 18, Oconomowoc, Wis., June 10, 1900.

BABY'S BAWLS

MAM-M-MA!! DON'T YOU HEAR BABY CRY?

Do you forget that summer's coming with all its dangers to the little ones—all troubles bred in the bowels.

The summer's heat kills babies and little children because their little insides are not in good, clean, strong condition.

Winter has filled the system with bile. Belching, vomiting up of sour food, rash, flushed skin, colic, restlessness, diarrhoea or constipation, all testify that the bowels are out of order.

If you want the little ones to face the coming dangers without anxious fear for their lives, see that the baby's bowels are gently, soothingly, but positively cleaned out in the spring time, and made strong and healthy before hot weather sets in.

The only safe laxative for children, pleasant to take (they ask for more) is CASCARETS. Nursing mothers make their milk mildly purgative for the baby by eating a CASCARET now and then. Mama—all a CASCARET, baby gets the benefit. Try it! Send for a 10c box. Druggists everywhere sell CASCARETS today and you will find that, as we guarantee, all irregularities of the little and big children insides are

Charlevoix Sentinel.
WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

The American voters have always resented the efforts to substitute fiction for facts. They will not change their policy this year.

Matches were a dollar a gross, cheaper last year than in 1895. That was not much of a burden on the workingman or his wife.

It is safe to predict that the Philadelphia platform will not be framed by a committee of professional glucose manufacturers.

The invitation to the author Mr. Bryan to retire in favor of the unselfish Mr. Cleveland had not been accepted up to the hour of going to press.

Mr. Croker will have to hurry home to look after the honest Tammany committee who slipped into office through a mistake of the boss.

The foreign demand for commercial is becoming quite a factor, thanks to the efforts of the Department of Agriculture, under this administration.

Exports of corn in 1895, under free trade, were only 28,585,495 bushels, ought to find no difficulty in considering and passing that bill.

Outside of the city of New York, the bank clearings of the United States during the last four months of this year were $200,000,000 greater than in the corresponding months of 1895. There were good gains in all parts of the country except at New York, where the dull stock market lessened the boys' clearings.

If the sentiment among the Democratic members of the House of Representatives is divided in the same proportion as it is among the Democrats on the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee on the question of government aid to American shipping, the shipping bill ought to pass the house by a majority exceeding 193.

A bushel of corn worth an ounce of silver! Twenty years ago, the May 1 corn was worth 52½ cents a bushel in the New York market. Silver was the worth 52½ cents on the same day, in 1876, at the time of Hyatt's prophecies as to free silver, corn was worth only 21½ cents on the farm. But it has kept on advancing in price under the gold standard.

A member of the Democratic National Committee is reported to have "consumed" Democratic Representatives Chainer, Small and Randell, because they filed a report on the shipping bill in accordance with their honest convictions, and which report makes it impossible for the Democrats to make a partisan matter out of the shipping question.

In two years of the Cleveland Administration, 1894-95, we exported $152,105,002 more gold than we imported. In two years of the McKinley Administration we imported $131,705,969 more gold than we exported. The difference to the country, in the two periods, was $283,810,971 in favor of McKinley. This doesn't include his billion dollar favorable trade balance.

In 1895, one of the years of Democratic disaster, the exports of American cotton goods were worth only $15,709,919. In 1890 they amounted to $53,653,944. Under the policy of protection there was an increase of nearly $38,000,000 in the foreign demand for American goods, and fully equivalent to this amount was gained by foreigners in American wage earners.

The free trade papers whose under the oft-repeated statement which they cannot deny that foreign ships can and take out of the United States each year $200,000,000 for carrying American imports and exports. There is no satisfactory answer possible to the suggestion that by paying this money to American ship owners the result would be to keep the money at home, employing our own people instead of employing aliens abroad.

At the conclusion of the Court d'Alene investigation in Washington, when Attorney Robertson was arguing on behalf of the miners of Idaho, he told the Republican members of the Military Affairs Committee regular speechlet for the future to subpoena Edward Boyce, a labor leader, and Father Becker, the Catholic priest. He said that no less than five applications had been made for these witnesses, but the committee would not send for them. Chairman Hull interrupted Mr. Robertson, calling his attention to the fact that all of the Republican members had voted in favor of subpoenaing Father Becker, and all of the Democrats but one had voted against it. It was a tie vote, and the proposition was lost. Mr. Sulzer, during one of the hearings, dramatically demanded that these witnesses be sent for, but when the matter was brought up in executive session he was silent and made no motion. Un-another occasion he voted against sending for Father Becker.

Idaho's bank deposits amounted to $10,242,000 in 1895. Last year they were $1,358,000, showing an increase of $704,000 in five years. A horse demand for land and protection to wool were the main factors in bringing about this prosperity under the Republican administration.

If the shipping bill is considered in the house at this session and passed it will be impossible for the Democrats to make a partisan issue of the subject, in view of the report in favor of the principle of the bill filed by Representatives Chainer, Small and Hansdell, all of whom are Democrats.

Of the seventeen members of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee thirteen favor government aid, and four oppose it. As might be expected, each of the opposing four is a Democrat. All of the Republicans and three of the Democrats favor governmental aid, and this the pending ship subsidy provides.

If three out of every seven Democratic Representatives in the House are in favor of subsidies and against free ships, so three of the seven democratic members of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committees are, the united Republicans ought to find no difficulty in considering and passing that bill.

Outside of the city of New York, the bank clearings of the United States during the last four months of this year were $200,000,000 greater than in the corresponding months of 1895. There were good gains in all parts of the country except at New York, where the dull stock market lessened the boys' clearings.

English Spoken in Miscellaneous.

One finds much English in the streets of Montenegro. Probably it is the native language of nearly one-half of the white population. One also notices a preponderance of Scots there, for Montenegro are in the ascendant in Bloomfontein. Many members of the volkraad are of Scottish descent, as such frequently occurring names as Fraser, Macfarlane, Stuart, McGlashan and Innes should only testify. The talk in the parliament house is officially in Dutch, but there is a straw twang about much of it which suggests that it has been acquired on the banks of the Tweed or Clyde.

First Railway in London.

There has lately disappeared the last remaining relic of the first railway in London. In 1836 an act was passed authorizing the construction of a railway from Wandsworth to Croydon, the sleepers being of stone. Horse power was provided for horses. The scheme included a dock at Wandsworth, and it is the ancient wooden mooring posts thereabouts which have just fallen into the waters of the Wandle.

Italy's Sanitary Precautions.

Italy's sanitary precautions are interfering with the Jubilee pilgrimages. A trainload of 561 Mexican pilgrims was stopped at the frontier and informed that every one must be thoroughly before entering Italy. The pilgrims refused to submit and were sent back to Marseilles. The government at Rome believes that the measure is due to the prevalence of smallpox in southern France, but the clericals maintain that it is devised solely to scare intending visitors to Rome.

An Red Glasses.

In the China-Japanese war all the Japanese soldiers were supplied with smoked glasses.

British Firearms Law.

There were two acts passed by the British parliament which affected the franchise—the people's act of 1884 and the redistribution of seats in 1885. The former introduced a service franchise extending to householders and lodgers in counties. The suffrage which in 1867 had been conferred on boroughs and borroughs extend the three kingdoms on a footing of equality as regards electoral qualification. Every man possessed of a household qualification or lodger qualification if the qualification is situated in England or Scotland is entitled to be registered as a voter, and when registered to vote at an election for such county or borough in Ireland he would be entitled to be registered as a voter at an election for such county or borough.

A Busy Girl.

Jennie Cross of Mill Grove is one of the two American girls entitled to wear the famous Napoleon gold star of the French Legion of Honor, founded by Napoleon Bonaparte. She is only 19 years old, and the medal was awarded to her nearly seven years ago to commemorate a deed of exceptional bravery and presence of mind. In the afternoon of Sept. 19, 1889, she saved a World's Fair special train from plunging through a burning trestle. There were many prominent French officials on this train, and they secured for her the golden star and scarlet ribbon. Jennie Cross has accepted the invitation of the National Humane Society of France to be a guest of honor at the Paris exposition.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Modern Telephones.

There is hardly a ranch in the Panhandle or the western part of Texas that does not have its own private telephone system, and the barbed wires of the pastures serve as wires exclusively for the purpose. A number of these private lines are 300 miles long, and messages are sent and received daily that distance without a break.

Quiet People.

Some people are never comfortable unless they are making others uncomfortable. They do not burst out in electric flashes of wrath and thunderstorms of passion, but keep up an incessant friction of unkindness. They chill all their associates, and dampen their spirits, and keep on doing so day after day, without the relief of an occasional outbreak of temper on the cool customer that follows a storm.

Triumph of Engineering.

One of the latest triumphs in the engineering world consists in the construction, shipment by steamer, and arrangement transfer to railway transportation of a steamer of 1,400 tons displacement, which was finally put afloat in Lake Baikal, Siberia, not less than 5,000 miles from St. Petersburg.

Curious Laws We Longer Made.

Of all the curious kinds of laws, especially old laws, the most curious is that which is called point tresse. It is very rare and was made of human hair. French collectors say it exists in the present day only in their cabinets. It was confined to the early part of the eighteenth century.

Obtaining a Square Freshman.

A professor of English literature in the Kansas university came pooled this action: "In communicating with theseniors the students will whisper as often as possible: 'Do you horrible want morning to find this written up for his strike.' That is to say, talk to yourself in whispers as much as you can."

To Give Away a Son.

Admiral Dewey is going abroad for a while. He probably hopes that by the time he returns his fellow-countrymen's sense of proprietorship in him will be so far modified that every act of his private life will not be regarded as everybody's business and he can have a little peace.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Remains of a Civil Fanal.

Boston antiquarians have been ascertaining themselves over the discovery of an ancient relic found on the hill of Blackstone, near Derby. The relic consists of a Civil or six hundred years old, and according to geologists it would probably form part of the martial equipment of prehistoric warriors.

Woman Shoots a Burglar.

Dr. Amos C. Jewett, station of Ion Gallanded House, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., fought a fire at that institution, handling a large extinguisher until the flame drove back and then took twenty-six of her male and paralyzed charges safely from the building while suffering from a broken wrist.

Killed in Sport by Bull Fights.

The average number of horses killed in Spanish bullfights every year exceeds 5,000, while from 1,000 to 1,200 bulls are sacrificed.

Primitive People's Weapons Found.

In the Urga museum of curiosity material which Capt. Cromer has brought back with him from an island in Hudson's bay are some very primitive metals and weapons. The huge bows are strong with bind sinews and the arrows are very indeed. There are bows and arrows with flint points or heads and harpoons of bone similarly pointed. There are also knives of ivory, walrus tusks, and many curious ivory ornaments and carvings are also, pipes made of walrus tusks, sinew threads, rawhide dog whips, arrow heads wrapped in sinew, and carried in this fashion to replace those that might be lost in the chase. They also carve in slate and stone—some of the finest little figures of polar bears, musk-ox, reindeer and walrus as well as of human beings, are interesting.

A Phantom Barometer.

A curious barometer is said to be used by the reindeer of the Alaskan tribes, which inhabit the northernmost province of Ghin. It consists of the nasal shell of a cub. The dark shell is white in fair, dry weather, but indicating the approach of a moist atmosphere by small red spots, as the moisture of the air increases it becomes entirely red and remains so throughout the rainy season.

A Strange Case of Fasting.

A strange case of fasting is puzzling the doctors of Hinsel. At Nizamch, a village of that city, a young girl of 17 fell ill at the beginning of November last, and has not since taken nourishment in any form. The illness seemed after a severe attack of dyspepsia and although exceedingly weak the patient has all her faculties, and appears likely to continue her fast for a considerable period.

ISLAND'S PEOPLE STARVING

A Miserable Condition at Nelmarkin, in South Pacific Ocean.

Letters have been received from the Navy Department which state that the crew of the schooner Nelmarkin, which was wrecked on Nelmarkin island, in the South Pacific ocean, and which was reported lost, is safe. The island is inhabited by a tribe of cannibals, who are starving. The island is about 1,000 miles from the nearest port. The crew of the schooner, which was wrecked on the island, was saved by the natives

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The damage suit of Mrs. Cynthia Foster vs. the village of Bellaire, for damages sustained in falling on a defective sidewalk in May of last year, in which she claimed $5,000 damages, on trial in the circuit vacated Saturday afternoon in a verdict of $500 for plaintiff.

A dispatch from Kalkaska tells of a case of wholesale poisoning there. A E. Holmes, a farmer living near there is ill but will probably recover. His wife is in a critical condition, and R. H. Swaine, the hired man, is dead. A man named Hudson has been arrested on suspicion.

Boyne Citizen: A. J. Beardsley has sold his mill plant and standing timber, at Thumb Lake, to A. Fred Hixon. Consideration $10,000. Mr. Beardsley retains the use of the plant until September 1, and all logs now in the yards. His out for this season will approximate 1,200,000 feet.

Charles Woodard, an employe of Wigle & White, lumbermen, was instantly killed by falling from the rear car on train No 2 on the R. C. & E. R. railroad at Boyne City on the 24th. Mr. Woodard's home is at Maple Hill, near Elk Rapids. He was killed near the same place where Conductor Wickett lost his life only a few weeks ago.

The land and forest caterpillars are doing a great amount of damage in Benzie county. Fruit and forest trees are rapidly being denuded of foliage. The cutings and droppings from these insects are blighting throughout the forests. Much fear is entertained lest they seriously damage the fruit trees, and fruit men are fighting hard to save their orchards. Nothing can be done with them in the forests.

East Jordan Enterprise: Died, Saturday morning, May 19th at 1 o'clock, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry S. Sheldon, of this place, Mr. Robert Hoell, aged 82 years 3 months and 11 days. Deceased was born near Cayuga Lake in the state of New York, but the most of his life has been spent in Michigan, and for the past thirty-five years he has resided on his farm near Ironton, being one of the pioneer settlers of Charlevoix County.

Central Lake Torch: Probably as fine a lot of hardwood lumber as ever was drawn over this road left Central Lake last Thursday. There were 19 cardloads of white maple and elm. It was all clear stock and made a handsome train load. It went to the transfer dock at Charlevoix to be loaded on barges, the maple going to Tonawanda and the elm to Manitowoc. The lumber was cut out and sold by the Cameron Lumber Co., and the Central Lake lumber Co.

The Traverse City Eagle gives the following account of the death of Mrs. Otto DeWitt, near Mabel Station last week: "The spot where the accident occurred is known as Hammond's crossing and the railroad makes a curve from each way in it. It is considered a dangerous crossing and almost an impossibility to know when a train is approaching, especially if the wind is blowing. The train was making down grade. The horse was struck and instantly killed, and the buggy smashed to splinters. Mrs. DeWitt was thrown against the baggage car and her head was cut, and the body badly mangled. Mr. DeWitt was thrown away from the train and received only some bad bruises on spot, the hip being quite severe. An inquest was held by Justice Andrew Troy and after the coroner's jury had viewed the remains they were placed in the baggage car and brought to this city and taken to the home after taking room of Will S. Anderson. Mr. DeWitt remained at Williamsburg till the northbound train last evening when he went back to his home at Rapid City to comfort his three children left motherless by the frightful casualty.

Mal King, state trespass agent and Alex. McDonald, returned Monday from a trip to Beaver Island where they went to look for trespassers on government property. We did not learn what success they had, but Alex says they had a great trip. The new priest, a German, entertained them and gave them valuable information in the shape of old photographs of the Mormon docks, just as they were when Thomas Bedford shot King Strang. Also a photo of the house of Dr. Noble, one of the great men of the community, who in the old days had eight wives. We have not time to give the old stories that Mal told the priest, and the almanac are not available so we could cut them out as we print copy. The Germans also the Dreiemar noticed as visiting the island some weeks ago, on the Fanny C. Hart, are there and were much pleased with the island, but unfortunately the title to the property they had in view was all tangled up, and they could not trace it. This is too bad, for these Germans were of a superior class, and were intending to start in to raise fruit. It is believed that fruit culture there can be made a big success, and with a few hundred Germans as fruit growers, the old population as farmers and fishermen, and the resulting overspread of the island as a great summer resort, would make a Japan of that place. We hope the Germans will be able to trace the title back and get a claim on the property they want.

Marine Notes.

The schooner Smith & Post discharged a cargo of coal for Wilbur this week.

The schooner Kate Lyon is receiving repairs and paint at Washburn's yard.

Capt. Tim Smith is back again in the pilot house of the tug Martin, with a one-third interest, the other owners being the Crane & Whitford Sons Co.

The tug Iona I. Wheeler, Capt. Sigh. Small, is here doing business. The Wheeler is a fine looking and fast boat, and is a valuable addition to the Charlevoix tug fleet.

Capt. Partridge arrived last Friday with the recently purchased tug Denis Brothers. The Denis Brothers is a double engine boat, and is said to be a good fruitless tug.

The steamship Manitou is conditionally chartered for an excursion trip to Buffalo by a large aggregation coal operators of the middle west, principally from Illinois and Wisconsin. She will make the trip the early part of June just before starting on her summer route.

Captains and owners of the idle fleet of schooners at Milwaukee still have blood in their eye. It was recently decided to hold vessels in port until wages are either raised in Chicago or lowered there. It was also resolved not to ship union crews under any circumstances. Vessels which employ non union crews are to be permitted to sail. The vessel men are very firm, and declare that they will fight to a finish if it takes all summer.

Beaver Island Letter.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:—It would take too much space in your valuable paper to answer distinctly the correspondence of "Mr. St. James" from Beaver Island, but permit me to correct a few points:

Rev. Fr. Zugelder, in regard to the public dances, as well as in every direction, takes pains to support the parents as well as the majority of the people in their efforts for order and law, without interfering with any decent liberty and enjoyment.

The church is not ready yet, and will soon have a tower and bell, and will, as I hope, satisfy even such a selected taste as "Mr. St. James."

In regard to the school in the harbor, I know nothing from experience, but the school in Peaine township I have attended repeatedly with pleasure, and I must say that I regard the sister teaching there, as one of the ablest teachers I have found in an American primary public school.

Yours Truly,
F. PROTAS.

—The annual banquet and reception given by the High School Alumni Association, to the Class of 1900, will occur at the Hotel Elston to-morrow evening, June 8th, from 8:00 to 11:00 p. m. Banquet tickets on sale at M. V. Cook & Co's pharmacy. Those who are privileged should procure them at once.

—Two East Jordan chaps came down and got drunk and frisky Monday. The marshal nailed them, but the redoubtable Jim O'Brien, of Hayes, also drunk, interfered to an extent that enabled the East Jordan sports to escape. It cost O'Brien $14.— $1 in Justice McCartney's court next morning, after Jim had spent the night in jail.

—Bryan's Commedians, playing a week's engagement here, are not barring the houses that they merit. The company is as good as any company that ever played here, with the exception of Wm. Owen in "the legitimate." The people are all of excellent ability. They play to night, Friday and Saturday nights, and, at the prices, 10, 20 and 30 cents, should fill the opera house.

—The will of Dr. David Ward, the recluse millionaire lumberman, was published at Pontiac last week. His will is worth $150,000 in cash and the "street and Orchard Lake homesteads. He leaves $12,000 each to his grandchildren and several bequests of $1,000 to $4,000 each to relatives in the state. The estate is to be held in trust for six years, and anyone making an effort to break his will is cut off without a penny.

—Myer Levinson did a brave act last Thursday that should be added to his graduating laurels to-night. One of the omnibus teams became frightened and ran away. The bus was empty, and as the team passed north across the bridge, Myer caught the rear step of the vehicle, and with much difficulty climed aboard. When he reached the driver's seat, he found that the lines were dragging on the ground. The young man here demonstrated his pluck and courage by climbing out on the tongue, hauling in the lines and stopping the team. The adventure was a decided credit to him.

—Thursday, June 21st, will occur in Charlevoix the seventh annual celebration of the Central and Northern Michigan Association of K. O. T. M. and L. O. T. M. The best "fleet" propose to make it the biggest day in the history of Charlevoix. Probably Charlevoix will on that day have more strangers within her gates than ever before.

—The general conference of the M. E. church has removed the time limit from pastorates, so that a preacher who is giving satisfaction can stay as long as the congregation wants him, instead of being limited to five years. This places the Methodist preacher on an equal footing with those of most of the other denominations, where the people who make up the church, and not the conference, are supreme.

—The first number of the "Hoard-maker," published in Port Huron, Mich., and edited by Frank F. Rogers, C. E., who for eight years has been employed as city engineer by Port Huron, and who has made careful studies of the subject all over the eastern states, is on the editor's table. Probably every supervisor, city engineer and highway commissioner in Michigan will receive this number, and as the price is only 15 cents a year many interested in the question of better roads will subscribe for it. As future members will give estimates and all sorts of practical information relative to drainage, culverts, roadbeds, etc., etc. It will be invaluable to highway commissioners and surveyors.

—Petoskey Record: The Charlevoix Sentinel quoting from the Record as to the acreage of the Door county shore in Wisconsin seen by Mr. Wayson Snyder, says: "We are sorry to dispel this beautiful illusion, but what Mr. Snyder probably saw was Fox or Beaver Island." Mr. Smith is undoubtedly a man of intelligence, but his intelligence is not impeccable in scientific matters. There are thousands and tens of thousands of people who have witnessed the mirage of Beaver and Fox islands in both the forms of "looming" and "mirage at sea," the former being due to refraction alone and the latter to both refraction and reflection. Mr. Snyder made no mistake, nor would any one of hundreds in Petoskey have made any mistake had they been up early enough to have seen the phenomenon. In recognizing the Wisconsin shore, for it assumed the whole portion including the space between North Fox and Big Beaver.

The Newspaper Convention.

The SENTINEL received a telegram Tuesday from J. C. Dewey, editor of the Owosso Times, and secretary of the Michigan Republican Newspaper Association, that the date of the convention to be held in Charlevoix would be July 19th and 11th.

And now the work begins to make the event a "howling success." The benefit of this convention to Charlevoix cannot be overestimated, and the benefit will be in the ratio of our hospitality.

The secretary will send announcements to every Republican paper in Michigan and the local committee will send equally widespread invitations to the line journals.

The committee, of which Capt. Wilbur is chairman, will arrange for the steamboat excursion, probably on the Columbia. The editors will be housed in the down town hotels, as far as possible, and the convention will probably be held in one of the lodge halls.

The officers of the Association will, from this on, secure promises of attendance from as many distinguished people as possible, which will include, if possible, both U. S. senators and several members of congress. Without doubt most of the candidates on the Republican state ticket will be present, as the Republican state convention will be held June 27th.

Now let Charlevoix do its full duty, and the event will be one long to be remembered.

The Central Lake Free Silver Fair Association has offered prizes for clearing land in that township. For the best five acres will land cleared, the first prize $25, second prize $15, third prize $10.

Petoskey Record: Judging from the Chicago papers the projected Cheboygan and Petoskey railroad, this Petoskey street railway, is up against some thing. The papers do not indicate the obstacle but we infer that it is in some way connected with connections and terminal facilities at Bois de Sioux, which, about a month ago, stated months ago that everything was lovely at the Cheboygan terminus.

Marine Notes.

The Milwaukee sailors' strike was settled Saturday and a large fleet departed.

The steamer Hackley re-painted this week, and the boat looks so good to Capt. Pete, and that is saying a good deal.

The steamer Joe now runs to Manitou-island, via St. James, leaving here Monday, Wednesday and Friday, returning Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The steam pinnie Pilgrim, after extensive repairs to her boiler and machinery, is in commission for the East Jordan route, and more down Tuesday.

South Haven special 5th: Capt. S. M. Ross has purchased the sunken schooner Lottie Mason. The vessel has been on the bottom for six years. On Monday he will begin the work of raising her.

Chicago papers state that lumbermen and owners of lumber vessels all over the lakes are making an effort to get together and do their own loading and unloading in order to dodge the burdensome expense of the dock rates of the Longshoremen's Union.

The big steamer Owego, later vessel to the Cayuga, sunk near the straits, went ashore near Mackinac island light last Thursday. The tug Favorite went from Cheboygan to her assistance. The stranded craft lay close to the island, about 2,000 feet from the shore in 20 feet of water, among small shoals and boulders. Four of her waterbottom compartments were punctured, three of them on one side. These compartments of course, are filled. The Owego was released on the 1st.

Detroit Free Press: Capt. James Hood, the wrecker, was in the city a few days ago, and told a local vessel owner that he would again attempt to raise the Cayuga next month, and that he would be successful. The Cayuga lies in a deep hole," said Hood, "and I have got to lift her out of that so I can tow her into shallower water. Were it not for that fact I should have moved her into shallow water last year. I think I could have done the rest of the job is easy. At one time last year I had the whole right of the steel pontoons I use much fast. When air had displaced the water in the last one she began to rise at the stern, when it was operating. It had come up several feet, when the fastenings of two pontoons gave way and they shot to the top in rapid fire time, of course the boat dropped back into the hole again.

"I am about to try a lot of rubber bags to assist in raising the hull. They are of ordinary rubber, covered with canvas hard this time, and of a strong kind of composition. The man who controls their use lives in New York, and they are same kind as were used with success in raising the Spanish steamer Maria Theresa, sunk at Santiago. He wanted to go into partnership with me on the Cayuga deal, but I couldn't see it that way. I propose to put them fast inside the hull and I am positive they are strong enough to do the work within. I leaking, the pontoons will be first used. No, there are no projections in the hull to cut the bags or injure them in any way. The Cayuga will be in Harrisonville this year."

It is understood that Reid and his backer, Edmund Hall, the wealthy lumberman of this city, have $40,000 tied up in the Cayuga already, to say nothing about the money spent in wages, repairs and other incidentals, and they are determined to raise the boat if it takes several years to come, even if the expense of it is twenty thousand dollars. Once she is raised, the job of repairing will be nothing to that which confronted the workers who repaired the Harlem last year. Her port bow is driven in where she was struck by the J. L. Reid, but somewhere she is sound. The hole is not an unusually big one. She is a well-built steel steamer, built by the Cleveland Dry Dock Co., of Cleveland, about ten years ago, 290 feet keel, 40 feet beam and 25 feet depth of hold, and carry 3,600 tons on 17 1-2 feet. Were she in shape just now she could easily be dispatched to any of the railroad lines, all of which need tonnage. Hall and Reid have a contract, it is said with the London underwriters for the raising of the boat, but the terms are not known. Scores of residents scoff at the idea that the Cayuga will ever be floated, but Reid advises them to keep their opinions to themselves for a short time longer, and they will have no need of them.

NEW DAM BLOWN OUT.

INDIGNANT CITIZENS ENFORCE THEIR WILL WITH DYNAMITE.

Obstruction at Manistee Lake Promptly Removed Yesterday Morning—Fish and Game Protectors Shown Unexpected Resistance in Minnesota Towns.

The Remains of a Gigantic Dam Constructed Across the Manistee River at Sawyer Lake Blown Out Yesterday Morning by a Party of Unmasked Men—Sheriff Nelson Was Present but Did Not Attempt to Interfere.

The building of a gigantic dam across the Manistee river at Sawyer lake, in Manistee county, was begun last fall by a party of unmasked men. It was reported that the dam was being built for the purpose of flooding the lumber land in the vicinity, so that it could be easily rafted out. The work was carried on rapidly, and it was generally supposed that the men who were building it had secured the permission of the property owners, and that the dam was being built for some legitimate purpose. The work of erection was carried on in broad daylight, and the men who were at work did not attempt to conceal their identity. The dam was constructed of logs, and was a very substantial structure. It was about 200 feet long, and was from 8 to 10 feet in height. The water was backed up for a mile and a half, and the lake was flooded for a considerable distance. The work was carried on for about two weeks, and when it was completed it was generally supposed that the dam was there to stay. It was not to be expected that the people living in the vicinity would allow the lake to be flooded, and the property on the shores of the lake to be ruined, without a protest being made. The people who had built the dam had taken the precaution to secure a injunction against the lake being drained, and it was generally supposed that the dam was there to stay. The people who had built the dam had taken the precaution to secure a injunction against the lake being drained, and it was generally supposed that the dam was there to stay.

Yesterday morning at about 10 o'clock a party of about 50 men, all of them masked, and armed with rifles, shotguns and revolvers, made their appearance at the dam. They had evidently been informed that the dam was to be blown up, and had come prepared to do the work. They had with them a large quantity of dynamite, and they had no difficulty in placing it in such a position that it would do the work they had come to do effectually. The men who had the dynamite in charge were masked, and they had evidently been drilled in the work they had to do. Sheriff Nelson was present with a large number of men, but he did not attempt to interfere with the masked men who were blowing up the dam. The sheriff said that he was there with a large number of men to prevent any more dynamite being placed in the dam, and that he had no other object in view. Our total foreign trade this fiscal year is likely to exceed two and a quarter billion dollars.

When Agoncillo receives the November election returns he will change his opinion of his American correspondents.

Middle-of-the-road Populism possesses the courage of its convictions. But the other variety possesses the faculty for political dickering.

When the Kansas City convention denounces trusts the Tammany delegation will ask for a special dispensation in favor of its ice combine.

We have imported $80,000,000 worth more free goods this fiscal year, up to April 30, than in the corresponding ten months of the last fiscal year.

Indications are that our total foreign trade for the fiscal year ending June 30 next will be $900,000,000 larger than in the year ending June 30, 1899.

Twitgewitzer is the running mate of pessimism, and Tillmanism is hooked up with idiotcracy. The face of Democratic leadership is constantly turned gloomward.

If the Democratic policy of free ships should be carried out American shipowners would be compelled to go to Great Britain to see one of their ships launched.

The Hon. Arthur Pue Gorman thinks the Hon. Joseph P. Allgeld should take a course in the Art of Political Silence. Mr. Gorman is said to be an excellent tutor in that particular branch.

Democrats always say that protection checks the customs revenue. The facts from the Treasury Department's figures prove otherwise. When we have our home market we can afford to buy some foreign luxuries.

Just at the present time the Democratic party is long on sympathy for the export trade. This is the same Democratic party that declined to exhibit any sympathy or concern for the American laborer when it framed and enacted the Wilson tariff bill.

Representative Fitzgerald, of Boston, will find it difficult to explain the shipbuilders of his district what interest they have in the purchase of ships built in Great Britain, which is the plan by which he would build up the American merchant marine in the foreign trade.

If the Boer people will but take the pains to investigate they will ascertain that they are being utilized for campaign material by some rather small Democratic politicians. The latter do not hesitate to take advantage of any cause that promises returns.

While the discussion goes on as to whether Congress shall come to the relief of American shipping by passing the pending admirably drawn free ship bill, the foreign shipping doing 92 per cent of our foreign carrying keep right on taking $200,000,000 a year out of the United States—about as much as is annually collected at all of our custom houses.

Before Representative Fitzgerald, of Boston, became a Democratic "leader" he used to declare that he favored protection for American ships in competition with foreign ships. Now, in order to show that he is a "leader," he has been compelled to right about-face and oppose protection and advocate free trade.

Democrats who are so eager to show their hostility to Great Britain by trying to involve the United States in a war with that country on account of the Boers in South Africa, are at the same time doing their utmost to secure the passage of an act of congress that would permit British-built ships to be registered as American. Democratic preaching is different from Democratic practice.

Colorado's bank deposits have more than doubled in five years, increasing from $6,779,733 in 1894 to $20,058,377 in 1899. The number of people who had bank accounts increased in the same time from 19,832 up to 30,047. This can be credited up to McKinley prosperity, and Jeremiah is just for the fact that thousands of Colorado men who left the Republican party in 1896 are returning to it.

Under the American administration of Porto Rico the old Spanish taxes are being gradually abolished. The consumption tax, landing and transportation charges are now done away with on petroleum, charcoal, firewood, fresh beef, veal, pork and mutton, fowls and eggs, fruits, vegetables, flour, cornmeal, bread, rice, beans, salt pork, ham, bacon, fresh fish, codfish, herring, soup paste, dried beef, sugar, molasses and coffee. The Porto Ricans will now be able to take a little breathing time, and, while paying less taxes and having more money for food.

Kansas has experienced a few cyclones but they were not of sufficient severity to offset the prosperity now raging in that State.

The selection of such men as Wood, Dale and Allen for governors of Cuba, Hawaii and Porto Rico rather tends to controvert the Democratic claim that our new possessions are being made the abiding place of spoilsmen.

The Kentucky Democrats are clamoring for the election of United States senators by the direct votes of the people. At the same time they are committed to the policy of electing governors by the skulduggery of partisan legislatures.

In order to secure employment at their trade the hundreds of shipbuilders in the district represented (?) by John F. Fitzgerald in Congress will be compelled to go to England—that is, if his policy of free ships should ever be adopted by Congress.

The Illinois Republicans have rolled a large ladle of Democratic expectations by holding a democratic convention and placing an excellent ticket in the field. The indications are that this is going to be a record-breaking year for Democratic disappointment.

A shovel cost 60 cents more last year than in 1896. Corn was 14 cents a bushel higher so that the farmer could buy two shovels last year, and the only additional cost would be his extra proof on two bushels of corn. Even then he would still have a cent left to put in the baby's bank.

Birmingham is shipping three train loads of pig iron per day to New Orleans, where it is loaded on vessels for the foreign trade. This is a measure accounts for the expansion movement in Alabama. The only regret in this connection is found in the fact that the output of the Birmingham furnaces is carried abroad in foreign bottoms.

Republicans are willing that the United States Government should contribute to the building of an American merchant marine, so that the ships employed in doing our import and export carrying may be built by Americans in home shipyards. Democrats, on the other hand, favor the purchase of ships built abroad by aliens, chiefly the English.

During the first four months of this year railway earnings for the whole country were 15.5 per cent larger than in the corresponding months of 1899. In the same months of 1898 there was an increase of 15 per cent over the earnings in 1897. In 1899 the increase was 4.5 per cent over 1898. Business has kept on steadily improving ever since President McKinley was inaugurated.

The frank and cordial treatment of the Boer envoys by the President and Secretary of State showed those gentlemen that the efforts to make it appear that the Administration is prejudiced against them are unfounded. Indeed, it was quickly made apparent to them that the Government had done all that it could do, for it had already tendered its good offices to bring about peace, a thing which no European nation had done.

With 9.36 own representatives on the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee almost equally divided on the shipping bill, three favoring Government aid such as the bill provides, and four favoring the free American registry of foreign-built ships, the Democrats are likely to sing low on the shipping bill during the campaign in discussing "the issue."

It is said that the chairman of the Democratic National Committee has not yet recovered from the surprise he experienced when, in attempting to "discipline" three Democrats for advocating in an official report Government aid for the building up of American shipping in the foreign trade, they told him that they were opposed to the dragging of the shipping question into partisan politics. "Party first and country last," is no doubt the motto of the chairman of the Democratic National Committee. The country is to be congratulated upon the fact that he represents but a section of his party, after all.

It is said that the reason the Democrats in the Senate don't file a minority report on the Pyne shipping bill is because they are as equally divided for and against the bill as their Democratic colleagues in the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, and that rather than have three of the latter advocate in one report Government aid and oppose free ships and oppose Government aid. And yet, these same Democratic Senators have the hardihood to threaten to make "a campaign issue" of the shipping question! They had better first get their bearings, as Daniel Webster once advised them to do, before they try to point out the course their political opponents should pursue.

TWENTIETH CENTURY SERMON

(Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.)

It is an amazing way the publication of sermons has spread within the last few years. Into Japan, Africa, Australia, Germany they have carried my thoughts.

There is a profound satisfaction in the proclamation of anything we have spoken. Years ago I used to preach to empty benches, but now, on the other hand, there is nothing more disappointing than not having called to a crowing audience. I have a sermon for every kind of a congregation. Those come to hear one thing and others come to hear another. Some come to hear music, others come to hear a sermon. Some come to see the people, others come to hear the preacher. Some come to hear a sermon on the prodigal son, others come to hear a sermon on the prodigal daughter. Some come to hear a sermon on temperance, others come to hear a sermon on intemperance. Some come to hear a sermon on the Sabbath, others come to hear a sermon on the Sahara. Some come to hear a sermon on the Bible, others come to hear a sermon on the bible. Some come to hear a sermon on the Jews, others come to hear a sermon on the Jewsharp. Some come to hear a sermon on the Ten Commandments, others come to hear a sermon on the Ten Commandments and the Eleven Apostles. Some come to hear a sermon on the Ten Commandments and the Eleven Apostles, and they will be sure to be disappointed.

In his issue of New York, one of the classics of American authorship, Dodge wrote humorously of the superstition brought out with American settlers. Dodge wrote humorously, but the superstition is not a matter of jest. It is a matter with the Dutch settlers of Holland, the peasants of Germany, the boatmen of Venice, the mountaineers of Switzerland, the peasants of Ireland, the Highlanders of Scotland, the peasants of Russia, the Arabs of the desert, the Hindoos of Hindostan, the Chinese of the Celestial Empire, the Japanese of the Island Empire, the Africans of Africa, the Australians of Australia. Why, the superstition is as old as the antediluvian world, and it is as new as the latest sunset. It is as old as the Pyramids, and it is as new as the last sunrise. It is as old as the Sphinx, and it is as new as the last sphinx. It is as old as the Alps, and it is as new as the last Alpenstock. It is as old as the Nile, and it is as new as the last crocodile. Another Philippine Letter From Corporal McCallum.

La Loma, Luzon, P. I., April 8, 1900.

MY DEAR SISTER:—For some unaccountable reason I feel like writing a letter this evening, six sticks, however, I don't know what I shall write about, so am rather inclined to think it will be somewhat of a failure, therefore, I will indict this effusion on the school machine.

To-day is Palm Sunday and some of the boys went out before reveille this morning (5:30) cutting palm leaves to put up in the quarters not palm leaves such as you see in the states, but leaves fourteen feet long, that reached to the ceiling and some to spare.

To-night our menu for supper was cream (a lollipop) codfish, stewed (alias hrullers, alias doughnuts) and coffee with condensed milk for a treat. The crullers were the great feature of course, with the coffee with milk a close second. You should have heard the cries to trade codfish for doughnuts and the inquiries for the "seconds on doughnuts" which, need I say, never came.

I have one tale to tell which is not as pleasant to think of as crullers nine of the boys who came over on the same transport that I did was drowned while we were on the last lodge guard, March 2, and the name was Wm. Foster, and he was from Illinois, Co. He was a jolly good fellow, but rather reckless. Three of the boys left the bridge during the night and went over to the native village and got drunk on "tuba," and came back. The next day natives found Foster's body. There were wounds on the body and there was some suspicion that everything was not just as it appeared to be, but when the body was gotten into Manila it was so badly decomposed that the doctors considered it unsafe to make an examination. The two men who were with him were tried for being absent without leave. I cannot think that they were in any way to blame. The wounds might have been made in a thousand ways while the body was in the river.

Of late there have been all kinds of rumors afloat about our leaving this country to relieve some other outfit which is to go to the States. Some think we may go into Manila, and it is known that General Bates, who is at Iloilo, has asked that the third be sent there to relieve some of his troops. I am sure I hope we will not be here in the rainy season, for the road between the quarters and the railroad is in mighty poor shape, and at one of the bridges there is absolutely no protection. We have a test, lost it would take a lot of work to raise the ground high enough to prevent everything floating off in wet weather, and the test is not large enough for fifteen men in dry weather.

We have stuck up palm leaves and made bamboo shelters covered with rice straw to keep off the sun, but in the rainy season I am afraid we would have to stand under our ponchos and shiver when we were not rubbing our guns to keep them from looking like relics.

Got a letter from home while down at the bridge dated February 19th, in which you mention a mean at a swell affair which included salmon. The boys over here have had so much salmon that the sight of an empty can is more to be feared than a regiment of gooooos. When we get back to the states salmon will have to be scratched from all menus of which soldiers are to partake. Some of the fellows have received boxes of wedding cake, etc., from the States and you would never imagine what a sensation such a box will create in a company.

I go on guard "Monday," and as tomorrow is the day for relieving the bridge guards, I will get sixteen days to counter-sign time. It's rather tiresome in quarters and I would rather go to the bridge every other time, but when I have done eight days straight duty am dead willing to get back to quarters and get a few nights rest and sleep again.

If "Charlevoix the Beautiful" could have the bathing opportunities which we enjoy at the bridge, its fortune would be made. When I am down at the bridge I spend from four to six hours a day in the water. I never knew what it was to swim before; I believe I could swim for an hour at a stretch without tiring.

We have lots of fun when the tide is out, shooting fish and lizards for them. One day we got a snake four feet long—Alonzo Ross with a shot and then dove for him. I had the nerve dried and was going to make a belt made of it, but the ants destroyed it.

I have a bunch of shells stuck together that I fished out of the Rio Grande one day, which I will send home for a paper weight sometime when I get a chance.

I see the papers in the states are talking smallpox and the Bubonic plague over here. I think three or four cases have been found in Manila, but there is no fear of an epidemic. The conditions here are very different from those which prevail in India.

We shipped a tiger and his whole family a few days ago from here. They are sent to a tiger island. The natives have no fear of leprosy and from the fact that it is not found offener here. I do not think it finds very congenial soil in which to develop.

I suppose at home spring is on in all its freshness, while over here we are in the hottest part of summer, about corresponding to July and August in the States and in about two months we can expect to commence to get wet thirty-one days and nights in a month if not more.

Well, I guess my spasm has about worn itself out—cannot think of more to write, so will close.

A Life and Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines, of Manchester, Va., writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Expecting after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Medical Discovery which wholly cured me. Hundreds have used it on my advice and all say it never fails to cure throat, chest and lung troubles." Regular size 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Hines & Co.'s drug store.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Cadillac Traverse Herald: Neil Gallagher, king of the Beaver Islands, was in this port Saturday, etc., etc., etc.

The Odd Fellows are making great preparations for their coming anniversary meeting at Elk Rapids June 12. Traverse City, it is said, will have a grand 4th of July celebration. A large sum of money is already pledged for that purpose.

It is said that the season at Mackinac Island will not open this year until June 15, and never business is reported to be better than ever before. Over half a million tourists visited the island last year.

Central Lake Herald: The Ellsworth M. E. church has been detached from this circuit and has a minister of its own now, Rev. G. W. Howe having been assigned to that place. Mr. Howe formerly preached at Norwood.

East Jordan Enterprise: Representatives of the Wheeler Electric Co. are in the village installing an electric lighting plant at the East Jordan Lumber Co's mill "B." The dynamo has a capacity of 150 incandescent lights.

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Charlevoix County Agricultural society held in East Jordan lately the dates for the county fair were fixed, September 18, 19 and 20. A committee was appointed to revise the premium list and arrange for a number of special attractions.

Traverse City Special: The Board man Steve Electric Light and Power company closed a deal where the company becomes owner of the light business of H. O. Campbell & Sons, absorbing the entire system, which has been established nearly 20 years. The purchasers have already a large business, furnishing nearly 7,000 incandescent lights besides street lighting. The city purchased the waterworks plant of Campbell some weeks ago, paying $43,000.

Petoskey Record: On Thursday last, Rev. Geo. S. Barnes attended his 71st year, and the event was celebrated at his cozy home on Grove and Woodland streets, in the evening by a small company of his friends and neighbors. It was a very pleasant occasion and much enjoyed by all present. Mr. Barnes is in possession of all the vigor of mind and body that belongs to a hale and green old age, and doubtless has many years of life before him yet.

For some time past an old gold miner residing in Bancroft has been prospecting in the hills around there and along the bluffs surrounding Crystal Lake. This week he gave a number of specimens of sand obtained from several different localities, into the hands of the chemistry professor at Hillsdale college, who upon analysis, found the sand was composed almost entirely of iron in a free state. The deposits extend over a large amount of territory and further investigations are on foot.

CLASS OF '00.

The Annual Commencement Exercises of the Charlevoix High School.

Charlevoix was proud again last Thursday evening, when at the M. E. church, to the Class of '00 were given the five little parchments that mean so much to the student.

The house was crowded, the decorations beautiful, and every feature of the exercises a success.

The music was good, the program was the address of Hon. L. G. Palmer, of Big Rapids. Judge Palmer's topic was "Ancient and Modern Theory furnishes abundance of material for the address. For about an hour he spoke, entirely to the class, of which, not every word was listenely interesting to the large audience. The address was an inspiration, and, but was good hard, common sense, in every phrase and sentence, and pleased everybody.

The "Class of '00" will be remembered as the class that closed the 19th century. And now comes the orators of 1901—the class of the 20th century.

In this article it is not inappropriate to state that the event of Thursday night was satisfactory to our people, as demonstrating the fact that schools have had a good management. Mr. Kane, of the school board, very properly said that the school year has been a success of one under the supervisionship of Mr. Tice. It is equally evident that we have never had a more satisfactory corps of teachers. Our schools are our pride, and it is not saying too much to say that Charlevoix is satisfied with its educators.

THE BANQUET.

The Hotel Elston banquet Friday night, given in honor of the graduates, eclipsed every previous Alumni banquet. It was a big success. The hotel management scored nothing to make the feast a memorable one, and to it was.

The following was the program:

Instrumental Duet ..... { Minnie Mattie Bedford / Ethel Lee Campbell
Address ..... Hon. L. G. Palmer
Vocal Solo ..... Miss Florence Smith
Presentation of Diplomas ..... R. L. Gillespie
Benediction ..... Rev. Geo. Barnes

A pleasant and historic feature of the banquet was the presence of Mrs. M. J. Stockman, who was the first school teacher in this district. Mrs. Stockman almost forty years ago, taught the first organized school, in a log building but a few rods south of where the Belvedere now stands.

Every feature of the 1900 commencement was a success.

Norwood Notes.

Edmond Derry and wife, who have been visiting at Parker McIntyre's for two weeks, left for Battle Creek Friday.

G. V. Nash shipped about 300,000 feet of maple last week, the steamer Meridian taking over 500,000 to Buffalo.

Mrs. A. S. Richardson and Mrs. E. Cameron attended the state W. C. T. U. convention held at Petoskey last week.

Children's day was observed on Sunday evening at the M. E. church, with the usual exercises. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and the children acted well their part in the performance.

R. H. Ward, census enumerator for Norwood and Marion, was here last week. Having completed his work in Norwood, he will now count the people in Marion.

Hay Nuisance, our teacher, closed his school about two weeks ago, and got into serious trouble at once. He was married to Miss Pilsnip, of Torch Lake, on June 2nd.

R. H. Harris, wife and daughter, and Mrs. Wilson and daughter Belle, of Ellsworth, were here Sunday.

Quarterly meeting for the Norwood M. E. charge will be held at Barnard next Saturday and Sunday, conducted by Rev. A. E. Nagler, of Charlevoix, and Rev. S. C. Tiney of this place will preach at the M. E. church at Charlevoix Sunday morning.

Mr. Henry Isook, of Marion, and Miss Mae Chase, of Norwood, were married at the residence of A. N. Chase by Rev. S. C. Tiney, on Wednesday, June 6th. A reception was given them at the home of the groom's parents, about 40 people being in attendance.

Ship in peril, indeed! Ship in peril, or not, we had seen no sign of Miss Mills. Ship or no ship, we had seen no sign of her. Ship or no ship, we had come to the conclusion that she was safe on board the Lizzie Lane, and that we had gone on a wild goose chase in our anxiety to get to Speed of a Cricket Ball.

A cricket ball delivered by a fast bowler often attains a speed of a mile a minute. When C. T. Turner, the Australian bowler visited Woolwich arsenal, in England, he bowled through the electric screens in use for measuring the velocity of projectiles. It was found that, at a point representing half way between the wickets, the velocity of Turner's ball was 81 feet per second, or 55½ miles an hour. At this rate the ball would traverse the pitch in 18-fifths of a second. Several bowlers, however, do far more than Turner, and this would bring their pace to the mile per minute.

American Dramatics the Greek.

Hispania, the Greek society in the American College for Girls at Constantinople has recently presented a modern Greek drama. It was written and the entertainment was directed and superintended by Mr. Haghiorkiza, president of the Greek society. Hypatia, is the title. The play is described as "Hypatia, Daughters of Conflict," and was in three acts and accompanied by a chorus after the style of the old Greek tragedies. Although Hypatia is a long green lizard, plays which have been taken from ancient mythology or classical times, this was its first attempt at the modern stream. The students of the American College were assigned last year at the universities of Athens and of Beirut.

Golf in Singapore.

Singapore is only 85 miles from the equator, yet everyone who can leaves at midnight. I played golf once, just some holes, and then gave up, and I was soaked—fairly wet through. We played over a Chinese graveyard, without the permission of the dead people or the consent of their relatives, and we had to stop every time a funeral came by, and we had to wait for it to go by, and then we had to hide behind a tombstone, which had hitherto been one of the noblest trees in that country. The elephant grew quite jealous one day after golf, and came into a Chinese when, failing to attract the attention of a family little maid, who was the cause of his sexual trial, the elephant filed his clock with water and followed the unfeeling damsel from head to foot.

The "City of Champagne."

The town of Epernay, in France, is a most extraordinary city, the already rich soil is seen to be being blown out of the solid chalk cashed with piles of champagne of all blends and qualities. There is no light in this labyrinth of stairs, crossings and turnings except when the apparatus of sun afford. All is dark, dank and damp, with the thermometer down about zero. The largest champagne manufacturers in Epernay possess underground cellars which cover no fewer than forty-five acres and contain 3,500,000 bottles of wine.

Sixty Unpaid Doctor's Bills.

Postmaster Washington and the 450 of New York are busily relating the pretty love story of Miss Anna Pauldin, niece of Senator Dorsey and Lieut. John H. Kirk, U. S. N. Miss Paulding, the beauties of the Prince of Senator Dorsey's house, went to Washington heartwhole and fancy free. During the session she met, and is said to have surrendered her heart to the dashing lieutenant. Lieut. Kirk is a gallant fellow and a professional lover. He is enthusiastic over the charms of his sweet. He feels aggrieved that his favorite niece should have accepted a proposal from another fortune.

Don't Disturb the Cat.

When H. M. Stanley was writing "Through the Dark Continent" he was in the habit of spreading the maps and charts upon the floor. One day his favorite cat went to sleep on a chart spread out on the hearth rug. By and by the chart was wanted, and one of the assistants went to turn puss's away, when Stanley stopped him. "Don't disturb the cat," he said, "we can get on without the map until she wakes up. If you only knew how good the sight of that cat was to me you would pity and her more than where she is." After his trials among uncivilized tribes the sleeping cat was to him the symbol of domestic peace and comfort.

Reclaiming Carbonic in Siberia.

It is somewhat remarkable and emphatically suggestive to notice the prevailing way the utilizing of waste in railway cars is commonly reckoned in America. One carload is commonly reckoned as eight horses or forty men, not so in America, 20,000 or 40,000 pounds. Such somersaults came naturally from the idea that the prime object of railways seems a wastful action in early cases, horses or mules. Fortunately the adoption of the railway has ever been for peace, and for the benefit of mankind rather than for its destruction.

The Seattle Girl.

This is the city of the sensible girl, of the girl who has had a better education than the women of the last generation dreamed of, and who has profited by it sufficiently to have a far greater number of interests. She is an intelligent companion to her father, he also is an earnest student of both politics and business matters. She is a leader of friendship with her mother, for she is no longer desirous of making him treat her as a wicket, and who most invariably he indulged, she can take a rational interest in his business, and she is not afraid of walking and playing with him.

Old Missions in Texas.

There are a number of old missions in San Antonio that were built by the Franciscan monks, still picturesque in their ruins. They are located just outside the city, and are known as the missions of San Jose de Aguayo and San Juan Capistrano. The missions are always attractive for tourists, and of late an effort is being made to keep them in repair.

Some Regarded as Death.

Much regretting has been attached to artillery by those nations which are pagan. The Burmese and Malays regarded their guns as devils, and strove to enhance the killing power of their weapons by constructing their cannon in the form of dragons.

Celebration of the Holy Blood.

Prince Albert of Belgium has notified the ecclesiastical authorities at Bruges that he will be present at the celebration of the 700th anniversary of the bringing of drops of the holy blood. Every year the famous procession of the holy blood through the streets of Bruges is a sight that brings travelers and pilgrims from far and near. The richness and splendor of this year's pageant will rival the display of any religious ceremony that has taken place in western Europe for nearly a long year. Cardinals, bishops and ecclesiastical delegates from far and wide will assemble on the occasion. A magnificent historical tableau will form part of the religious pageant, in which the nobility of Bruges will take part.

Injecting Serum for Pneumonia.

Serum therapy has attended the treatment of leprosy by the injection under the skin in various parts of the body of the antitoxins of Carinette. This serum was a woman 35 years old, and in three months she received forty-seven injections. As a result she was much improved, having her sex typical appearance and the infiltration in various parts of the body disappearing. The bluish color of the face changed to a healthy red. Some albumin that was present disappeared with several tubercles. The skin became softer and fairer, and she gained fourteen pounds in weight.

The Elephant's Revenge.

An extraordinary incident occurred at the Jardin des Plantes. The circumstances appear that in water the tassels are located, and a young lamed personally interested had great attention bestowed on him to the neglect of a big elephant, which had hitherto had the run of the noble in that quarter. The elephant grew quite jealous day after day, and took some to a Chinese when, failing to attract the attention of a family little maid, who was the cause of his sexual trial, the elephant filed his clock with water and followed the unfeeling damsel from head to foot.

Cities Have a Nuisance.

When the owner of a city lot builds a large barn immediately adjoining one in front of his neighbors house, on the outskirts of a city, where he keeps a number of cattle, horses and other stock, the chances are very slim that the neighbor and his family or their kind, the neighbor had a right to have the barn moved to a distance. This was decided by the court of first instance of Texas, in the case of Hockaday vs. Worthen.

To Extract a Splinter.

It may not be generally known that a splinter deeply buried in a child's hand may be extracted by steam. The method is very simple. Put a wide-mouthed bottle upon the hot water, wave her water and place the mouth upon the injured spot. The steam will draw the flesh down when a little pressure is used, and the steam in a moment or two extracts inflammation and splinter together.

Dr. Phillips Brooks.

Only one noted Protestant divine has been a bachelor. It was Phillips Brooks, who seemingly possessed every quality desirable in a model husband. The cause of his remaining single never seem to have been understood even by those who were closest to him. It has been said that he was cured of a clergyman by his early friendships with women, while his passionate fondness for children was remarked upon.

In contrast to the sensational "Crosses over the pass open to the senate who have little more than the salary allowed to their position, or perhaps of $5,000 per annum. Scrap Iron Again Valuable.

In old times any sort of scrap iron was of value, a broken-down stove, or an old iron pot, or anything whatever of iron could be sold to the junk dealer or to any who came into possession of anything of that sort knew that he had something that could be disposed of for money. Then, as the supply from some a time when all such things were in market value whatever. Rusty stove pipe, old iron hoops, old grates and galvanized pipe were thrown on the rubbish heap, but with the release price of iron all these things have a value. Anything with iron in it is worth something, consequently, a thousand dollars per ton.

ROBBER ACTS ALONE.

EXPLOIT OF A RECKLESS CALL FORNIA HIGHWAYMAN.

Executes His Hardly Two Lucrative Robbery Without Any Visible Sinister Motive Being Achieved—Has Been Unknown Heretofore.

The Sonoma County stage of Wednesday, while passing over the mountain road between Santa Rosa and Stewarts Point, was stopped at 10 o'clock in the morning by a masked man who ordered the driver to halt and throw down the express box. The driver did so, and the robber, leaving the box where it was, ordered the driver to drive on. The driver did so, and when a few rods away looked back and saw the robber take the box and disappear in the brush. The amount of the booty is not known, but it is supposed to be quite large. The robbery was the work of a lone highwayman, who acted without any visible motive, and who, so far as known, never before committed a robbery. The driver could give no clue to the robber's identity, and it is believed he is a stranger in the country.

A Former Charlevoix Girl Weds.

The following is taken from the Union City Indiana Weekly: It was a happy event which took place at the home of Rev. DF and Mrs. J. W. Hallenbeck, Wednesday afternoon when their daughter, Maud, was united in marriage to Mr. Leslie Edwin Perkins, of Detroit. The ceremony took place at four o'clock beneath a beautiful canopy of bunting and vines, banked with ferns, plants and white syringa. The decorations throughout the house were very elaborate, the arrangement being under the direction of Mr. C. F. Hagerson.

The bride was beautiful in white organdie, elaborately trimmed with white satin ribbons. She carried bride roses. The attendants were little Hilda Hobart Vernor of Detroit as ringbearer and Pauline Irey of Marshall as flower girl. They were both daintily dressed in white.

The ceremony was performed by the father of the bride, assisted by his uncle, Dr. Geo. L. Cole of Los Angeles, Cal.

The bride and groom were showered with many beautiful, ornamental, and useful gifts and congratulations from their numerous friends, both here and abroad. A reception was held from seven to eight o'clock, after which, Mr. and Mrs. Perkins took their departure for Detroit where they will be at home to their friends at No. 420 Cass Avenue.

This was an event in which Union City people felt an unusual interest, as the bride, during her short stay in our midst, had endeared herself to all. Her musical accomplishments and literary tastes gave her a place which will be very hard to fill. The music loving public as well as the church and Sunday school will greatly regret her departure. They will, however, follow her with their best wishes, and with the hope that her returns to Union City may be frequent, and her visits as long as her new station in life will permit.

School Commissioner's Column.
A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

During our visitations recently we found one school closed that we expected to find in good working order. Upon inquiry we were informed by one of the board that the teacher had violated her contract and they had closed the term of school. From the teacher we learned that the school board had incorporated, in the contract, a clause that she must board in the district. In this case it meant that she must board with some member of the school board. The teacher tried it in good faith but her sanitary needs were such, she was compelled to seek a healthy place outside of the district and hence, against the school board.

This is a rare case and we advised the teacher never to sign such a contract again. They might just as well incorporate in the contract that the teacher must wear wooden shoes during the term of school, or that she should not carry an umbrella when it rained.

The longer experience we have in the supervision of the schools the more necessary we see for the unit system. We visited two districts recently and found one pupil in each school and this in the same township. The expense of maintaining schools could be greatly lessened under the unit system. One of the greatest hardships being borne by some of the tax payers in this county is the effort to keep in existence a poor struggling school district.

McKINLEY AND ROOSEVELT

The ticket That Will Sweep the Country. in November.

At Philadelphia today, the Republican National Convention placed in nomination Wm. McKinley for President and Theodore Roosevelt for Vice President.

From The Philippines.

TUGUEGARAO P. I. April 27, 1900.

DEAR AUNT: I received your letter all right and was very glad to hear from you. I am enjoying the best of health and am making good wages as I have developed into a first class barber and make from $15 to $20 per month besides my wages. I turned out some awful looking heads of hair to commence with, and caused the boys to shed considerable blood on the start, but they said that they came here for that purpose, and told me to go ahead as the Filipinos could not do it.

Everything is getting pretty quiet here now. We have not had any trouble since the 14th of last month. We go out into the country two or three times a week and capture a rebel captain, major or colonel or something but hardly ever have any trouble unless they show fight or try to get away, when we have to shoot them. I don't believe I have hurt one of these people and am glad of it as I think that after they understand us and find out that we really mean to do them good, that they will be good citizens and will drop some of their treacherous ways. They are naturally warm hearted and friendly, but they have been fled to and misused so much by the Spanish that they are afraid to trust us and we really can not blame them.

We have a civil government established in this town and the officers are filled by natives elected by the people. We have a major, lieutenant, 12 policeman, and a committee on public works—all natives, and they are doing some good work directing the streets so that they will shed water during the rainy season, arresting Ladrones, thieves, etc. This is only in the town though. Out in the country and small villages the insurrectos are recruiting soldiers that will no doubt give us a little trouble during the rainy season. We catch a recruiting officer or two nearly every week, but still there are others ready to take it up.

We have 7 months' rations and supplies stored here in the church to last us through the rainy season, which commences next month; also lots of ammunition and a two pound cannon mountain cannon and if they do jump onto us they must look out.

The Colonel (Bullard) was just here and says that perhaps we will have to move our battalion to San Pablo, as the 1st battalion are nearly all sick at that place, and there is a regular hotbed of insurrection over in that country. Well, one thing about the boys, they do not mind moving as they are used to it, but we have good quarters here and it is a healthy place and I do not like the idea myself.

I am orderly at headquarters here and have a private room all to myself and is going rooster that fight all the time. The monkey has just pulled out a hand full of the rooster's tail feathers and is picking his teeth with them. They are comical little brutes and furnish lots of amusement for the boys. The natives are having cock-fights this afternoon, most every native has a rooster on which he will bet his last cent. They have a cock pit here in town and they all gather there on Sundays. They put little knives on the spurs as sharp as razors, on the chickens' legs and then turn them loose, and sometimes they only make one pass at one another and it winds up in the death of one or the other. It is great sport, but the natives enjoy it.

We saw something comical the other day while out scouting. We had a little brown with a band of ladrones and had captured several prisoners. We sat down about noon and ate our dinner of de-bed ham and hardtack, and had given what we did not want to the prisoners. The dusted been said a wrapper with a picture of a devil on it. One of the natives picked up a box and had eaten quite a lot of it when he saw the picture. His eyes commenced to rice out, and he began to run his finger down his throat with one hand and cross himself with the other. He thought he had been eating the devil. The officers nearly split themselves laughing. The natives are very superstitious.

Where we are now we cannot even get a postage stamp. I have kindly the boys to pay 25 cents for a stamp to write to their girls.

I got a letter from Mr. Manchester, of Harbor Springs; he wants me to hurry up and get out of the army and come and work for him again. I am thinking of joining the navy when I get mustered out of this. I believe I would like it first rate and can make good wages. I would get $30 a month as bagler, besides what I could make running a barber shop. Of course, I would make you all a visit before I enlisted in the navy. I would like to be in a gunnar old sea fight once.

I am getting to be an expert on the bugle—can triple tongue and get in all the notes.

Well, I must close for this time, but will write again soon. Do not worry about me, as I am taking good care of myself and will not turn up my toes unless it is in the line of duty. If I do there, why its all right. I won't think to keep from it, so do not worry about me and write soon.

Yours Affectionately,
H. S. HOCKSTEIN,
Co. I, 20th U. S. V.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republicans Meet and Do a Good Work of Business.

The Republican county convention, on Wednesday did its work harmoniously and well. The delegates from the several townships were representative men, and no more harmonious political gathering was ever held in Charlevoix county.

The permanent organization was effected by the election of H. E. Newville, of Evangeline, and Chas. Willard, of Hudson, as chairman and clerk respectively.

The convention then proceeded to the nomination of county officers with the following result:

Judge of Probate—J. M. Harris.
Sheriff—W. J. Pearson.
Treasurer—Henry C. Cooper.
Register—F. A. Kenyon.
Clerk—Darwin F. Meech.
School Com.—A. W. Chew.
Pros Atty.—A. B. Sinclair.
Court Com.—L. A. Fitch.
Surveyor—A. R. Holdmen.
Coroners—L. W. Bauman, W. H. McCartney.

W. J. Pearson was elected chairman of the county committee, and F. A. Kenyon secretary.

The following delegates to the several conventions were elected:

STATE—Wm. Harris, John Ward, A. J. Stroud.

CONGRESSIONAL—F. J. Meech, E. N. Chisk, H. E. Newville.

SENATORIAL—L. S. See, A. L. Cutler, Frank Kenyon.

REPRESENTATIVE—J. M. Harris, F. A. Kenyon, L. S. See, Geo. W. Beaman, R. A. Emery, W. J. Pearson.

The time of our going to press prevents any lengthy editorial comments on the county ticket. We cannot help saying however, that it is a good one, and that it will be elected by the usual Charlevoix county majorities. We shall have more to say next week and thereafter.

THE MACCABEES.

The Celebration a Big Success—Large Attendance.

The Maccabee celebration here today (Thursday) was a stupendous success, so far as numbers are concerned. The crowd was immense.

But the event was seriously injured by rain, which began falling at noon, continuing all the afternoon.

Many features of the program had to be eliminated, particularly the park exercises. The band contest came off in the rain at four o'clock. Three bands were present—Cadillac, Kalkaska and Traverse City. Only the two first named were contestants, and between them the judges were unable to decide. The decision was practically a tie, recommending that the total of the three prizes be divided between the two bands.

The decorations were creditable, particularly the two triple evergreen arches. These were lighted by electricity and were a credit to their designer.

Very little disorder was noticable on the streets, and taken altogether, the celebration may be voted a success.

BONAPARTE AND THE BRITISH.

SENATOR C. B. CLARK

TALKS ABOUT THE PROSPERITY OF OUR RAILROADS.

Shows Difference in Their Condition Now and Under Democratic Administration—More Men at Work Now and More Wages in Consideration.

Washington: "There is no better index of business prosperity in this country than the condition of our railroads," said Senator Clark from Montana, who is chairman of the Senate Committee on Railroads. "Their condition is a barometer. When the railroads are prosperous we know that the people are prosperous. When the railroads are in the hands of receivers, or their business compels them to trim and economize, we know that the people are the victims of business depression. In my judgment the condition of the railroads is more satisfactory now than ever before. Not only are their failure shares, but also those of the dividends and interest-bearing bonds are climbing and reaching the goods.

"Between the years 1887 and 1892 there were 2,000 miles of road put up for sale in the aggregate earnings of the railroads of the United States. In 1893 the freight earnings of all the roads were $270,000,000 less than in 1892. Adding this to the loss of passenger earnings gives a total loss of $1,120,000,000 in 1893 as compared with the foreign trade passenger earnings for all roads in 1892. In 1893 the loss in the passenger earnings of the roads was $262,000,000 and in the freight earnings of all the roads $270,000,000

Charlevoix Sentinel.
WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

The greatest national problem now to be solved is the upbuilding of our shipping in the foreign trade.

During the last ten years we have bought from foreign countries an average of 777,151 tons of sugar each year. Most of this has come from countries that buy little from us.

Missouri wants President McKinley re-elected. Frank R. Moore, editor of the Daily Herald, of St. Joseph, says: "Democracy has nothing to offer to the public," but he predicted that the democratic brigade will turn out solid for McKinley in November.

Our national prosperity is becoming more and more dependent upon a steady and large increase in our exports. This suggests that our continued dependence upon foreign ships for 90 per cent of our foreign carrying is a great national danger.

"The humiliating sight is seen," says Arthur Sewall, who for years kept his ships running under "cover of the (American) farmer growing wheat at a cost of 30 cents, or thereabouts, a bushel to get it from the Pacific ships to the consumer abroad." No wonder he advocates the ship subsidy bill!

The sugar trust did not get the gift of $15,000,000 with which the Democrats tried to present it under the joint resolution of Congressman Richardson, of Tennessee. This time it was to wipe out the tariff on all sugar brought into the United States from Cuba and Porto Rico, the duties on which last year exceeded $14,000,000. As the whole of this sugar is bought by the sugar trust and Cuba alone, from which we have less little sum to divide among that monopoly's stockholders and the Democratic resolution passed the House.

Idaho fruit sold at the Chicago market in 1896 for just enough money to pay the freight. This year it has been sold at $1.50 per crate of twenty-five pounds, the freight being $1.00 per 100 pounds. Hay sold in Idaho at $4.50 per ton in 1896. This year it has sold at $8 per ton. Hogs sent there for 3 cents per pound in 1896. Within the last few months similar hogs have sold for 4½ cents per pound.

"It is necessary to attract capital to the skip-owning industries by some national effort, the reward of which to the nation will be the immense increase in the national industries that I have pointed out," says Arthur Sewall, who four years ago had second place on the Democratic national tickets. "That," he continues, "is what is intended by the subsidy bill; and nationally, therefore, he advocates its passage.

The Treasury Department has sold about $28,000,000 of its surplus, and will use about $20,000,000 more in redeeming sugar present bonds, thus creating a saving in interest to the Treasury Department. On this account it was not deemed advisable to reduce the war revenue taxes at the last session of Congress. The committee on Ways and Means, however, has obtained leave to sit during the recess, and should the present rate of surplus continue, a bill to reduce the revenue will be pushed through at the next session.

Since the establishment of the tin plate industry in the United States, there has been saved to this country upwards of $100,000,000. We used to import Welsh tin plate, made by the Welsh trust, to the value of $20,000,000 a year. The Welsh tin plate trust is not subject to our laws, and page clinging to the way of taxation toward the United States Treasury. Still the Democratic party fought tooth and nail against taking away the trade from them and giving it to American factories.

Among the many acts passed during the last session of Congress were the gold standard law, bills providing for the government of Hawaii, Porto Rico and Alaska, the free homes bill, amendments to the pension act, and in its last amendment to the Sherman act of 1890, making it as effective and as far-reaching as the constitution will permit. These were some of the things done by the Republican representatives. They also did more to call a halt on legislation proposed by the Democrats, which was of a bad and questionable character.

West Virginia's coal output increased from 11,406,000 tons in 1895 to 18,750,000 tons last year, giving employment to nearly 11,000 more men, who worked every day in that year, instead of a 100 days in 1895. The back deposits in that State have doubled within the same period. Trade failures have decreased by twelve. The value of the sheep has increased by 50 per cent, while the price of wool has doubled. Tobacco is worth double and some money now than under the last Democratic administration. The tanner, mills and factories are running full time and it is safe to predict that West Virginia will stay in the Republican column.

In an earnest appeal for the passage of the ship subsidy bill, Hon. Arthur Sewall, the Democratic candidate four years ago for the Vice Presidency, says: "It is time that we brought the maritime power of America to the old honored position it held before the Civil War gave it a setback from which it has never since recovered."

It is denied by Benzie county people that the fruit crop of that county will be a failure as recently reported through the Detroit Free Press. On the contrary it is asserted by one of our Frankfort exchanges that the crop could not be better for an abundant crop, and that the danger most to be guarded against is a possible poverty in the bearing of next year through overbearing this year.

Ubinsky Dockmark.—Mr. C. A. Cockwood, G. P. A. of the L. & L. and Mr. H. F. Moeller, G. P. A. of Pere Marquette, in company with the local representatives, Messrs. Quackenbush and Hastings, held a consultation here last week by which some very important matters were decided. Privilege was given the Pere Marquette to run two trains per day to Harbor Springs, in order to accommodate their through travel. In lieu of this the G. R. & I. have the right to an equal amount of track privilege over the Pere Marquette.

A statement showing the rank and amount of salaries of railroad officers issued by First Assistant Postmaster General Heath. The following are included in the advance of $100 among Northern Michigan officers, the amounts given include the more: Traverse City, $2,200; Ludington, $2,200; Cheboygan, $2,000; East Jordan, $1,200; Elk Rapids, $1,300; Harbor Springs, $1,300; Kalkaska, $1,200; Manistique, $1,400; Petoskey, $2,000. Adding the others betterting an advance of $200 in Frankfort, making a salary for that office of $1,300.

Cheboygan Tribune.—The writer who in Detroit last week met Mr. Hibbard the promoter of the railroad from Cheboygan to Petoskey, and St. Ignace is confident that the road will be constructed. He stated that the papers, including survey, profile, estimates, of cost of building the road and of prospective business were in Boston, Mass, where they were being considered by capitalists and looking men interested in railroads. He felt assured that the result would be favorable to the building of the road.

Traverse Bay Eagle.—At one o'clock Tuesday morning, John Tomlinson of East Eighth street passed away. Death came as a welcome end to much weak suffering and although not unexpected, the news was a great shock to the family and many friends. Mr. Carroll had not been well since last August but on Christmas day he suffered a stroke of apoplexy and since that time had been failing, although he was able to be around a part of the time until four weeks ago, when he suffered a second stroke. He realized that the end was near and arranged all of his affairs just as he wished them, but for the past two weeks he had been entirely unconscious. Deceased was born in London, Eng., of Irish parentage and was 76 years old. He came to this country when a young man and married Nancy Crawford, of New York city. Since the death of his wife now twenty years ago, he has devoted his entire life to his home and family. He leaves four daughters, one living in Chicago, another in Washington, and the Misses Minnie and Nettie Carroll, of this city. He will be especially missed by the two younger daughters from whom he has never been separated. Mr. Carroll came to this city nine years ago, since which time he has been engaged in the grocery business. It was his wish that his daughters should continue the business and it is very probable that they will do so. The funeral occurred from the Catholic church Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, and the interment will be made temporarily in Oakwood cemetery. Later the remains will be taken to the old home at Manchester, Wis.

Traverse Bay Eagle.—For some time the officials of the M. & N. E. road have been considering an extension of their railroad line into Leelanau county. It is now announced that the company is ready to start upon the construction of the road. J. J. Haskell, chief engineer for the M. & N. E. left this city this morning for Leelanau county to select the route for the extension. He has instructions to lose no time and get the route ready for work as soon as possible. Mr. Hatchell is disposed to think favorable of the route through Centerville crossing the Narrows at Provement. He will however also examine the east shore Carp Lake.

Traverse City Record.—There is a strong possibility that the Manistee & Northeastern Railroad Company may soon extend their line into Leelanau county. The officials of the company have had the extension in mind some time and last week they were here considering the matter more in detail. The result is that Chief Engineer J. J. Hubbell came up from Manistee Monday and immediately started into Leelanau county to look the ground over. The proposition has not yet taken definite shape but the suggestion is to run the line around the west side of Carp Lake through Centerville township, crossing the narrows at Provement and running over to Suttons Bay. While little is given out, it is supposed that the new line will run over to Lake Leelanau and make a connection with Empire. The line runs within a short distance of Lake Ware & City's shipping road now and a connection could be easily made there. This would open up a good country and afford a much needed mode of transit to the points mentioned.

Notice to Water-Takers.

It is necessary, on account of the new boiler not yet having arrived, to commence in the use of water and of power. By direction of the council, I am instructed to request all water-takers to help in this temporary embarrassment to the service, by refraining from sprinkling after six o'clock, when the electric lights draw so large a on the steam as to make it impossible to run the pumps at the fish dam, barely sufficient to furnish the supply of water used, when lawns are being sprinkled. I hope that all citizens will recognize the necessity of complying with this request, and will cooperate in bridging over the difficulty until the new boiler is installed. In order to keep lawns green, you will be permitted to sprinkle during the day until further notice.

Mr. W. A. Hines, of Manchester, Ia., writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my friends said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Medical Discovery which wholly cured me. Hundreds have used it on my advice and all say it never fails to cure throat, chest and lung trouble." Regular size 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Hixe & Co's drug store.

13. What is meant by legal tender?
14. What is subsidiary coin?
15. What is fiat money?
16. What are the two kinds of bank notes issued by a discount bank?

Government may be considered as the power by which communities are ruled, and the form and manner in which this power is exercised.

Every government, no matter what its form, exercises legislative, executive and judicial functions. The legislative makes the law, the executive enforces, as the president, governor, etc., see that it is enforced, while the judicial interprets it.

The principal forms of government are the monarchy, the aristocracy, the hierarchy, the oligarchy, and the democracy.

A monarchy is that form of government in which the sovereignty of the state is placed in the hands of a single individual. When the ruler is restrained by a national law or constitution, it is called a constitutional, or limited monarchy; when there is no such constitution it is called an absolute monarchy. All the principal monarchies of Europe are constitutional except Russia and Turkey.

An aristocracy is a state in which the government is entrusted to a select class, supposed to be possessed of peculiar aptitude for its exercise. Aristocracy rulers is a prominent feature in most of the governments of Europe.

An oligarchy is a form of government in which the supreme power is placed in the hands of a few persons.

A hierarchy is a government by the priesthood. The most perfect examples of modern times was that of the people of Israel during the early period of their history. At present a hierarchy rules in Thibet in the person of a Buddhist priest known as the Grand Lama. In countries where there is a union of church and state the hierarchy exercises certain functions of government.

When the ruling power is retained by the people, the government is called a democracy. The people may all meet to make their laws, as in the small democracies of Greece, or the twelve cantons, or the towns of the United States, or they may elect representatives to make their laws, as in the county, city, state, and federal governments of the United States. A representative democracy is known as a republic. Where all the people meet to make the laws, it is known as a pure democracy. This is only practicable in a small community.

But whether representative or not, a true democracy is free from the rule of one man, or of a few men, or of an aristocracy, or of a priesthood. It is the kind of government that is gaining today and it is likely to be the prevailing form of government in the world in the future.

—It is said that the postoffice department has under consideration a plan where the name of postoffices shall be placed upon the stamps where used. The idea is to provide means of identification when stamps are stolen from any postoffice, and also to prevent the purpetrating of postmasters, a practice in some of the smaller towns in the country. It will be possible under the new rule for the department to keep accurate account of all stamps sold and render justice to the honorable postmaster.

—The Michigan Sentinel, Chas. S. Stampton editor is still doing good campaign work for the republicans. The services of Mr. Hampton for the republican party is best illustrated by a recent conversation between the writer and a prominent Detroiter. The question—"What do your people think of Hampton's departure from Pickaboo?" he replied "The Democrats are glad, but the republicans are as mad as h—ll!" If Mr. Hampton will only lead down hadder, if possible, the State central committee may be induced to give him a book.

—Arrangements for the forthcoming Charlevoix convention of the Michigan Republican Newspaper Association are being perfected by the officers of the Association and the local committee. Among the guests of the Association on that occasion will be Hon. Holland Tuttle, republican candidate for Governor of Illinois, and Gen. John C. New, of Indianapolis, former U. S. treasurer, and now editor of the Indianapolis Journal. Without any doubt the republican candidate for governor of Michigan will be here, and other candidates on the ticket. The banquet at the inn promises to be graced by the attendance of more distinguished men than have ever before assembled in Northern Michigan. The banquet itself, we are assured by Manager Osborn, will be more than up to expectations. The magnificent dining room will be beautified by floral decorations, and music will be furnished by Newell's famed Rapids orchestra. There are two hundred republican editors in Michigan, and every one of them has received an invitation from the citizens of Charlevoix to attend the banquet. Charlevoix promises to send the editors home on the 12th of July where "the land is the best on the earth."

The Newspaper Convention.

The editor of this paper was to Grand Rapids Tuesday in conference with the officers of the Michigan Republican Newspaper Association. The details of the convention and banquet were settled, and the speakers for the banquet secured.

Secretary Dewey already has the assurance of a large attendance of editors and distinguished people outside the newspaper profession. The program at the banquet will be as follows:

Mrs. Clara Burrell, of Johnstown, N. Y., arrived at Wm. Harris' Monday, and will remain through the resort season.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Boy Crushed at Twin Plants, Killed in a Mill Accident.

Roy Crum, a member of the Crum & Whitford Sons Co., of this place, was fatally injured in the company's saw mill last Friday afternoon.

In attempting to place a large belt on a pulley his arm was caught and he was drawn over the shaft, the arm broken in several places and torn from the shoulder socket. When taken down it was found that he was otherwise seriously injured. Dr. Armstrong amputated the arm near the shoulder hoping to save his life, but all efforts were futile, and the young man died Saturday forenoon.

Deceased was 20 years of age. He leaves a wife, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Cooper, of Hayes. The funeral was from the residence on Monday afternoon, and the profound sympathy of the community was attested by a large attendance.

Roy Crum was a young man of sterling character, and possessed a large circle of friends. The sincere sympathy of this community goes out to the stricken wife and relatives.

The Platteblatte Ticket.

Since its birth the Republican party has never given to the people a National ticket possessing so many elements of strength as that nominated at Philadelphia last week.

The renomination of President McKinley was inevitable. His administration in peace and war has been that of a wise and patriotic statesman. Under his guidance the nation has advanced to the first rank of world powers, and emerged from a condition of commercial distress to an era of prosperity.

Roosevelt! Around the name of this gallant American clusters every kind of Americanism that America produces. It is an American tradition that the Vice Presidency is the graveyard of political ambition. Theodore Roosevelt will smash that tradition. There is no precedent or tradition that can obscure the brilliant genius of this knight errant. He will be elected president in 1904 as surely as he is elected vice president in 1900.

McKinley is renominated. A couple of names that will command the respect of every American. Two records of value in war, two records of statesmanship in peace; a combination that will sweep the country in November with a cyclone of enthusiasm.

There can be no doubt of its triumphant election.

The County Ticket.

The Republican county convention which met last Wednesday to nominate the county ticket did its work well.

The convention was composed of delegates from every township in the county—delegates comprising the best citizenship of the county.

The candidates, with perhaps, one exception, are well known citizens. They are all men of tried ability and of undisputed integrity. There is no necessity for reviewing the candidates individually. Most of them have served the county in other capacities, and their official records are above reproach, or suspicion. They have been tried and not found wanting.

The new candidates on the ticket—and there are practically but two—are young men of ability and unquestioned integrity.

The Republican county ticket needs no apology, defense or "explanation." It is good from top to bottom. Its nomination means careful and conscientious supervision of the affairs of the county, it means faithful discharge of its duty.

The Republicans of Charlevoix county have never made a mistake in their nominations.

Marine Notes.

The tug Mary McLane has gone to Traverse City to do log towing.

Capt. France, of Harbor Beach, has purchased the schooner Pearl, which was wrecked near Cheboygan four years ago, and has brought her here for repairs.

The rebuilt steamer Leo, A. Cummings went into commission Monday. The Cummings has been very much improved. She has been "lengthened," giving her nearly four feet more beam.

Notice has been given mariners by Commander F. M. Symonds, U. S. N., inspector of the Ninth Lighthouse district, that a red and black horizontal striped spar buoy has been established on a shoal to be known as Dalton shoal, about three and three-eighths miles south-southwest from Sheboygan lighthouse, northeast end of Lake Michigan, with not 14 feet of water over it, and that from ground extends to the northwest and southeast of the buoy and vessels should give it a berth of at least one-half mile.

"Hold on, Lake, don't interrupt! Let me finish my story. Mr. Thomson—of the firm of Thomson & Thomson—"

"Yes, I know the firm," interrupted Lake, impatiently.

"Well, Mr. Thomson—of the firm of Thomson & Thomson—was interested in the Mexican Development Company, and was a good deal of a friend of my father's. He was a good deal of a man himself, and he was a good deal of a friend of mine. He used to take me down to his place in the country every Saturday and Sunday, and I used to—"

"Hold on, Lake, it is important that I should see you now and talk with you about Jack!" said a quietly insistent but musical voice, and then the speaker who had actually followed the Coroner into the hall without being discovered, stepped into view. "Something serious has happened that it concerns me to know."

"Who is—who—what are you, Lake, before I tell you?" asked Mr. Lake, and he scarcely knew how to address the speaker, for the thing he had seen was not quite human.

"Stop—stop—a—a—Coroner!" said Lake, before the Coroner could reply to a word of protest. "Temporarily at the thing he had seen and had to a very high appreciation of the unexpected. Well, go on, Lake."

CHAPTER XIX.

The strange man, which was a stern black-bearded man, kept his gaze on Lake, though the clear eyes of the Coroner had shifted to the speaker and had begun to look inquisitively at the man who was so unlike the ordinary man of society.

"Now, Lake, go on!" said the Coroner, and Lake, in a tone of voice that was very unlike his ordinary one, began to speak in a hurried manner and with much emphasis.

"Well, I should see and converse with you about Jack! What delay? The conditions are very serious! Great are the consequences! Great are the consequences! Great are the consequences! Great are the consequences!"

"Stop—stop—a—Coroner!" said Lake, before the Coroner could speak, "I am very sorry, but I am a little excited! I am very sorry, but I am a little excited! I am very sorry, but I am a little excited!

WHEN DUELS WERE FOUGHT.

Death of a Man Who Was a Maker of Custard-Meat.

"About ten years ago," said a business man to a New Orleans Times-Democrat reporter, "there died at the Charity hospital an eccentric old German who once upon a time followed the general trade in the world. He was a maker of cocks of walk. Long before the war he had a little bowling shop on the north side of Canal street and the one of best barkeeps was a sort of private side-line. The armor he made was composed of small links of very hard steel, woven together so compactly that one could not throw even a pin through the interstices, and it was said that the cocks would turn either a knife or a bullet. They wore fashioned something like a sweater underskirt, and were intended to be worn immediately beneath the outside garments. In those days the use of such devices was popularly attributed to fellows who wanted to secure an unfair advantage in dueling and the reputation of wearing one under any circumstances was held to a reputation for humanity. Consequently the old German, dead I am so shy parts to expose his business and his customers must have come to him through many devious channels. I knew the old chap quite well when I was a lad and I have often seen him putting the most together in his little back room. He got the links from Germany and they came in long strips—about inches which he fastened together at the edges with small steel rivets, thus building up a tubular, like knitting a stocking. The cocks were made of wooden forms shaped like a man's torso, and were substantially made. After the war broke out a good deal was bought them quietly on a legitimate proposition, and for a while the old man had more business than he could attend to."

A DEPARTED SPIRIT

Attends His Own Funeral and Thanks His Friends.

Of peculiar interest were the funeral services of Henry Valentine. Mr. Valentine was one of the early settlers of this place, and was more than 80 years old. He was an ardent Spiritualist, and when he died he left directions for his friends, which were intended to be a practical demonstration of his belief. The services were held in the Universalist church. The preacher was Samuel Wheeler, a noted Spiritualist of Philadelphia, and he chose The Rainbow Bridge as his subject. When the meeting was given over into the hands of Mrs. Minnie Brown, a clairvoyant from Philadelphia, immediately after Mrs. Brown had spoken several raps were heard. Our brother has a message for Orvin F. Osgood," said the medium. He wishes to thank Mr. Osgood and his lady for their care in carrying out his wishes in regard to his funeral arrangements." Mrs. Brown then gave the information that Mr. Valentine was not alone, but that J. O. Hosmer, Mr. Parkhurst and Mr. Wyatt, former friends of the dead man, had accompanied him on his trip to the world. Several other shades of departed Spiritualists had come with them. They reported that they had made things favorable for Mr. Valentine and gave messages to the friends of the latter which were intended to cheer and comfort them. The audience seemed to be thoroughly pleased, and after a few more raps, Mr. Valentine's spirit and its companions vanished.—Adrian Enumeration (N. Y.) Special New York Herald.

Grave Filling Device.

A device for the expeditious filling of graves the invention of Henry H. Cameron, of Burlington, Iowa, is designed to fill the grave with earth after the coffin has been lowered, and to conceal as far as possible the actual throwing of the dirt upon the coffin, the most trying consideration of the grave ceremony to the bereaved mourners. It consists of a framework with detachable sides and bottom and a gate in the latter at ground; so it can be capable of being opened to allow the contents to fall. The frame is a flexible curtain, extending from the top to the gate, and designed to prevent the earth within from being seen. This receptacle is filled with earth previous to the ceremony and lowered to a convenient point. When all is over and the grave is to be filled, the receptacle is placed over it, and the gate opened, then gently lowered the last and drop in a much more fitting manner than the seemingly cold-hearted return of the earth with a spade.

Preacher Wants No Obituaries.

Rev. Mr. Arthur Cleaver of Towson, Md., said in a recent sermon: "The world's need is Christian manliness. Knowing this I shall no longer ride on railroads for half fare, what is good enough for you is good enough for me. Please do not discount goods to me because I am a preacher. I ought to pay my taxes, and my church should not be exempt. Christ did not borrow, beg, beteach His bread; He bought it like other men. If I am His follower I will pay my way as He did. Your friends, for four long years your hearty support and the prompt kindness of your treasurer have enabled me to do business on a cash basis. I feel more, but shall in the power of my manhood alone."

Geometrical Work of an Ant.

To the aid of mechanics measurements human beings can do many wonderful things, but to save his life no man could cut such a perfect circle without a pair of compasses as the garment did does out of a leaf with nothing but her jaws.

The Most Useful Tongue.

A teacher in a Dublin school, while examining his pupils on general knowledge, asked one small boy what was the most useful organ in the human organism. The child looked bewildered. To suggest the answer the teacher put it in another way. "What is it," he asked, "that your child brought home?" A light dawned on the little boy and he answered, "Bronchitis, sir."—San Francisco Wave.

SOME WONDERFUL WOUNDS.

Seen at the Front in the South African War.

From Moos river Sir William MacCormac, England's distinguished surgeon, who took the first with the soldiers in South Africa, sends to the London Lancet an interesting set of notes on the remarkable bullet wounds he has seen recently. The greater number of these wounds, he says, were caused by the Mauser bullet, and nearly all presented the characteristic features—a small circular, slightly discolored area, caused by a black mark. The exit wounds often were similar in a little larger, sometimes presenting a star like an inward wound and difficult to discover. When I saw them a week or two days after the injury they were for the most part healed—how these bullets fail to damage vital structures lying immediately in their path is nothing short of marvelous. The proportion of fatal chest wounds to those that are recovered from is believed to be small, but what the proportion precisely is cannot yet be learned. It is absolutely clear that one long and often both lungs may be traversed and in many directions without marked pulmonary symptoms, and often without phlebotomy, any symptom to bring trouble at all. A gunner who looked extremely well and said he had nothing to complain of had a hole seven inches long and three inches wide in his chest, which lovely on the back. Part of three of his ribs were carried away and the lung was exposed. The soldier lay in a trench on the field from 2:30 to 6 o'clock before he could be attended to. He was carried to the hospital at 12:30 where that night. Another private shot through the back of the jaw and said he had nothing to complain of. He had a little headache, and some trouble in swallowing, but in ten days the wound healed and the man apparently was perfectly well.

TRANSPLANTING A RACE.

Africans Undergo a Complete Transition Here.

Negroes who come to North America had to undergo a complete transition from the time they left the land of their forefathers. They were torn from the tropical part of the country in the middle where the weather is of a more temperate character than that which they were accustomed to. Their food, clothing, and even their shelter underwent a change. In lieu of yams, rice and fish, they had to partake of unaccustomed food and cooking made it so that they had never before tasted. Their shelter in Africa was a mere hut, while in America it was a comfortable house. Instead of being half naked, they had to wear clothes. Instead of being half naked, they had to wear clothes. To people of our own race this change seemed death. But some wonderful fate appears to have attended the trials of their deportation to a more genial climate. If we compare the transition in appearance a source follows with these changes, we see of what stuff the black man is made. A lotion of housework and of homes will turn the brush of the plantation away, but these tropical negroes take to their tasks and labor far more than the men of our own kind have done.

Proposed Highway for Horses.

A proposed highway from New York to San Francisco is an inner a straight line as it is possible to make it, with a width of 150 feet for the use of automobiles and bicycles as well as for the use of the horse. It is a thing that the horse-style stock of America will try to bring about. The project was seriously discussed at a banquet in honor of the opening of the National Highway commission, at the Waldorf-Astoria, in Chicago, at which photographs were made and the main adjustment. Besides a direct line from New York to San Francisco passing through Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, and Ogden, the idea was to make a highway along each street. Congress will be asked to appropriate one-third of the expense, and the private concerns, associations and drive on roads will be asked to pay the rest, the owners of property expected to decorate the right of way. The club and highway commission have on their list of members the names of some of the foremost men of America.

Hair's Kindness Exemplified.

A young company being desirous of having his compatriot criticised by one of his friends, he sent him to interfere with Hayes that he made his hair of 30 a. m., and explained his object to the old servant, who received the request rather early. Hayes overheard the colloquy from the head of the stairs, and demanded of the servant who was there. Hearing that the caller was a great artist, the great Hayes came down stairs to the gate in his shirt sleeves, and after shaking back, took him up to the piano, played off his composition, criticised it, and then sent away feeling like a master in consequence.

Bees Can Give Pointers.

A German doctor has made out in publishing great in bees by feeding them with sugar. He gave them nothing but sugarbeets without fat, and as much water as they would drink, with decided results in the determinate bees. Having modified the disease, he ordered each to drive out the other by administering powdered egg albumen, which restored to bees in their normal condition.

A Striking Contrast.

While South African soldiers have been facing animals the savants of the astronomical observatory in another part of South Africa have been peacefully gazing through their telescopes and have discovered a little star of the eighth magnitude, which is the smallest heavenly star that has yet been found among the stellar hosts.

Preacher Wants No Discounts.

Rev. Mr. Arthur Cramp of Oswego, Kan., said in a recent sermon: "The world's good in Christian measure. Knowing that I shall no longer ride convolvuluses for hard rate when it good enough for rich I feel enough for me. Please do not discount goods to me because I am a preacher. I ought to pay my taxes, and my church should not be exempt. Christ did not barter, beg, beneath His bread. He bought it like other men. If I ask the salesman to give me a discount, I ought to be kicked out of the ministry. Dear friends, for my long years your hearty support and the prompt kindness of your treasurer have enabled me to do business on a cash basis. SOME WONDERFUL WOUNDS.

Seen at the Front in the South African War.

From Modder river Sir William MacCormac, England's distinguished surgeon, who took the field with the soldiers in South Africa, sends to the London lancet an interesting set of notes on the remarkable bullet wounds he has seen recently. The greater number of these wounds, he says, were caused by the Mauser bullet, still fired by all presumed the characteristic Boer—a small circular, slightly depressed disc covered by a "black scab." The exit wounds often were slender, but a little larger, sometimes presenting a scale like an instant wound and difficult to discover. When I saw them a week or ten days after the injury they were for the most part healed. These bullets fail to damage vital organs lying immediately in their path is nothing short of marvelous. The proportion of fatal chest wounds by those that are recovered from to be, I have to be small, but what the proportion precisely is cannot yet be learned. It is a considerable fact that some dead, often with lungs may be traversed, and in many directions without grave symptoms, and often without protruding any sponge lung of lung tissue at all. A priori one would incline extremely well and be lost on nothing to complain of had a little cough, thorax long and three inches wide to the base, which would be the length of the lungs. Part of three of six ribs were carried away and the lung was exposed. The soldier lay in a trench on the field from 2:30 to 8 o'clock, and before he "fell to" attended to the wounded in the hospital at 12 he walked that night. Another private received a bullet in the middle of the nose and the bullet passed out the back of the neck. He had a little headache and some trouble in swallowing but to ten days the wound healed and the man apparently was medically well.

TRANSPLANTING A RACE.

Africans Undergo a Complete Transition Here.

Negroes who come to North America had to undergo an complete a transformation as any race. Not by the bill of many actual the best climate, to undergo the most revolutionary process. They were brought from the distant part of the earth, to the region where the white race is most at home. A race accustomed to a dry climate was exceedingly bound to a dry climate. They came to service under alien taskmasters, strange to them in speech and in psalms. They had to behave themselves in unaccustomed food and in coupling with an alien and antagonistic race. Within two shades in the same latitude, the negro mountain lively could use of them and which from a common ancestor. The friend parent of the race, that revealed his part to him, it was, as speaking, the Bible. Many those who know how the negro grown on the familiar ground of the one now find he is of warm and friendly nature, can conceive the physical and mental shock that this introduction to new conditions must have on them. To people of our own race it could have meant death. But those wonderful folk appear to have survived the trace of their departure in a marvelous way. If we consider the Algonquin Indian, in appearance a sturdy fellow with these negroes, we see of west stuff the blacks are made. A touch of housework and the man left was the breath of the aboriginal away, by them to special cases left to their tasks and trials far better than the lots of our own kind have done.

Proposed Highway for Bicycles.

A perfect highway from New York to San Francisco, in so far as a straight line as it is possible to make it, with a width of 100 feet, for the use of automobiles and bicycles as well as for the use of the farmer, is a thing that the Automobile club of America will try to make a reality. The subject was earnestly discussed at a banquet in honor of members of the National Highway commission at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, when plans were made for a nation-wide movement. Besides a street party from New York to San Francisco, passing through Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha and Ogden, the club wants a highway along each coast. Congress will be asked to appropriate one-third of the expense, and the states counties to contribute and other to make up the rest. The owners of property benefited by the improvement would be asked to give the right-of-way. The highway commission claims that on their list of members are the names of some of the foremost men of America.

Liszt's Kindness Exemplified.

A young composer being desirous of having his composition criticised by Liszt, called on the master for the purpose. Before he was ten minutes with Liszt's time he made his work of 7:00 a. m. and explained his errand to the old servant, who received the visitor rather early. Liszt overheard the colloquy from the head of the stairs and demanded of the servant who was there. Hearing that the visitor was a young artist, he great mistake, he said, he would see him. The young artist sheepishly called the master back and gave him up to the music played off his composition, criticised it, and sent him away feeling like a master in consequence.

Have Got Over Their Eating Habit.

A Dunkirk doctor has succeeded in having some of his boys by feeding them with meat. He gave them nothing but beefsteak without fat, and as much water as they would drink, with dangerous results to the undertaker. Some, thinking fattified the disease, he then undertook to drive out the evil spirit by administering powdered eggshells which caused to have to their normal condition.

A Stirring Contest.

While South African soldiers have been facing cannons the servants of the astronomical observatory in another part of South Africa have been peacefully gazing through their telescopes and have discovered a little star of the eighth magnitude which is the fastest traveler that has yet been found among the stellar hosts.

BROKER VS. HACKMAN

DRUNKENNESS ON "DRAUGHT" RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH.

C. H. Kinney Brokers, in Law Suits and Has Been Arrested Eight Times—Said Blow Delivered Sudden Job Wasn't Hard Enough to Kill Anyone.

C. H. Kinney, a broker in Wall street, has been in the coroner's office for the past two days, and as a result of his visit a hackman who was charged with the death of a man who died from a blow from the hackman's fist is now at liberty. Kinney, who is a big man, with a ruddy face and a pair of black eyes, which he says he received in a fistic encounter with a hackman, was in the coroner's office to-day to see the hackman who had been his adversary in a fistic encounter on Friday night. Kinney said that he had been drinking "a little" on Friday night when he had a dispute with a hackman who had charged him $2 for a ride from Wall street to his home in Brooklyn. The hackman had refused to give the broker the change from a $5 bill, and Kinney had struck him a blow on the face. The hackman had fallen to the sidewalk, striking his head on the curbstone, and had died in a few minutes from a clot of blood on the brain. Kinney said that he was sorry that the hackman had died, but that he had not struck him a hard blow, and that he had been in the habit of striking people with his fists when he had been drinking and had never before had any trouble. He said that he was a member of the Stock Exchange firm of C. H. Kinney & Co., but that he was a "bad boy" when he was drinking, and that he was arrested on an average of once a month for disorderly conduct. He said that he was a native of Ireland, and was 40 years old. He said that he was married and had a family living in Brooklyn. He said that he was a member of the Knickerbocker club, and was a member of the committee on arrangements for the club's annual dinner to Chauncey M. Depew last winter. He said that he was a member of the Long Island club, the Montauk club, the Brooklyn club, the Hamilton club, the Brooklyn Athletic club, the Brooklyn Club association, and the Brooklyn Club association of America. He said that he was a member of the Brooklyn Club association of America because he was the president of Republican Congressional Convention.

A Republican Convention for the Eleventh Congressional District of Michigan will be held at Petoskey, Michigan, on Wednesday, July 11th, 1900, at two o'clock p. m. for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Member of Congress to fill unexpired term, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said Convention.

The ratio of representation will be one delegate for every 200 votes.

F. M. SEARS, Chairman.
C. L. BARNES, Secretary.

The increase in our foreign trade is keeping pace with the formation of industrial combinations.

Civilization and commerce always go hand in hand. It was so in Hawaii. It will be so in the Philippines and Porto Rico.

When farmers can pay $140 for cows and $60 for six months-old heifer calves they have surely found the golden standard.

A vote for a Democratic Congressman means a vote for free trade, free coinage, free silver, free bread, free pocketbook and free trade, wage-destroying.

Cotton processors and mill owners show larger export values during the six months of this fiscal year ending April 30th last than at any time since 1892.

The prosecution of Neeley and his associates for the Cuban postal fraud is being vigorously continued by the Administration, and will not cease till sentence has been pronounced on the guilty.

Charlevoix county republicans made no mistake when they selected Mr. J. Dawson and Fred Dow—for chairman and secretary of the county committee. They will put vim and vigor into the campaign.

During the coming national campaign much will be heard about the need of an American merchant marine, legislation in behalf of which will be passed at the next session of Congress.

In 1895 we couldn't afford to buy free cheap foreign goods, and the Democratic party, under the low tariff, only amounted to $143,954,000 last year the Republican protective tariff realized $236,126,000.

The United States now has a domain nearly three times greater in area than it possessed when it became a nation. We have been expanding all the time, and most of it was added by the party now opposing expansion.

The Republican party has persistently opposed every effort to abolish the American Navy. The Democratic party has just as persistently opposed such a policy at every possible opportunity.

While the population of the United States has doubled since 1870, there has been an increase of 107 per cent in the number of pauperdom in the United States, thus affording a 53 cent better tariff for the delivery of stuff to the people.

The people of the United states have tired of paying foreign steamship subsidies, and are now building our imports and exports. A bill to put an end to least 17 pending in Congress and will be passed at the next session.

Free traders who have been advocating as the only needed remedy for the building up of American ships the free registry of foreign vessels, are in a quandary now, due to the fact that no party in Congress favors the proposition.

With foreign ships carrying 66.85 per cent of our online foreign commerce with Europe, which after the refund of over $1,000,000,000—it is indeed high time Congress took measures to see that American ships were better represented in that vast carrying trade.

In 1896, President McKinley said: "I hope that the time will not be far distant when every workingman in this country can get work, and get it at fair and remunerative wages." The time was not far distant, and it is still with us.

It having been made clear that the free registry of foreign-built ships meant merely the building of the ships our commerce requires in Britain, instead of in American shipyards, the Representatives in Congress of each of the political parties are opposed to it. It is a dead issue.

The prosperity upon which the Republican party mainly relies for victory is the genuine article. It is unprecedented in the history of this or any other country. It is so great and all-pervading that the calamity howlers of 1896 have lapsed into silence.—Washington Post.

The Arbuckle Sugar Refining people have beaten the Sugar Trust in a legal battle in 1898. Arbuckles held rated somewhat of less than 100 shares in the Trust's coffee factory and granted to inspect its books, a right to which they are entitled under a recent decision. Another blow for an octopus.

Corporal L. J. Healy, writing from the Philippines to his mother in Ohio says: "If some of these traitors in the United States had kept their mouths shut we could have had them (the Filipinos) whipped long ago. Anyone that upholds anti-expansion is no better than an insurgent." This confirms other similar reports of the Democratic sympathy given to Aguinaldo.

During thirty-four years of free trade, the English savings banks increased their deposits by $50,000,000. During thirty-three years of protection in the United States (1867 to 1899) deposits in our savings banks increased by $1,605,574,000, and down to 1899 they had increased by $2,225,000,000, including the three Willson bill free trade years, when money was withdrawn from the savings banks.

Notice to Water Takers.

It is necessary, on account of the new boiler not yet having arrived, to economize in the use of water and power. By direction of the council, I am instructed to request all water takers to help in this temperity economy by refraining from sprinkling after six o'clock, when the electric lights draw so largely in the mains as to make a copper side to run the pumps at the full capacity required to furnish the usual supply of water used when lawns are being sprinkled. I hope that all citizens will recognize the necessity of complying with this request and will co-operate in bringing over the dull cloth until the new boiler is installed, when we shall be able to keep lawns green you will be permitted to sprinkle during the day until further notice.

School Commissioner's Column.
A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

D. C. Heath writes an interesting letter on text books, for the Pilot-Times. Mr Heath is a noted philologer of school text books in Boston. He believes the improvement in method of teaching a Deputy line to the public, are who have forced books of a high standard upon the teachers.

"Twenty-five years ago the pupils learned everything by rote like parrots. With the coming the text was used merely as a means of applying the grammar which was and memorized. Now the student begins read ing at once and uses the grammar like an dictionary as a book of reference. In modern language the change has been in the direction of more scientific methods, more practicality.

In mathematics the plan is to set the student at work on problems at once. Practical applications of algebra, geometry, especially geometry, are being more generally made, and the pupil sees that there is at least some use in studying these subjects. He is not allowed to run out to memory the solution of typical problems but learns principles, and puts them into practice with problems his book may not contain.

English grammar has now become a complete rational study. The pupil is led to deduce his own rules as he reads and writes and talks, and talks and writes and reads.

Not only has the grammar evolved from the jargon book, into the modern reader, instead of being made up of short and choppy pieces, contains more extended selections, so as to convey the author's inspiration as well as to conserve his style. The pupil spends no time now in learning to read, he reads.

Hence the publishers supply supplementary reading matter in great variety and plainly adapted to all grades.

In fact all the studies in school have in these late years been correlated to a greater or less extent and the text books have been adapted to the new conditions.

In geography, in history, in science, the subjects are made interesting, and necessarily it was a burden, and the facts remain in the mind, where formerly they were forgotten along with the dates and names.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. R. R. Cargile, of Wathena, I. T. He writes: "Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which has caused her great suffering for years. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It expectorates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Insomnia of Sixteen Nights.

The following list gives a comparison of the duration of some modern stages to that of Ladysmith: Kimberley, 241 days; Repanoupol, 227 days; Paris, 187 days; Kimberley, 123 days; Ladysmith, 115 days; Plevna, 94 days; Lucknow, 86 days; Cawnpore, 21 days. In seven times stages lasted much longer. That of Antwerp, according to Hobdeins, continued for twenty-nine years, and the siege of Troy occupied ten years.

Starting States in War.

Enlistments of all classes will not forget that in the hour of her need the first and most generous to respond to England's call for help were the enrolled darlings of society, who have spent in the last three years of peace more as easily as a million, and that while they may not have known how to live like the Frenchmen of the ancient regime, they will know how to die.—London Letter.

Have Many Ribs.

Snakes have the greatest number of ribs. The ten or python has no fewer than 320 pairs. The rattlesnake has 151 pairs. The python or boa constrictor attains to an enormous size, and has been reported as reaching the length of 30 feet. The shark has 26 pairs of ribs and the conger eel 60. The chelonyan or tortoise sixth has 24 of the 10 on each side—the saddle, the 24 side of man.

Rare Talking Tree.

There is a wonderful talking tree in the Transvaal. The legend of its remarkable behavior runs thus: When under its branches a council of war held by the Boer generals during the Transvaal war with the Shaitish a shrill voice proceeded from the tree corresponding that the Boers should be withdrawn over their enemies and in like future should be unacceptable.

Swinburne's Woman Hater.

The only literary character who is acknowledged to be a woman hater is Algernon Charles Swinburne. His sentiments appear to be based upon the fact that a female or little cultured would be dull beyond description as a life partner, and the conviction that the clever, well-informed woman is the least attractive of her sex.

The celebration will doubtless be held at Petoskey next year, but the grand lodge will decide that matter. Thirty-six Odd Fellows had grand lodge degrees conferred upon them and assembly degrees were conferred upon twenty-one Rebekahs.

A Free Press special dispatch from Philadelphia says: Wm. H. C. Mitchell, of Traverse City, is one of the veterans of the national convention and dean of the Michigan delegation. He is 75 years old, but participates in the activities of the Wanton lobby with as much interest as if it were his first convention. In point of fact, it is his ninth. The first was in 1856 in Philadelphia, when Fillmore was nominated. At that time Mr. Mitchell lived in Ohio, where the Republican party was then unorganized.

At the annual meeting of the trustees of Hemenway college yesterday final steps were taken to change it from a college to an academy. Rev. C. W. Dunn, professor at Tuck university, Nashville, Tenn., has accepted the principalship and in a few weeks he will assume his duties. Most of the former teachers have been retained. Arrangements have been made whereby the work of the school may be carried on more economically than ever before.

Harbor Springs Republican: Our citizens en masse headed by the band, turned out Monday night to welcome the arrival at Harbor Springs of the first Pere Marquette passenger train. Mr. Bruner, conductor, station agent at Petoskey, Pt. A. Hastings and Frank Beckett, conductor on the G. R. & I., alighted from the train looking as happy as clams, and everybody were making "Rosin Bow" with loud cheering, while the band was lustily splitting the air with music. A very friendly feeling seemed to exist on the part of both the G. R. & I. and Pere Marquette boys present, which we rejoice to see. The welcome was royal and genuine. Both roads will hereafter run trains regularly to Harbor Springs daily, and after July 1st, it is expected 20 minutes service will be given. Everybody is glad to come to A good town and Harbor Springs is now right "in it."

This south pier is no place for the children, and there's no school for miles around. I figured it out that there was more grass, sand and trees air at Charlevoix, and applied for the transfer." Kansas City Convention.

Our editors by telegraph this morning from Kansas City are that the nominations have not yet been made.

The committee on platform have reported in favor of a re-affirmation of the Chicago platform, 16 to 1 and all.

The Dead Plutocrat.

Chicago Times Herald: The convention which nominated Colonel Aaron T. Bliss of Saginaw for Governor of Michigan marked the complete enfeatement of the plutocrat, pugnacious Pingree. It signalized the passing of a spectacular figure in American politics—a man whose unique personality dominated the politics of the Wolverine State for many years.

The work was done while Pingree was out of the state. He was not a participant in the ceremonies incident to his political burial. The dictator was read out of his party a few days after his successful efforts to defeat Senators Burrows and McMillan for re-election, and he has not yet realized the futility of going before another Republican state convention.

The nomination of Hiles instead of Ferry makes the governor's retirement for politics a certainty. If the Detroit gentleman had been nominated there would be every probability that Pingree would have run for governor on an independent ticket, and he would have sought the indorsement of the Democratic state convention. Happily this catastrophe has been averted and the irascible Pingree has been mollified.

The effacement of Pingree from the political map of Michigan is complete. After next November he won't even be a way station—not even a water tank on the Republican track. He won't be able to flag the lightning expansion express as it sweeps through Michigan this fall. No one will pay any attention to his scrapbook signals.

But Pingree will be held in grateful remembrance by the young patriots contingent in Detroit. He caused to subsist of the distribution of having originated the admirable philosophy: He was a man or original ideas, and many of them were of practical value to politics and government. Instead of being content to remain a trusted leader of the plain people he sought to be a boss. He desired to build up a Pingree machine by fostering big men of his party. That's why he was retired of the Republican state in Michigan.

HAIR HELP

So many persons have hair that is stubborn and dull, it won't grow. What's the reason? Hair needs help just as anything else does at times. The roots require feeding. When hair stops growing it loses its lustre. It looks dead.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

acts almost instantly on such hair. It awakens new life in the hair bulbs. The effect is astonishing. Your hair grows, becomes thicker, and all dandruff is removed. And the original color of early life is restored to faded or gray hair. This is always the case.

Col. Bliss.

Col. Aaron T. Bliss of Saginaw, republican candidate for congress is one of the best known men in Michigan and has been prominently before the people of Michigan in business and politics for many years. He is a veteran of the civil war, a successful business man and a staunch republican. He was born on a farm in New York in 1837 and at the age of 17 years began life as clerk in a village store, where he remained until the breaking out of the civil war. He enlisted as a private in the Tenth New York cavalry and on the formation of the regiment was elected lieutenant.

He took part in the second battle of Bull Run and after that battle was made captain. He was captured by the Confederates at the raid near Richmond and imprisoned successively at Columbia, Andersonville and Macon. After six months of imprisonment he escaped and succeeded in reaching Sherman's army near Savannah.

Soon after the close of the war he went to Saginaw and engaged in lumbering with a small capital, but with energy and perseverance built up his business to vast proportions. After 30 long several city offices, one of which was that of mayor, he was elected to the state senate in 1892 where he served one term. In 1892 he was elected by congress over Timothy E. Tarsney by a big majority in congress he was persistent in his efforts to secure pensions for the worthy veterans and was one of the most valuable representatives his district ever had.

He held the position of colonel on the staff of General Alger and was treasurer of the National Guard of Michigan during the entire term of office.

School Commissioner's Column.
A. W. ZINN, CONRL.

General school law, page 3, Sec. 11, reads: "The district board shall apportion the studies to be pursued in the schools of the district, and in addition to the branches in which instruction is now required by law to be given in the public schools of the state instruction shall be given in physiology and hygiene, with special reference to the nature of alcohol and narcotics and their effect upon the human system, such instruction shall be given by the aid of text books in the case of pupils who are able to read, and as thoroughly as the other studies pursued in the same school.

Overton's physiologies, a new book series, has been adopted by a number of schools and we hope to see the book used in every school in the county.

The author presents the subject to the pupil pedagogically. Hygienic facts are not given simply as facts, but as elementary knowledge of anatomy and physiology. The laws of health in living must be based upon a knowledge of this elementary knowledge of the human machine to which the laws apply.

Advice to a pupil will have an effect in direct proportion to the confidence placed in the teacher. Your enlightenment and duties should new apprehension of laws. More advancing evidences that intelligent knowledge of living. Prohibition assumes in children a desire to do the forbidden thing, especially if it be a rule made or upon it school. The unavoidable disconsideration of teachers will upset the pupil's confidence in all laws. For these reasons, the author avoids the usual hygiene advice. The subject of alcohol is discussed in all its aspects. Its evil effects are not exaggerated. The alleged good from the use of strong drink is contrasted with its dangers in a judicial manner.

THE SCHOOLS.

The Newspapers' Convention a Big, Rousing Success.

At this writing, Thursday morning, the editors are gone, and the write, of this remains, yet alive, but reduced in physical condition, very tired but gratified beyond his anticipations.

The editors began to come Monday night, President Slocum, and wife registering first at head quarters at the Hotel Elston. Then they came by squads, by every train, from north and south, most of them with wives and many with charming daughters.

Fifty of them rounded up at the first business meeting Tuesday, and when the boys were called to order Wednesday morning, about seventy-five of them answered to roll call. Every section of the state was represented—country scribes and city scribes mingled with each other—we wish the time was at our disposal to register the names in these columns. There was the genial and able Mac Sellers, of the Cedar Springs Clipper, Dingley, of the Kalamazoo Telegram, Conger, of the Grand Rapids Herald —but we cannot enumerate.

Tuesday it rained all day, and the boys remained at the Elston getting acquainted with their wives, and talking politics. Wednesday forenoon conveyances took the editors and their ladies about town, and in the afternoon they boarded the steamer Columbia for a trip up around Holy Island. It is needless to say that the local outings were enjoyed by all.

But the banquet at the Inn Wednesday night!

The banquet was the crowning success of the event—a feast for the palate, and a "feast of reason and flow of soul." Two hundred sat at the board. At the north end of the beautiful dining room sat President Slocum, Toastmaster Palmer, and the speakers. And here we are obliged to refer to the only disappointment of the occasion. The death of a friend kept Washington Gardner away; James O'Donnell was obliged to send his regrets; Richard Yates was kept away, and Chauncey Depew, present last year, was called home. But the disappointment was of brief duration. Editor Dingley made an able address on the platform in place of Judge Yates, and Mr. Pettigrill, Michigan's historic orbinator, made a most eloquent and inspiring speech on "our Destiny" in place of Mr. Osborn. Mr. Snow' address of welcome fully sustained that good citizens' reputation for scholarly diction, and well directed words. Perry Powers, republican candidate for auditor general made one of the best speeches of his life, on "Our Party," and that eloquent orator, Wm. Addy-smith electrified the audience by his talk on "Our President."

We verily believe that with the possible exception of James O'Donnell, Judge L. G. Palmer is the best toastmaster in Michigan. Judge Palmer's sallies of wit were as bright as the electric bulbs above his head, and his grace of speech as striking and beautiful as his only shrinking character.

Col. A. T. Bliss, the next governor of Michigan was called up by Judge Palmer, but spoke very briefly.

Newell's orchestra did grandly, and its stirring patriotic music called forth hearty applause.

It was nearly two o'clock in the morning, when after singing a verse "America" and three rousing cheers for the party, the crowd broke up and went to their hotels and homes.

Thursday morning many the editors and ladies left for Chebeygan by the "inland route," by steamer and instalment of Mr. Hamill and the railroad companies. The Pere Marquette gave the party a special car to Petoskey, and the G. R. & I. and M. C. extended similar courtesies.

The event in every respect was a rousing success, and the editors go away more than pleased by their reception.

Bryan and Stevenson.

The National Democratic Convention, at Kansas City last week, placed in nomination Wm. J. Bryan, of Nebraska, for President, and Adlai E. Stevenson, of Illinois, for Vice President.

The convention reiterated the principles of the Chicago platform, with the addition of up-to-date planks covering imperialism, trusts, etc. At the bidding of Bryan, against the protests of a large majority of the delegates, the 16 to 1 fiasco was again made a fundamental principle of Democratic reform.

Idle men, tramps and Coxey's cranks furnished but poor markets for farm produce.

The Treasury Department has made a bid selling, to June 1, of $7,000,000 on the refunding provision of the gold standard law.

The settlement of the difficulties at the Samoan Islands was one of the diplomatic incidents which terminated happily under this administration.

The last Democratic president hauled down the American flag at Hawaii; it was restored to its place over the Pacific by President McKinley.

There may be nothing in a name, but Admiral Schley is strewed enough to decline to place himself in the hands of the Democratic politicians.

His patient and industrious work and the successful result of the war with Spain alone entitle President McKinley to re-election at the hands of the people.

Democratic campaign stump speakers are not reminding the farmers that lemon corn that sold for $10 a ton a few years ago has been selling recently at $150 a ton.

The Vermont Democrats are for free silver. The electoral votes of the Green Mountain State will be recorded on the side of a stable currency and continued prosperity.

When people can afford to buy potatoes the farmer gets better prices for them. That is the reason why last year's potato crop was worth $10,000,000 more than the potato crop of 1899.

Democrats who assert that the Republican national convention did not endorse shipping subsidies find in the Republican shipping plank nothing to find fault with—hence their annoyance. Republicans are satisfied.

The Republican national platform declares in favor of legislation for the upholding of the American merchant marine in the foreign trade, and Congress can be depended upon to pass such a measure early in its next session.

There was more important legislation enacted during the last session of Congress than in any other similar period. At the next session two of the most important measures will be the Nicaraguan Canal construction bill and the restoration of American shipping.

The farm price of wheat on December 1st in each year of President Cleveland's administration averaged 63 cents per bushel. Under the McKinley administration the average price has been 87.5 cents per bushel, an increase of 24 per cent over the Democratic price.

President McKinley has strenuously urged the fulfillment of every campaign promise made in the Republican platform of 1896. In this he has been supported by the representatives of his party in Congress, and the result has been much legislation of a valuable character, as well as faith kept with the people.

Mr. Bryan is the owner of the greatest amount of personal property in the country in which he lives, and the richest man in Lincoln, Nebr. This is the record of the assessor' books. Mr. W. H. Hearst, of New York, is one of the millionaires of the country. This aggregation of wealth, combination of capital, or "trust," as it may be called, should form a strong leadership to the Democratic ticket this fall. The bugbear of the Democratic "party" will be wide open, and "free silver" should live at the ratio of 16 dollars for 1 vote.

No political party has ever met under such favorable circumstances as did the Republican national convention in Philadelphia. The unanimous nomination of both the candidates for the offices of President and Vice-President was unprecedented. Mr. McKinley has earned, and well deserves, the compliment. The property of the country under his administration shows merits it, without taking into consideration his able exposition of our affairs of state during the war with Spain. There was a notable difference between the harmony of the Republican party at St. Louis, in the convention of 1896, and at Philadelphia. Last month every Republican was working for the Chicago ticket, and it was a unanimous verdict for McKinley and Hobart. The latter has endeared himself to the people by his able and honest administration of such public offices as he had held, as well as by his bravery in Cuba. They are both strong candidates, politically and personally, and will gain in strength as the campaign progresses.

NEW COPPER FIELDS.

CHICAGO CAPITAL BEING INVESTED IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mining Operations in Black Hills cannot be Unusually Active This Summer—Watson's Ore Properties, at Grand Rapids, Mich., Herald and Florida Valleys, etc.

"Money is up in the Black Hills I am sorry to say," said a well-known mining man. The Black Hills Copper Mining Company has upon the development of an enormous vein of copper mining another 3 to 5 feet. Many other mines are equipped and a large amount of work has been done. Development is being carried on. As an evidence of the extraordinary enterprise condition it cannot cost 25 cents worth of machinery that at present in Lawrence County it is difficult to provide shafts, machinery, and men to work them. These facts are undoubtedly responsible for the long delay in the resumption of work on the Golden Star. Hydraulic mines which were worked last year have been given up, it is understood, with the exception of Gold Run.

WAGERS TO AVOID.

Bets That Are Sure Things to Our Friends in Bellefield Hive.

Bets to be avoided by those who are cock-sure they can do all things are those relating to athletic feats. It would seem that a good runner could easily give fifty yards in a hundred to a man who was facing the fifty by hopping on one leg. But few runners, if any, can afford to give that amount of start to any man who is able strong on his legs. For the first five yards or so they go at practically the same pace, so that to run ninety-five yards while his opponent is hopping forty-five he has to go more than twice as fast, and it is a weak man indeed who cannot hop fifty yards in ten seconds. An ordinary wooden match is easily broken by the fingers, but although there are many who will bet that can do it, some succeed in accomplishing the task if the match is laid across the nail of the middle finger of either hand and pressed upon the first and third fingers of that hand despite its seeming so easy at first sight. No one can crush an egg placed lengthwise between his clasped hands—that is if the egg be sound, and has the ordinary shell of a hen's egg. It is safe to bet a man that he cannot get out of a chair without bending his body forward, or getting his feet under it, if he is sitting on his at the edge of it. Another equally certain wager is that a man cannot stand with the side of a room with both his feet touching the surrounding baseboard. It is safe to bet any man, save one who is blind, that he cannot stand for five minutes without moving if he is blindfolded.—New York World.

Those Odd Dogs from Paris.

Miss Loubet, wife of the French president, is similar democratic kind-ly. When she rides in the Bois her carriage is preceded by a detective on a bicycle. If she rides the bicycle gone of the carriage goes and sees from Miss Loubet's companion a rubber raincoat in himself and go for the musketeers. A while ago Baron Christiani was sent to pull for attacking President Loubet at the race track. Recently some friends wanted to give him a sitting and called him as a witness in a lawsuit. They thought the would be brought to court in a coat-tage, instead of which he had to ride in the Black Maria. The fortifications of Barnay, the lately deceased dramatic critic, was sold at auction recently. It included a perfect museum of gifts from actors. Sir Barney's studio were half a dozen fit for reception rooms. As many ladies of the stage could wear no interview him cannot be each subject Barney was unable to convey to them all.—New York World.

About Thermometers.

Of all liquids used in thermometers mercury is the most useful, because it is easily obtained pure and because its expansion between zero and 100 degrees centigrade is regular that is proportional to the degree of heat. But for temperatures below—39 degrees centigrade (—38.5 Fahr.) the so-called thermometers must be used, since mercury solidifies at—40 degrees centigrade. The alcohol thermometer is especially used for low temperatures down to 75 degrees not solidify at the greatest known cold. It is as a rule relatively not the law of expansion of alcohol in place at low temperatures is not known with such precision as to make the lowest readings entirely trustworthy. This, of course, applies to the best thermometers. Some in the manufacture of which the greatest precautions have been taken. In making the cheap thermometers no such care is taken, and the result is that while two or more of them may agree at or about the freezing or the boiling points, which are the standards, there may be very wide divergences at intermediate temperatures or at temperatures below freezing.

When the Exposition Is Over.

Although the Paris exposition is still unfinished, arrangements have already been made for its demolition. Was it sentiment or business which has intrusted this work to a foreigner? For the contract for dismantling the pavilions has been made with the Chicago Home Wrecking company, which has made its headquarters after the good world's fair at Chicago. It has been calculated that the buildings cost at the rate of number with the exception of the Eiffel tower, the exposition will be a ready purchaser.—London Chronicle.

Importer Enter Disputes.

There does not seem to be enough money in any of the new hospitals to warrant a well person contributing to get into them, but there are half a dozen men and women in this city who make a practice of feigning illness, that they may spend a few days in a hospital cot. The men who use trouble to a strong whiff of ammonia, at indoors on Saturday night, are quickly recognized as one of these fakes patients. His specialty is throwing fits in a crowded street.—New York Sun.

Wages in Cuba.

The keeper of the pay roll on a large estate in the southern part of Cuba says: The average payment per head per month for February was $18.61. Spanish gold, and this month it will average from $1.50 to $1.75 higher. In place the payment in coin the men are housed and fed at the expense of the estate. The food for each man costs the estate $5 Spanish gold.

To the Exclusion.

Switzerland now has about sixty watches and jewelry factories which employ the whole demand of the country, although the Swiss come next to the Italians as universal makers.

Stinging Fakes Theater.

THE BLARNEY STONE

Gives Eloquence, Power, Not Over-Bumpt on Tongue.

The origin of the ancient Blarney castle lie about four miles northwest of the city of Cork, Ireland. Tradition makes it the interesting scene of a siege early in the seventeenth century, when the lord of the castle, who had been taken prisoner by the English, held out in his fortress for a long time by adroit and plausible promises that he would surrender. Whenever the critical time came, however, he was always ready with a good excuse. It was from his invariable manner of putting off the besiegers by his soft, insinuating speech that the term blarney became a standard expression. The celebrated blarney stone, to which is ascribed the marvelous power of bestowing upon anyone who kisses it a persuasive flueri and not over-honest tongue, has an origin founded on vague supposition firmly grounded in the minds of the Irish peasantry. Hundreds of whom gather there annually for the purpose of kissing the stone and receiving the power with which it is supposed to be possessed. Its exact location in the ruins is a matter of dispute. By some it is claimed that it is lying loose on the ground, others place it on the summit of the large square tower which was originally the dungeon of the castle, still others insist that it is inserted in the wall at such a height that in order to obtain the desired result the recipient of the power must be suspended by his heels from the top. "When or how the stone obtained its singular reputation," says a writer, "it is difficult to determine; the exact position among the ruins of the castle is also in doubt; the peasant guides humor the visitor according to his capacity for climbing, and direct either to the summit or to the base the attention of him who desires to kiss it with a body kiss.—Detroit Free Press.

Free Exposition Expenditure.

In some important features the Pan-American exposition, which will be held on the Niagara frontier at Buffalo, N. Y., in the summer months of 1901, will materially differ from any exhibition of the magnitude ever before held, for though it will be as large as some of the expositions that have been held, though it will be as comprehensive and beautiful as any exposition would be, and though the features are already provided for will be of interest to all men, still the world will not be invited to attend—it will be Pan-American in fact, as in name, the purpose is well indicated by the million have reproduced from the Indian to the back, which the Publicity Committee has adopted. This emblem shows the humanoid symph representative of North America looking with kindly eye at her sister continents of the south and reaching out to her a money-arm holding her coin and form a trans union of tribe commerce and enterprise.—Montreal Herald.

Luck of Eden Hall.

I see it is alluded in connection with the visit of Princess Victoria of Wales to Sir Richard and Lady Isabella Cunard that the famous Luck of Eden Hall is always exhibited to and handled by the guests of its owner, it being a relic of super that it should thus be passed to the lines of an accident. As a matter of fact the glass goblet, which is kept at the Luck of Eden Hall, is kept at the Brick of England, in a case and thickly lined with velvet, and the very rare occasions when this box is opened in Cumberland are shown the original cake is taken to prevent the possibility of any accident. The Luck is sentimentally precious to the Musgraves who are threatened with the most dire calamities if it should be broken or lost.—London World.

What Is a Gentleman.

What is meant by a gentleman? Its wider meaning marks the democratic century of the world. First it marked birth, then breeding, then courtesy and honor, then it reared its black arc. China. The whole world is now addressed as if it were a community of men. "Gentlemen." But in the more restricted sense, how can the word "gentleman" be satisfactorily defined? It is not best left undefined. Sometimes it refers to manners, sometimes to morals. We are not sure that it will not be crowded out by "man." The simpler term may come to be the more acceptable. At any rate, it would be rash to define "gentleman" save in excellent extracts from the poets.—New York Sun.

New Light on History.

Nero, fiddle in hand, sat upon his throne when a little band of captives was led before him. "Now," he roared in royal tones, "you have your choice between hearing me play a story in cadenzas with the middle finger on the B string, or being turned alive at the motions at the Coliseum." "Bring on your torches!" shouted the despairing captives. Later on Nero fiddled, and turned things and conducted himself in an outrageous manner. "I hate to do this," he explained, "but they depend on me for some warm scenes in 'Quo Vadis?'"

Millions Are No Good.

In India, China, Japan and adjacent countries are about 400,000,000 people, Hindoo, Chinese and Japanese, who eat no meat. The Turkish porter, on a daily ration of rice and dates, will jog along with less food under a load that would crush a western man. Darwin tells us that the Indian nutrient do a day's work of 800 foot tons, nearly twice the work of an ordinary laborer, on a diet of bananas.

Its Old Size.

This was a venerable landmark of Vermont that was over the Boston coach until Feb. 15, 1876, when it was taken down by a furious wind storm. It is believed to have antedated the settlement of the town, and it claimed to have been the oldest tree in New England. It had a place upon a map engraved in 1763, and the age of it was estimated by the rings of a lumber dealer of its trunk, which indicated an existence since 1670.

Continued, that of Robert Hunter's letter.

CHAPTER XVII.

"Thursday night.—Mother and sister Hattie's mean somewhat with them when they heard the news that Kate had left the school. Hattie's letter contained nothing but the bare facts, without comment or explanation. Mother and sister, of course, had to make some comment upon the news, and I suppose they felt it necessary to give it a rough handling. Mother said it was a mean piece of business, and a very foolish one, and that I was a fool for having anything to do with it. Sister said it was a mean piece of business, and that I was a fool for having anything to do with it. Father said it was a mean piece of business, and that I was a fool for having anything to do with it. Mother said I was a fool because I was a fool, and that it was a mean piece of business because it was mean. You understand?

"Friday night.—Nothing new today. Mr. Thomas Hunter's mean, too. Mr. Moore, Miss Mary Stewart, Jennie Jones and I had a good long talk about it. Mary Stewart said it was a mean piece of business, and that I was a fool for having anything to do with it.

"I've tried to report a social visit, but I can't. I attempted to write a description of the party we had at Mr. Moore's last night, but it was too much for me. I cannot even begin to do it. I never was much of a hand at writing descriptions, and I'm not in the mood for it now. I'm too mad. Besides, I don't want to. I never was much of a hand at writing descriptions, and I don't want to now. I don't want to do anything I don't like to do, and I don't like to do this. I don't like to do it because it is a mean piece of business, and because I'm a fool for having anything to do with it. Mr. Moore said it was a mean piece of business, and that I was a fool for having anything to do with it. Mary Stewart said it was a mean piece of business, and that I was a fool for having anything to do with it. Jennie Jones said it was a mean piece of business, and that I was a fool for having anything to do with it. Everybody said it was a mean piece of business, and that I was a fool for having anything to do with it. I guess I'm a fool, and I guess it was a mean piece of business, but I didn't think it would be so mean when I began it. I didn't think it would be so mean when I began it, or I would not have begun it. I didn't think it would be so mean when I began it, or I would not have begun it, because I don't like to do mean things, and I don't like to be a fool. But it's done now, and I can't help it, and I don't see how I could have avoided it. I don't see how I could have avoided it, and I don't see how I can help it, and I don't see how I can avoid it. I don't see how I could have avoided it, or how I can help it, or how I can avoid it, because I don't like to be a fool, and I don't like to do mean things, and I don't like to do this because it is a mean piece of business, and because I'm a fool for having anything to do with it. I don't like to do it because it is a mean piece of business, and because I'm a fool for having anything to do with it, and because everybody says it is a mean piece of business, and that I am a fool for having anything to do with it. I don't like to do it because it is a mean piece of business, and because I'm a fool for having anything to do with it, and because everybody says it is a mean piece of business, and that I am a fool for having anything to do with it, and because everybody says it is a mean piece of business, and that I am a fool for having anything to do with it, and because everybody says it is a mean piece of business, and that I am a fool for having anything to do with it, and because everybody says it is a mean piece of business, and that I am a fool for having anything to do with it. I don't like to do it because it is a mean piece of business, and because I'm

ANNUAL BUDGET.

Of the School Board of Dist. No. 1, Charlevoix, Michigan.

The school board are happy to report to the district that the school year just closed has been very satisfactory from almost every point of view. There has been an increase in attendance, and very gratifying results in the education of the pupils, and very gratifying conditions characterizing every department of the schools.

The highest standing of the school are, and the general satisfaction expressed with reference to the conduct of the schools during the year closed, as well as the personal observations of the members of the board, convince us that we made no mistake in the selection of our present superintendent, and with this conviction we are glad to report to the district that he has been engaged for another year.

With but slight exceptions, the work of the teachers has been very satisfactory. It is scarcely to be expected that in the employment of new teachers, especially at the wages which we have been able to offer this fall, we should have ideals in every instance. But we believe few schools in the state with the same number of teachers, have less cause for complaint and more cause for self-congratulation than the Charlevoix schools the past year. The board wish to emphasize the fact which has often been spoken of heretofore, that to render the schools as efficient as possible the hearty cooperation of the parents is indispensable, and this co-operation should be shown both by maintaining a close as they are able to comply with their duties as parents, the discipline of the schools, and more especially by frequent visitation of the rooms in which their children are being educated, and cultivating an acquaintance with the teachers and with the methods used, so that if any criticism is made it will be intelligent—and if made to the proper source—effective. The board are always glad to receive criticisms and suggestions from parents, who are intelligently conversant with the methods and conditions of the schools.

We are glad to report that the complaints from parents in regard to treatment of their children in the schools during the past year have been very few indeed, and those on such a character as are almost, if not altogether, unavoidable. We shall enter upon the next year with conditions very gratifying, and with large hopes for very satisfactory results.

It has been the misfortune of the board, and no loss of the district, that our fellow member, A. H. Lincoln shaw, has been incapacitated from service on the board for several months that it was found necessary late in the school year to accept his resignation as director and secretary and to put another member in his position. His very efficient work during the years that he has held this office and his deep interest in the schools, as well as his vigorous discharge of the duties imposed upon him, have contributed in a very large measure to the present excellent condition of the school, our finances and the schools as a whole. At this writing we are hopeful that health will return and that it may be the pleasure of the district to continue him for another term in the position which he has filled so creditably.

In obedience to the instructions given, the board at the last annual meeting, a contract was closed with the Kalamazoo Supply and Construction Company of Kalamazoo, Mich., for the installment of a heating and ventilating plant in the central school building. The basis of the system is steam heat, and the ventilation is what is known as the "direct indirect" system. The cost to the district is $2,800, payment of which, according to the contract, was divided as follows: $970 on the completion of the contract, and another $930 per year at six per cent. interest. The cash installment and the first of the annual payments of $930 have been met, the balance of $1,830 yet to be paid. The system has been tested during the year, and while at first the results were not altogether satisfactory, with changes that were made about the middle of the school year, it has proved to be all that was represented and intended, and has given very excellent satisfaction. We have not learned of any trouble in regard to ventilation. The great trouble at first was that there was too much ventilation, the air passing through the rooms so rapidly it was not possible to heat it sufficiently, and as a consequence the children were complaining of cold feet and warm heads, but with the changes that were made, a more complete regulation of the system has been obtained, and the defects remedied.

During the year, also, a new sidewalk has been built in the central school building yard and one at the south side of Lincoln school.

The swing also, we have set in the three school yards seventy-shade trees transplanted from the hoghboring woods.

The yards of the Lincoln and Washington schools have neither of them been graded, and remain almost in the condition nature left them. Every year the 75 practice requests demands, and we have not yet felt like incurring the expense of doing this work, but it would seem as if it was almost imperative that it should be done the present year. The question of water, also, for these two school houses is one of importance. We have recognized for several years the need of having the city water placed in each of the buildings, but the long distance to the mains and the consequent heavy expense, has deterred us from doing what it almost a necessity to have done. We should be glad to have instruction from the district to make both of the improvements above suggested for the ward schools.

We are again confronted with the condition of overcrowded school rooms. From the annual report of the schools as published, and so far as with the secretary of this board it appears that several of the rooms have an enrollment of over 70, with a seating capacity of 60. On the north side the Washington school it has been found necessary to continue that undesirable arrangement of placing three grades in all of the rooms. It goes without saying that it is not to be expected that a teacher with three grades in her room will be able to do the efficient work which a teacher with two grades would be able to do, and there is a consequent loss to the district in that room, as well as an unusual demand made upon the teacher herself. The congestion is so great that we have to place the primary rooms are not so crowded. The board do not feel like recommending a new building, and yet we recognize that it is inevitable and must come within a very few years, and until it comes, the efficiency of the schools will be impaired to a greater or less extent in the first five grades. We submit therefore, the question, as to how it can be met for your consideration and action, if action is thought desirable by you.

We wish to say, that so far as it is possible, it is the aim of the board to stimulate pupils from our course of study and to render the studies as far as possible, practicable and efficient for developing the intellect and capabilities of the child, and training him for the duties which will come upon him as a citizen later. How far we are succeeding is an open question, and we shall be glad of any suggestions along this line, which will enable us to render the course of study more satisfactory to all concerned. There has been during the few years of two places must be adopted, either to cut off the high school course entirely, and to give at the public expense only the rudimental and the elementary studies, or, if the high school is to be continued and made an essential part of our system of education, then it should be made as efficient as possible and rank up well with the high schools of the state. From careful observation we are inclined to believe, that notwithstanding so few, compared with the whole number of those attending our schools avail themselves of the privileges of the high school, yet we are convinced that in the with a large majority of the patrons of the schools that the high school should be continued and that it should be made efficient and take a creditable rank with the other high schools of the state. With this in view, the course of study has been revised by our present superintendent and some changes will appear in our next year's work.

We find also a difficulty confronting us in the school law of the state with reference to the adoption of text books, and we have as far as possible tried to clear clear of its difficulties by not adopting any books for several years. Under the present law, when a text book has been adopted by the school board, it must be used in the schools for five consecutive years unless by a vote of the district at its annual or properly called special meeting, action of the board is set aside and annulled.

There is taught in the schools, in compliance with the statute, physiology and hygiene with reference to the effect of alcohol on the human system, in all the grades.

The following is a list of the corps of teachers for the following year:

J. M. Tice, Superintendent.

CENTRAL BUILDING.

Miss Lillian Vowels, principal of the high school.
Miss Irene E. Hagood, assistant.
Miss Edith Fanning, 8th grade.
Miss Edna E. Patterson, 7th grade.
Miss Marguerite Schutt, 6th grade.
Miss Edith Jones, 5th grade.
Miss Mary Dunham, 3d and 4th grades.
Miss Laura Hunn, 1st and 2d grades.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL.

Miss Maud Heisy, 3d, 4th and 5th grades.
Miss Ida McMillan, 1st and 2d grades.

LINCOLN SCHOOL.

Miss Lena Fanning, 1st and 2d grades.
Miss Mary J. Miller, 3d and 4th grades.

The teachers who have been retained have demonstrated their fitness for the positions they are to have, and the new teachers employed come with the very highest recommendations.

The salary of the superintendent for the coming year is $900, and that of the teachers from $40 down to $18, the compensation being based upon the length of time each teacher has been employed in the district, with the exception of the high school, where the character of the work determines the amount paid.

Estimates of money needed, as prepared and recommended by the board for the next year, are as follows:

Teacher wages	$4837 50
Janitors wages	414 00

—One of George Burns' rigs had a serious runaway last Sunday morning. The rig was coming down from Boyne Falls with Mr. and Mrs. Monday, of Riverside, Ill., and a Mrs. Tucker, as passengers. At the corner of Bridge street and Dixon avenue the horses became frightened at a newspaper being cast by one of the passengers, and started down across the bridge at a swift run. Before reaching the bridge the two ladies jumped. Mrs. Monday was carried unconscious to Dr. Swain's residence. Mrs. Tucker being slightly injured. The driver and Mr. Monday remained with the rig until it reached the upper terrace, where both were thrown out. Mr. Monday sustaining a sprained ankle. The rig was a total wreck. Mrs. Monday remained unconscious for several hours, but the only serious injury sustained was the shock. The accident leads to the suggestion that an interesting newspaper is a bad thing to get in a rig.

—It will give real joy to Michigan newspaper men to know that C. H. Newell, widely known editor of the Coldwater Courier, escaped with but slight injuries from a runaway accident along a dangerous road in Mackinac Island Friday. Nature did not deal kindly in the matter of physical gifts to Newell, but she relented when she bestowed upon him a bright, keen and invariably cheerful mind that is an uplifting influence in those who generally contact with it.—Harbor Light.

—Many of our local readers will remember the epigram and brainy little gentleman who moved among the editors last week. He goes about on crutches, but he is still equal to the statesmanlike intellect. Mr. Newell is the editor who wrote the editorial in getting the convention to Charlevoix. Mr. Newell put up a nasty fight, but after the convention closed he fell in with the boys to make the Charlevoix gathering a success. When leaving Charlevoix Mr. Newell said "Smith, I am glad you beat me."

Death of A. D. Crunkshank.

After a long and painful illness of that relentless malady, Bright's disease, Andrew D. Crunkshank passed peacefully away at five o'clock Wednesday morning.

The death of this good citizen was not, by any means, unlooked for. It was a case of waiting and watching for the inevitable end. But the loss to this community is no less great. A. D. Crunkshank will be missed in Charlevoix.

Deceased was born in Canada 54 years ago. When a young man he came to Michigan, practicing law at Howell, moving from there to this place about fifteen years ago, residing here since, with the exception of three years absence in New Mexico.

Mr. Crunkshank was a lawyer of much ability and was honored by all of the fraternity of his profession in Northern Michigan. As a citizen he was noted for his liberal and activity in all matters concerning the good of Charlevoix. As director of our public schools he was always most zealous in the interest. His public spirited, generous, and a champion of local progress and good government. Personally, he was a genial and accommodating neighbor. He leaves a wife and one child.

He was an Odd Fellow and a Mason. In the first named Order he had served as Grand Patriarch of the Grand Encampment of Michigan. The funeral will occur on Friday at 10 o'clock p. m. from the residence, under the auspices of the Odd Fellows.

THE EDITORS.

What is Said Among the Newspaper Men About the Convention.

When the editors left Charlevoix last Thursday morning it was voted by officers and members that the Charlevoix convention was the best in the history of the Association. Every man was loud in his praise of Charlevoix and her people, and the manner and generosity of their treatment.

Especially were they pleased with the fine banquet given in their honor. Only sweet they pronounced one of the most successful they had ever attended.

The committee on resolutions reported the following:

Whereas, we are indebted to the citizens of Charlevoix for a cordial invitation to visit their beautiful city, and for hospitality and courtesies which have made the days of our sojourn here long to be remembered as pleasant events in our lives. Therefore be

Resolved, that we, the members of the Michigan Republican Newspaper Association hereby express their sincere gratitude.

It will be for members of our association a labor of love hereafter, not only to recognize the fitness of the title "Charlevoix the Beautiful," but to proclaim for her citizens the qualities, rare and benign, for which will lend such a delightful environment.

To our esteemed brother, Willard A. Smith, and other members of his committee who have labored so faithfully to make our visit a perfect success, we tender our personal thanks.

We are deeply obliged to H. F. Moulter, of the Pere Marquette for transportation and for the uniform courtesy accorded us by the employes of his road. We would also kindly remember the Locomotive of the Grand Rapids and Indiana, C. W. Moser, traveling passenger agent of the Michigan Central, A. A. Schantz, of the Detroit & Central Navigation Co. Manager Hanniff of the Inland Co. and our genial boat side hostess at Hotel Eaton.

It would be impossible for the writer to do justice to all the complimentary notices of Charlevoix that are appearing in the state press, in connection with the recent newspaper convention. The Bay City Tribune, publisher over a column, and the Grand Rapids Herald over a half column. The Tribune says in part: "The headquarters of the association was at the Hotel Eaton. Here, and at the inn, the newspaper men and their wives have been accorded every courtesy, and have enjoyed themselves. The service in both hostelries is faultless, and the hospitable proprietors make all guests feel at home immediately. This morning the newspaper folk were driven about, town and school and the improvements of this beautiful summer resort. Afterward a brief business session was held, and the afternoon all enjoyed a short cruise on the lake in the steamer Columbia of the Traverse Bay line. The weather was a little anxious. The Michigan Republican Newspaper association never enjoyed a more pleasant outing, and every member of the party appreciates that fact to-night, at the close of the banquet.

The Chicago Evening Post writes up a column about the event in the course of which it says: "The expression 'Charlevoix the beautiful' was coined by the Pere Marquette railroad for the purpose of attracting attention to this popular resort. The expression is not in the least misleading, for but few cities can lay claim to similar beauty. Nature has done much for this section, and the hand of man has added in every possible way to its attractive one. Situated on Lake Michigan and with a chain of beautiful lakes reaching for many miles inland, navigable for the largest vessels, it is an ideal summer resort. The "inn" and "Belvedere" are two large, handsome hostelries accommodating from 300 to 500 guests each. On the terraces surrounding the shores of the lakes are very many elegant cottages, representing values exceeding that of any residence in Chatauqua county. The Michigan Republican Newspaper Association met in Charlevoix Tuesday and Wednesday. Hospitalities were established at Hotel Eaton, a very comfortable and pleasant place. From the proprietor down to the bell boy everyone connected with the institution exerted himself to make our stay there pleasant. Editor Smith, of the Sentinel, assisted by committees, were indefatigable in their efforts to entertain, and proved themselves admirable hosts."

Damrage for Congress.

The Traverse City convention did good work in nominating the congressional candidate. The SENTINEL was heartily in favor of the re-nomination of Mr. Mesick, but cheerfully concedes that the 11th district could not produce a better man than Mr. Darragh for the place. He is a clean, cut, stalwart republican, and has an excellent record.

Mr. Darragh is chairman of the county committee, president of the Grand Rapids Savings Bank at St. Louis, and a graduate of the University of Michigan. At the opening of the civil war he was teaching in Claiborne county, Mississippi, one of the most disloyal sections in the south, from which place he made a speedy retreat to the north. He enlisted as a private in Co. H, Eighteenth Michigan volunteer infantry, in 1862. He was appointed by John Morgan's men and exchanged in 1863, when he immediately joined Co. D, Ninth Michigan cavalry as second lieutenant. He was promoted to first lieutenant in 1864 and to a captaincy in 1865, in which year he was honorably discharged and mustered out of the service.

After leaving the military service, Mr. Darragh had charge of the grain-war department in the Union school at Jackson two years and was the first superintendent of schools in Jackson county. He went to Grand Rapids in 1870 and established the first banking house in the county, which connection he has since been prominently connected.

In 1872 he was elected county treasurer, and in 1882 was elected representative in the state legislature, himself and the candidate for circuit court commissioner being the only members elected on the Republican county ticket. Mr. Darragh will make a strong candidate, and will be elected by a good majority.

L. S. SEE extends a cordial invitation to call at his store Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 20, 21 and 22 and sample the new food drink, Crushed Cereal Coffee Cake.

Sheep are worth more than twice as much this year as they were worth in 1896.

The total gross earnings of railroads were $230,000,000 larger last year than in 1896.

Mr. Bryan's return to the tax scenter has answered one of his pet arguments. Mr. Bryan is not growing poorer.

Every corn-fed steer in Nebraska is now worth $12 to $15 more than in 1896. Farmers in that State will hardly vote for Democratic times again.

No national ticket ever nominated gave more general satisfaction to its party and more trouble to its opposite than the one named by the Philadelphia convention.

Even the dormant consciences of modern Democracy forbids the party leaders to appeal to the shades of Jackson and Jefferson for endorsement of their present vagaries.

An increased American foreign commerce, with a decrease in American shipping engaged in its carriage, is the great fact hinted of by our foreign trade statistics for the fiscal year just closed.

President McKinley forgot that the duties to be levied under the Dingley tariff should "revive and increase manufactures." This has been done as our wage earners well know.

Two million two hundred millions of dollars was the value of our foreign commerce during the fiscal year just ended, of which American vessels carried, 7 per cent—foreign ships carry 90 per cent and earning $200,000,000 at the expense of the American people.

During the fiscal year just closed our foreign commerce far exceeded that of any previous year, while American vessels carried a smaller proportion of it than ever before.

Under this administration, our farmers, merchants and manufacturers have been assured that the markets of China would be always open to them in equal competition with other nations.

Under the operation of the Wilson free trade tariff for revenue only, there was a deficit of $108,000,000 in thirty-five months. Under the Dingley tariff for protection there was a surplus of $46,000,000 in thirty-two months.

The increase in the foreign trade of the United States during the fiscal year just closed, as compared with the previous year, will probably aggregate over three hundred millions of dollars—by far the greatest in our history—and yet the proportion of our trade carried in American vessels was the lowest of any previous year.

Nebraska hogs sold in Omaha, May 31st, at $1.30 per head more than on the same date four years ago, yet the World-Herald, Mr. Bryan's personal organ, which is published in Omaha, asserted very vigorously during the 1896 campaign that the prices of farm products could advance without the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

The statistics of our foreign trade for the fiscal year just closed show an increase in value of one hundred million dollars as compared with the preceding year, while the proportion carried in American ships was twice as small—a condition that will compel the passage of legislation at the next session of Congress for the revival of American shipping in our foreign trade.

In President McKinley, the people have a man of high character, unsullied reputation, unswerving patriotism, and a stronger candidate than he was in 1896, because his remarkable experience has strengthened and broadened him and better equipped him for executive duties. In Governor Roosevelt the people have a representative of the stalwart American of the day, and a man so closely identified with the policy of expansion as is the president himself. They make a strong team.

The platform of the Republican party this year is as strong as was the demand of the people for the unanimous nomination of McKinley and Roosevelt. Of the President it said: "Walking, guided, paths and facing unforeseen responsibilities, President McKinley has been in every situation true the American patriot and the upright statesman, clear in vision, strong in judgment, true in action, always inspiring and deserving the confidence of his countrymen." In asking the people to endorse the Republican party for its record of business prosperity, stable currency and patriotic Americanism, it should be remembered that the threat to prosperity has always existed in the ranks of the Democratic party as well as it is in capacity to properly manage our public affairs. The strength of the Republican platform, the strength of the two candidates that represent it, and the unanimity with which both were endorsed by the Republican party at Philadelphia will ensure a more sweeping victory than was given for McKinley and prosperity in 1896.

Hampton Wants a Farmer.

Bay City Tribune. The Hon. Charles Augustine Hampton, the polyglottic rag and bone statesman with the fog-horn voice, rises to remark that the Democrats will not nominate the Hon. Wm. C. Maybury for governor because that distinguished citizen is a farmer. "We must have a man in intimate touch with labor in field and factory. We must have a man who will razzle dazzle the opposition. I have in mind such a man."

Of course, you have in mind such a man, Mr. Hampton; but your sweet little as I school girl cookery makes you shrink from throwing the name of the modified one into the public prints for the washed and wrinkled to gape upon.

Get with it! The name the Hon. Charles has in his large, incandescent and roomy mind is the name of the man who ran for congress in the Tong district once and was not able to carry his own ward.

The Hon. Charles Augustine Hampton is the logical candidate of the Bedlam party. He is a farmer of farmers, having farmed the farmers successfully. He is a sturdy son of toil, being a member in good standing of the Jawsmiths, Windjammers and Spellbinders' Conservator association, and his sympathies go out, like the tendencies of a tame octopus, to the down-trodden workingman.

With the Hon. Charles Augustine Hampton as their standard-bearer the Democratic rank razzle dazzle wobbly that wasn't immune.

"Why, I don't know, I guess I'm all right," said Jim, with a sigh that belied the words.

"Well, I don't know what I'd do, anyway, if you shut down on me, Jim," said Mary, with much seriousness, for her sympathy was sore for her brother, as I see that she has yours, as well. But don't tell him about the title and the money until you're better for sure.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Mary Urnsome, the neglected wife of Luke Italind, had promised the disgusted Mr. Philby not to reveal the secret of his identity, and she honestly meant to abide by her word, but soon after leaving her husband she had a chance to tell him about it all.

"Pray, did I did not promise to conceal from Luke the joyful fact that he did not have to respond to me. I feel my secret, which was the conversation she had offered. If I can quit chasing around to Italind, I'm sure I can stay home and nursing Mr. Luke because his heart has been good to me. Why, I'm thinking of giving up my job, and my lodgings. Why, I wouldn't be surprised if I'd be dismissed from the office for it, I'm so absent-minded.

"Yes, indeed, I'm sure I'm. Why, I'm ashamed of myself, I'm so absent-minded. Why, I'm sure I'm so absent-minded that I'm ashamed of myself. Why, I'm sure I'm so absent-minded that I'm ashamed of myself. Why, I'm sure I'm so absent-minded that I'm ashamed of myself

The Antrim county fair is to be held at Bellaire this year, the first week in October. They will make the races a prominent feature, $600.00 being put up in purses.

At Kalkaska while shooting a toy cannon made from a piece of gas pipe, the cannon exploded, destroying an eye of Harry Howell, and severing one of young Eddie Mason's cheeks.

At East Jordan last week Fred Higgert had his eye cut and the sight badly injured by a stream of water from a hose. A companion had attempted to take the hose from him and in the scuffle both lost hold of the nozzle, and the stream struck him in the right eye.

East Jordan Herald: The trial of Wm. Bitley last Friday upon the charge of stealing a watch from Alson Mason resulted in his acquittal, and Attorney Clement gave him a leave of absence for 200 days which will be spent in Detroit where there is plenty of "watches."

East Jordan Enterprise: East Jordan is ready to have a new system of electric lights, a franchise for the same, on very favorable terms for the village, having been granted last week, and we understand the plant is to be put in this season. The village council is deserving of much credit for the able and judicious manner in which they have handled this matter.

Harbor Springs Republican: Prof. I. P. Heisler, of the M. A. C., Lansing, is to visit High Island one of the Hervey group and the home of some twenty-five Indian families, descendants of the once flourishing band of Island Indians. The professor's visit will be in the interest of his college for the collection of Indian relics, and gathering data connected with the early history of the Indian tribes in Michigan.

Traverse City Record: Hon. W. H. Foster announced last night that he has decided to make an effort to secure the senatorial nomination. He has refrained from entering the race on account of the candidacy of Hon. J. W. Milliken for the congressional nomination has gone elsewhere. Mr. Foster has decided to enter the senatorial contest, believing that the interests of Grand Traverse generally and Traverse City in particular demand an experienced person in the senate at Lansing.

East Jordan Enterprise: Geo. E. Anthony, of Manistee, who has been here the November for putting an electric light and power plant in this village, was in town Monday. He says the boiler, engine and machinery for the plant has been purchased and will be here shortly, and the plant will be in operation inside of thirty days. The lighting plant will be located on William street, between the water works pumping house and the railroad track.

It will be remembered that about two years ago the deputy game warden seized a large quantity of fish nets belonging to Neil Gallagher, of St. James, for alleged violations of the fishing law. Within a reasonable time the officers the nets were sold to have been stolen and have not been recovered. On the trial the case was dismissed on the showing made by his attorney, Mr. Gallagher will ask the State to pay for loss of his nets.

Joseph Bailey, an Ottawa Indian farmer, died recently at his home in Paris township, Benzie county. Bailey had he lived until September, would have been one hundred years of age. In the days of long ago the old Ottawa chief followed the chase in the wilds of northern Michigan, undisturbed by the white man's civilization, and among his beloved green clad hemlocks and sighing pines his true chief of nature passed his declining years, meeting death with the stoical fortitude characteristic of his race.

Harbor Springs Republican: David O'Connor has lately purchased of the Booth Packing Co. the large and powerful steamer "Agitator" of a large fleet of towing tugs owned by the Booth Company. The Agitator is the largest and best. Capt. O'Connor will expend $1,000 in refitting upper works upon his boat and giving her a complete passenger outfit. He will put her on the route between Charlevoix and the Islands, touching at Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Cross Village. She will be a larger and better boat than has ever been tried on the route.

Between Harbor Springs and Kalkaska the Grand Rapids & Indiana Company has laid double tracks, and is now operating mixed trains over the road, which is five and one-half miles long, every twenty minutes. This service is only continued through the summer, and is established for the accommodation of the fifteen hundred or more resorters who have cottages in floating Petoskey, Wequetonsing, Bay, West Wequetonsing, Harbor Springs and Harbor Point. The company is making many improvements along its line, and the boats of which it is Kalkaska now depot, now nearly ready for occupancy.

Mr. Kane and the Porto Rican Tariff.

Our excellent friend R. W. Kane announces in the public press that he has decided to support Mr. Hyzer in case of the Porto Rican tariff act.

Within the past year Mr. Kane has been very outspoken in his endorsement of President McKinley's war record and expansion policy, and yet, against the sickening lodged corrections of this republican record, and the proud fact that with it the United States has advanced to the front rank of world powers, Mr. Kane places the Porto Rican tariff in the scales.

Verily, this is straining at a gnat. There may be a doubt about the correctness of Mr. Kane's views on this colonial tariff question, but he has conceded that there is no doubt of the correctness of Mr. McKinley's views on these other questions—questions that outweigh the Porto Rican tariff question a thousand to one.

Further, Mr. Kane wrote a distinguished Michigan Congressman, asking for an explanation of the question that so harrowed up his soul. To the writer of this and to others, Mr. Kane expressed himself satisfied with the explanation. Now, what has come over our learned friend that he should change his views again? The Porto Ricans themselves are satisfied with the measure. Why should it have to encounter the disapproval of Mr. Kane? Why should he place a molehill of almost wrong against a mountain of positive and acknowledged rights?

We sincerely hope that, in the prudence of God, our friend may some time find a code of political precepts and principles that will do real injustice to his sensitive moralizing soul.

That Hand Contest.

The following article was printed in a recent issue of a Cadillac paper:

Referring to the hand contest at Charlevoix on June 21, The Kalkaskian in the issue of July 7, takes exceptions to the statement that Harrington's bulwarc hand of this city was awarded first prize, but such was the case however. When the judges began their loading of the contest they were instructed to mark every entry by per cent. This they did not do and were unable to give a professional decision of the relative merits of the contestants. Their conclusion was put final and when Fred Harrington instled upon being placed in either first or second place the editor of the celebration drew his order for the first prize, across the face thereof, which was written in red ink, "free money." If first money does not mean first prize, will some one please state what it does mean?

We do not wish to mix up in any hand row, but the above calls for a statement of facts in the case. The judges in the contest were the editor of KS paper, Major Putnam, manager of the second regiment band of Illinois, a practical and experienced brass man, and Mrs. Dr. Swinton, a man who there is no better judge of harmony in this section. They were not "instructed," and did not have to do so. They did not know a single individual to either hand. After careful consideration they rendered their decision in writing, that both were a credit and honor to Northern Michigan, but that they were so near together in an average of all points, that the total of all hand prizes should be equally divided between the two hands. If the secretary endeavored to bring contrary to this he did it independently and contemptuously. That there has been dirty work done in this matter is manifest, and that it was done in Charlevoix is certain. The Cadillac hand put up at one hotel and the Kalkaska hand at another, and thereby hangs the tale. The "official" who set aside the decision of the regularly appointed judges did a cowardly and dirty piece of business, and deserves the contempt of all good people.

White man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hagerty, of Lansing, Ks., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful stomach and liver regulator, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggist.

Money in Commerce.

This important industry is well worth the consideration of enterprising Americans, for it has resulted in the making of tremendous fortunes. A coconut tree yields fruit within five years after planting, and then bears uninterruptedly for over a century. Those engaged in shipping the copra to Europe pay $1 per year for the fruit from a single tree. The trees, once planted, need no further consideration. Ten thousand trees cover a comparatively small square, so that they are branchy. The trees invariably grow best in what is for all other purposes the poorest soil.—Leslie's Weekly.

A Novel Amusement.

An old opera lining in Chapel Hill, N. C., insists that in his youth he used to earn not a little money by permitting the students at the University of North Carolina in that town to break records on his thick skull. Among the students who so amused themselves were James K. Polk, in later days president of the United States, and William R. King, who was vice president in the administration of President Pierce.—Baltimore News.

Wonderful Surgical Story.

A wounded man went to the Bellevue hospital in New York and said he was a soldier and had been wounded in the Philippines. It turned out that he was a lunatic, and had been shot in the hip.

The Russian Navy.

It is impossible to state what naval force Russia could first shovel out when Japan. Great alliances have lately been made in the Russian squadron in the Pacific and China seas, since Vladivostok and Port Arthur are the bases, and some more vessels could doubtless be added in an emergency. The latest estimate of the strength of the Russian navy including vessels built and building, is 284 vessels of 698,652 tons displacement, while the navy of Japan, built and building, is estimated at 215 vessels, of 204,215 tons' displacement.

Uses of the Emperor's Pets.

Among the many fads of Emperor William is his passion for collecting books and shoes of famous people, his collection of these particular objects of attire constituting a fitting product to his boot museum at Berlin. The collection is kept in the marble palace at Potsdam and there are some 2,000 pairs, from Greek sandals and a pair of slippers reputed to have belonged to Mazeppa to the boots of Wallenstein, of Gustavus Adolphus, of Peter the Great, of Frederick the Great and lastly of the first Napoleon.

Distilled Water Drinks.

—Garfield Myers received notice yesterday that he had been granted a pension of $30 months per month from February 1899. The back pension amounts to $360. Young Myers was a member of the Ninnie Brooks, at the battle of Santiago. After the close of the war he fell from a compartment car and injured his left arm so badly that he lost the use of it.

—The Dexter Bill Hungerford Wild West and Grand Grand Mexican Hippodrome gave two performances yesterday, and gave entire satisfaction. Bom May Lillie, the champion rifle shot of the world, Mexican Rose, the charming senorita, the most daring and reckless horsewoman in the world; the Indians and cowboys, and the museum of strange wonders, the buffaloes, are all supremely good and wonderful. The whole show is one of rare merit, and we cordially recommend it to the people.—Detroit Mich. Daily News.

—The township board has decided to submit to the people of the township the proposition to bond for $25,000 for the erection of a new swing bridge across Pine River, in this village. There is no denying the fact that the bridge question has reached an acute stage. The condition of the center foundation of the old bridge is very precarious and either the old affair must be repaired at a cost of about $1000, or a new structure provided. Associated with this proposition is the new department decree that the drawn channel must be widened before anything deeper than a 12 foot channel can be officially provided for. Now the question for the voters to decide upon is, whether we shall patch up an old structure, which, at most, cannot be used more than eight years longer, or build a broad, modern bridge, with stone center pier and approach abutments, with a draw channel twenty feet wider than the present one. We are of the opinion that the latter plan will be, in the end, the wisest one.

The funeral of the late A. D. Cronkshank occured last Friday afternoon, and, despite a drenching rain, the attendance was very large. Beside the local lodge of Odd Fellows, which conducted the obsequies, and the Charlevoix deacons who were so kind as to bear the pall, there were legion city lodges of Odd Fellows, and many numbers from other towns, together with members of the Star, joined in paying respect to the dead Past Grand Patriarch. Representing the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows there were present Grand Master, C. H. Anderson, Detroit; Grand Marshal A. J. Strand; Grand secretary Whitney, and Grand Warden Brown. Rev. Hunter, of the Congregational church, officiated. As a token of respect, every business house was closed during the funeral. The floral tributes were profuse and beautiful. And, with all these fraternal honors, had he willing permission of his friends, as the heavens seemed to weep, per haughter, friend and brother was laid to rest.

The volume of matter printed in the state papers concerning Charlevoix in connection with the recent newspaper convention is so great that we were compelled to discontinue publishing those columns. At a conservative estimate there were 100 columns devoted to the trip, and fully one column was given to the praise of Charlevoix. These articles are from one-half column but two and a half columns in length. Among those most especially noticeable are the Three Rivers Tribune, Muir Tribune, Bay City Tribune, Holland Sentinel, Hartlage Banner, St Johns Republican, Grand Rapids Herald, Sturgis Journal, Quincy Herald, Owosso Press, Tecumseh Republican, Sturgis Journal, Dellevue Gazette, the latter papers heads its Charlevoix article with "One of the Beautiful Spots of Earth!" These are only a small part of the total number of those papers chronicling the praises of Charlevoix. Not only do they praise the beauties of our town, but they cannot say enough of the royal manner in which they were entertained by our people. No event in the history of Charlevoix has yielded the benefit to Charlevoix as the convention of the Republican Newspaper Association, June 19th and 20th.

Pawnee Bill's Show.

Pawnee Bill's Combined Shows gave two performances here yesterday and we have never seen larger or better pleased audiences at any other exhibition in the city. The Indian and cowboy pastimes were exciting and wonderful, and the representation of the Mountain Meadows massacre and other and most realistic drama of life in the land of the setting sun, was worth double the price of admission. The herding of wild buffalo and long horned Texas steers, the rifle shooting of Miss May Lillie, the wonderful performance of riding and of the sure aim, all will unchange, are all grand features. The show has the reputation of performing all it advertises.—Rochester, N. Y., Herald.

One of the Very Many.

We had inadvertently lost the job of providing the press editions of the resort convention was too big, but we must give our readers the following from the Pine Blade:

A meeting of the Michigan Republican Editorial Association was held at Charlevoix, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 18th and 11th, and was one of the most successful meetings ever held by that association. From a business standpoint the meeting was very profitable, the attendance being very large, and it is needless to say the entertainment furnished was far beyond their expectations.

The city of Charlevoix is probably the most beautiful and admirably located summer resort in the north, having many natural advantages which cannot be found in any other northern city. The association were tendered the invitation of the city, and every comfort and convenience was placed at their command. The invitation was extended through W. A. Smith, who, by the way, was employed on the Globe as a typesetter, 35 years ago, and some of the older residents will probably remember him. Mr. Smith is publishing a very prosperous paper in Charlevoix, and enjoys a very liberal patronage.

During our stay in Charlevoix, Mr. Smith looked closely to our interests, making our stay there one continued round of pleasure including a carriage drive around the city, a ride on the steamer Columbia on the lake, and the fitting finish was the elaborate banquet at the Inn Wednesday evening, at which 200 people sat at the board. Speeches were made by Congressman William Alden Smith, Col. A. T. Bliss, our next governor, E. S. Dodge, of Kalamazoo, H. H. Fitzhugh, of Lansing, Perry F. Powers, of Cadillac and others. It was nearly two o'clock in the morning when they left Charlevoix for the republican party, but crowd left for their hotels and homes.

It is seldom the pleasure of this or any other association to enjoy such hospitality as was shown us by the citizens of Charlevoix, and when we take into consideration that it is the most beautiful city in northern Michigan, we cannot but feel that the meeting could not have been otherwise than a pleasant one—and it was. Never did leave seen the beauties of Northern Michigan until they have paid a visit to Charlevoix, the beautiful.

It is an easy matter reach Charlevoix from either. By leaving here on the 7:30 a. m. Pere Marquette train, making a close connection at Baldwin, we are landed at Charlevoix at 9:20 with Monday's at 6:30, thereby, with this excellent service we are but a few hours from the most beautiful summer resort on the Northern Lakes.

Fatal Railroad Accident.

George Whitford, the 18 year old son of Frank Whitford, of the firm of Crane & Whitford's Sons, of this village, was killed by the north bound freight train at about five o'clock Monday evening.

With the train came along young Whitford attempted to board it to cross the bridge. In some manner he lost his hold, and was thrown beneath. His left arm was cut off at the shoulder, and his head crushed. The body was dragged some distance until the train was stopped, when it rolled down the embankment, where it was released in its fare down, until it was viewed by a coroner's jury. A verdict was rendered in accordance with the above stated facts.

This is the second violent death that has visited the firm of Crane & Whitford since within a month—Roy Crane having been killed in the mill only a short time ago.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
From George McCutcheon in the Philippines.
Lingayen Gulf, Luzon, P.I., June 5th, 1900.

DEAR OLD OLD HOME:—Since I last wrote (indeed the next day, 25) more of our men went out with some "El" company men under Capt. McHale, on a scouting expedition. They were gone two days, found nothing, though they did a long, hard "stike."

The work of chasing down rumors (capture a couple of alleged "amigos" who have no guns themselves, but will under pressure show you where some are hidden in another barrio 2 hours farther off) has the same thing over again—nothing there. But might be some "peso (distance, hour) yaqui hours" farther on—is harder than a "hike" under ordinary circumstances. If you start for a town you must get right through before any warning of your coming can possibly get ahead of you.

A few days later such company or the Third, stationed along the railroad sent the five mounted scouts and 40 odd men under Lieut. Walker, to help the Sixth Cols. at San Miguel. Say in defense and flattery but a captain of thirty whom his company ran away and lost in a skirmish. The Sixth has been bragging about how many less posts they had than the 3d had at Bulinag and how nicely they were managing things. They came into Bulinag when we left after garrisons had been established in every little barrio around there. When we were there Bulinag was the most isolated post on the island. We were being fired on nearly every night at the outpost of another or all around town. Of course they could take off some posts, but their officers think everything the natives said about "mucho Amigo" as gospel truth, with the result that when insurrection struck San Miguel they went through the town from one end to the other—the 25th had 7 or 8 men and a captain. The garrison at San Ildefonso went up to help them out, and when they came back it took them two days to drive the guerrillas of their old trenches (it wasn't against so many times—the Company of the 34 went up from Mexico, and as I said before, all out scouts are over there). The officers of the 34th will perhaps make up their minds that the officers of the 34 know what they were doing after all, and that all "our little brown friends," as they found the soldiers shall call the natives, are not what they seem—up in that week of the woods.

Of course, there is no severe fighting going on anywhere. Occasionally a small scouting party may run up against a fire so hot that they have to pull off and go at it from another direction, when probably their bad nothing but a few empty shells in a ditch or behind a bank on the farther side of some impassible slough or up top of a bank that may be offered from it first.

The rainy season I suppose there will be some shooting once in a while to keep the boys awake nights, but where the Americans "tend to their knitting, there is no danger of anyone very severe fighting.

Just a couple of belated papers a few days ago. They were on the Hancock, which left in Hong Kong for about a month—the letters were sent on ahead, but papers were held until she arrived in Manila.

The civil commission is now here. Of course they will not take charge of things until they have had a chance to look over the ground, suppose they will functionate civil governments where they can, and those parts infested with badmen will have to be handled entirely by the military power as now. If they can by any possibility get a civil government working satisfactorily in even a part of the country it will do more to put a stop to this sandbank business than any amount of fighting could do. It will be some years however, in my opinion, before the necessity for watching certain elements will be passed. Those fellows have been living for the past five or six years on contributions secured from the people either through sympathy or by force and the old parasitical instincts inherent in the race, have been coaxed and just as long as they can carry on their ludicrous business with any kind of a show to save their necks they will do it. Still, I believe that the majority of the people are tired of war and alarms of war and want peace, but we yet they have not sufficient confidence in the protection afforded by the Americans to allow them to give away such of the bandits as they may know or know of—this confidence will come in time, but until it does the authorities over here are up against a tough proposition.

We have had a refreshing shower and the air is nice and cool and fresh. Now if I could only stick my teeth into a red astrichan apple, I believe I should be perfectly happy. We have an apple—Chinese—over here. It is shaped something like an apple, its color is dark like a Russet peach, only more so, and the skin has down on it like a peach. When you first taste it you think it is limburger cheese, though it is more smell than taste. After, it tastes something like an apple—is dry and mealy and quite agreeable. It has four large seeds as big as your thumb.

Write often; I like to hear from home if I don't like much to write letters.

GEORGE.

Lingayen Gulf, June 5th, 1900.

DEAR OLD OLD HOME:—I must write you a letter to tell you about a trip I had the length of the Manila & Dagupan R. R. Corporal Holgren and private McCarthey in charge of two prisoners left here Wednesday morning for Dagupan, the prisoners there to be turned over to the Commanding Officer, to be forwarded to Lingayen, on Lingayen bay, for confinement in the military prison at that place.

Dagupan is the northern terminus of the only railroad in Luzon, is situated quite near Lingayen bay, so that steamers run up there and it is really a seaport town. We left here about ten o'clock. From here to Moncloa the country was familiar and the scenery very much the same till we had passed Angeles, where our regimental hospital is located. The country looks its best now, as it is just pulling on its greenest green in consequence of recent rains. Above Angeles there is a strip of country fifteen miles wide and from any I have ever seen on the island heretofore. The soil seems to be a sort of sandy gravel and yet it appears to be fertile. In many places there were fields of sugar cane which had not been harvested last year. In some instances the half rotten cane had been cut preparatory to plowing for the new crop. Some large fields were green with the new cane, in places the cane was just coming up and quite a number of fields of corn were in evidence.

At Bamboo, or rather just this side, was a large ravine crossed by a long railroad bridge. When the fighting was going on there last November and December, the Filipinos tore down one span of the bridge and then run engines and cars into the river. The railroad company has built wide tracks down into the river bed and were just finishing towing the wrecked rolling stock out on dry land. Up through that country the side tracks are all full of burned cars and wrecked locomotives, although the car shops at Calooan have been busy for a year and a half repairing and I dare not say how many trains of wrecks have gone down since we have been here on the railroad. This road must have had an enormous amount of rolling stock before the war.

Above Bamboo we stuck a timber bent, great mahogany over 20 feet without a knot, from 12 inches to 18 inches through. Large quantities of it were cut and lying along the railroad ready for transportation. The natives cut the trees into logs about 14 feet long, about the length of the flat cars used on this primitive railroad. The logs are hewed square and the ends cut wedge shape so they will slide along the ground better, then they chisel a hole through the corner of the wedge and put a plug through to give them something to hitch their cables to, and haul it out to the railroad.

After passing this strip of timber probably eight or ten miles wide, we came to a country where coconut palms seem to be most popular. The shacks are built in groves of coconut palms. The palms seem to grow everywhere as bananas grow around here, and they don't hinder the bananas from growing either. I can tell you a grove of palms is a pretty sight, with an occasional mango tree in between, about half as tall but covering more ground than a hundred palms, and bananas and other smaller trees and shrubs filling in all the interstices.

We got into Dagupan about 7 p. m. 3 hours ride to cover less than 100 miles—and awfully muddy we found it when we got there. The bird does not appear to be more than a couple of feet above high tide at best, is quite flat and soil of sticky clay similar to that here. The cities but made the streets pretty muddy. They are flat and not graveled, or made of shells as the streets here are. The town and country is cut up with lagoons and ditches in which the tides back up and it makes the country look half under water.

The next day we came back, Corp'l Holgren stopping at Angeles to get his teeth fixed at the hospital.

Friday afternoon a typhoon struck us, rain and wind quite like the fall equinoxes in Michigan, and it has kept up ever since. The rice paddies are full of water, and our new men are getting their first chance at the rainy season in the Philippines.

There is some talk of our going to China, but I don't think it amounts to much, though if there is anything going on the 3d generally gets into it. Wouldn't mind a trip up in that direction.

Our scouts got back Friday after about ten days out. One of them was kicked by a horse and disabled, just got back to-day, but otherwise they had no casualties.

Three men of our company went to the hospital this morning. They have been sick and in the hospital off and on for a long time, and will probably be sent back to the States before the rainy season is over. Generally the company is in tip top health.

The Democratic party is the tail of the Populistic kite this year.

He is known as Sulzer the Silent, since the expose of Hurr fund expenditures.

The dictatorial attitude of Boss Bryan at Kansas City, is very suggestive of imperialism.

The Republicans have no party perfidy and dishonor to hide from in their victorious campaign.

If farmer Bryan held his hoe in the wrong hand the farmers will soon get on to it when the moving pictures are in exhibition.

We oppose the nomination of a surplice.—Democratic platform.

The Democratic party has always been a debt creator, even in time of peace.

The war with Spain served to demonstrate something more than military and naval strength of the United States. It brought to light the vast resources and wealth of the country.

Any government not based upon the consent of the governed is a tyranny.—Democratic platform.

How about the government of the people of New York by the Tammany ice trust?

We renew our faith in the policy of protection to American labor.—Republican platform.

The Democratic platform renews its faith in foreign labor.

Under the Republican administration, making allowance for the war, the American navy are in process of erection at Hawaii Samoa, Guam, Manila and Porto Rico.

We condemn the Dingley tariff.—Democratic platform.

Yes, But the Democratic party is not honest enough to come out and openly favor free trade in the interest of American labor.

Within two years this Republican administration has realized, in cash or equivalent, the sum of $124,421,071 on account of the Pacific railroad indebtedness to the United States government. More than half of the money collected was for accrued interest that had not been paid.

While chairman Jones, of the democratic national committee, secured the adoption of a shipping plank in the Kansas City platform denouncing the ship subsidy bill, he was afraid to insert his pet remedy for our maritime decay of purchasing foreign (ship-by British) ships with which to do our foreign carrying under our own flag.

A London cable says that "nobody in England ever speaks of McKinley as anything but an uncompromising champion of American ideas and policies." His renomination was received in England without enthusiasm and with quiet reserve. It was different when Grover Cleveland was nominated to head the Democratic ticket.

Senator James K. Jones, as chairman of the committee on platform, at the Democratic National Convention in Kansas City, opposed and succeeded in securing the insertion of a plank denouncing the ship subsidy bill. Senator Jones is known as a leader of the party in British rather than the construction of American ships for the carrying of our imports and exports.

We pledge it.—Democratic party against private ownership in every form.—Democratic platform.

Thus way did the Democratic National Chairman, Senator Jones, and the Democratic leader in the House of Representatives, Hon. Sim. Jim Richardson, both prepare legislation that would have given millions of dollars to the sugar trust.

A new mulch cow for sale. Inquire of O. S. Washburn.

If the ship subsidy bill were passed American workingmen in the mines, the mills and in the shipyards would be employed in outfitting the ships our foreign commerce employs. If it is defeated, foreigners (chiefly British) will continue to build the ships and do our carrying for us. Naturally, then, the Democrats favor the defeat of the ship subsidy bill.

Subscriptions received from the popular loan issued in connection with our war with Spain amounted to $1,000,000,000 within thirty-one days. This was seven times as much as the amount of bonds offered. It was a very different result from that accomplished under the last Democratic administration, when our bonds were hawked about the world at high rates of interest.

The Democratic party is divided on the sleeping question, one part favoring subsidies and the other part favoring the purchase of foreign land which means British) ships with which to build up an American merchant marine. Each of these factions have had their say in congress, but the chairman of the Democratic national committee, who was also chairman of the platform committee at their recent convention, secured the insertion of a plank condemning the ship subsidy bill, in order, in that indirect way, to whip those of his party associates in Congress who disagree with him into active opposition.

The Canteen Fitely the Charleston Sentinel.

A recent issue of the army and navy register gives some statistics which are the result of a careful investigation of the canteen system made by Capt. Edward L. Munson, an and dist surgeon of the war department. They show that the canteen has produced an improved condition of army posts, a condition wholly different from the evils condemned by the late prohibitionists national convention.

Dr. Munson proves by his statistics that the percentage of cases of hospital treatment for alcoholism and its direct results, which for the 10 years preceding the introduction of the canteen system averaged 64.26 per 1,000, decreased during the 10 years following the introduction of the canteen to 44, 40, 44, 44, 37, 34, 32, 31, 30 per cent; that cases of delirium tremens have been reduced 31.3 per cent, and that cases of insanity due to intemperance have been reduced 31.7 per cent. An investigation further develops the fact that the percentage of desertions which for many years prior to the introduction of the canteen averaged 9.3 per cent, in consideration of the extenuating circumstances appears that the manager was cornered by the striking waitresses. He was made a target for sugar bowls and ice cups and was obliged to fight his way through the crowd of enraged girls. Fifteen Chicago girls were in the strike have been discharged.

"Success Fire Brand." that of the 50 Mongolian pheasants eggs seized by the Traverse City Bird & Gun Club last spring there are six healthy, promising young pheasants. Hal Perry is devoting his attention to raising the birds, and while several young cocks escaped, there are six which give great promise. Mr. Perry says that the birds are in fine shape and he expects that by next summer there will be enough to make a good start in supplying this section of the state with this species of game bird.

Cheboygan Tribune. While fishing in the river below the swing bridge Saturday evening a lady residing on Mackinaw ave., made a catch that has broken the record so far this summer. Her hook got hold of something which she supposed was a large fish, but she was greatly surprised to find that the hook had a good grip on something large. It was a canvas grip and contained the body of a baby, well wrapped in flannels. The lady did not make any mention of it to the authorities but threw the infant back into the stream and kept the grip.

One day last week some children found a minnow pail floating near a small boat landing dock in front of the Grand Hotel on Mackinac island. It contained the head of a woman, who, according to medical opinion was alive not more than a fortnight before. The skull was broken on one side, the ears cut off, and the hair gone. The first theory was that the head of a cadaver brought by a medical student for dissection, but the doctors say that such theory is untenable for the reason that the head had never been in a pickling tal, nor treated for the prevention of decomposition. The whole affair is shrouded in mystery, and the officers are trying to find some light upon it.

East Jordan Enterprise. As the East Jordan Lumber Co's big steamer was coming in with a train of about thirty cars, loaded with logs and tank, on Tuesday noon Harvey Bowen's tuff had jumped the frame of his pasture, and came on the track to dispute the right of way with the train. The heavy train was not going fast, but it could not be stopped before striking the animal. The 70 ton locomotive, not moving fast enough to knock the animal clear of the track proceed inclined to fit the animal up for a barbecue, pushing it beneath the wheel, and a pretty housing would result under the driver beaks. It broke off the coupling in the blow-off pipe, letting out all of the water and steam, thus "killing" the locomotive as well as the bull.

By General Orders No. 2, from Headquarters Department, of Michigan, G. A. R. Gen. W. Jackman, of Harbor Springs, is appointed aide-de-camp on staff of Department Commander Allen.

Petoskey Record. On the mail afternoon run of the Charlevoix Dummy last Wednesday the editor was on board and timed the little crate. The run of sixteen miles was made in sixteen minutes exactly.

The asylum at Traverse City is completely filled up to the female department, and no more will be admitted until some room can be made. Another cottage is now under course of construction to be used for women and will soon be completed.

Elk Rapids, in addition to its big business boom, has been struck with the base ball fever and a first-class team is being equipped and made ready to meet anything in an amateur way which chooses to offer itself. H. B. Lewis, secretary of the Elk Rapids Iron Co., is back of the enterprise and with his influence and energy Elk Rapids will be able to boast of a team that will be a credit to the town.

At Petoskey the grounds of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad are being repaired rapidly and when the new depot is built, Petoskey will have a broad grounds to be proud of. The new depot for the use of suburban trains will soon be completed and in full operation for the summer. The new track between Petoskey and Harbor Springs is completed, thus making a double track between the two resorts, enabling trains to run between the two places every 20 minutes.

The officers and trustees of the Marquette Monument association, which has been incorporated under the laws of Michigan to erect a national monument or statue in honor of the memory of Fr. Marquette in the state, park at Mackinaw island have arranged for a meeting at Mackinac Island, August 1.. It is to be designated as "Marquette Day," and addresses upon the life, work and character of Fr. Marquette will be made by Rev. Thomas E. Sherman of Chicago, and by Gen. John C. Black.

The manager of the Harbor Point club house, who was arrested on a charge of sensational bathing made by a waitress, pleaded guilty. He was fined $1 and costs, in consideration of the extenuating circumstances it appears that the manager was cornered by the striking waitresses. He was made a target for sugar bowls and ice cups and was obliged to fight his way through the crowd of enraged girls. Fifteen Chicago girls were in the strike have been discharged.

—The Charlevoix base ball team seems to be winning all the laurels. Last Thursday they defeated Bay View at Petoskey, by a score of 8 to 7, and yesterday they went to Traverse City, and won from that club by a score of 11 to 3.

—Petoskey Record: Charlevoix is receiving handsome notices in many of the newspapers of southern Michigan, for its hospitable and generous reception of the Michigan Republican Newspaper association, all of which are deserved.

—Livingston Democrat: Attorney Dwight H. Fitch, a former Howell young man, is now located at Charlevoix. Mr. Fitch has many friends at this place who wish him success in his new field. The people of Charlevoix will find him an honorable, upright young man, honest and true to his clients in every respect.

—The Rev. J. William Chapman, D. D., who is spending a short time in our community, will lecture on "The Holy Land," at the Congregational church, Sunday evening, August 5th. As Dr. Chapman has just returned from Palestine, and is full of the inspiration and enthusiasm of his travels, Charlevoix people are to be congratulated on having such an intellectual treat as this lecture affords. Dr. Chapman has been able to secure some extremely fine views of the "Holy and Lowest" of the lands and will exhibit these as illustrating his lecture. All who attend will doubtless have an enjoyable hour of the Holy Land, with Dr. Chapman as guide.

—The Epworth League will give a moonlight excursion on the steamer Inagh-Cotton, Wednesday evening, August 8th. A two hours ride in Pine Lake, leaving the dock at seven sharp. Fare twenty five cents. Everybody invited.

—The lecture of Nat M. Brigham last evening at the Inn was a most entertaining event. Mr. Brigham is master of his subjects—Western Scenery and Indian Customs. The listener, besides spending a pleasant evening, gains much knowledge of value.

—The Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad still lies the distinctive magic and is accepted as the Northern division of the great Pennsylvania system, of which it has formed a part for some time. A close traffic arrangement has also been effected between this company and the Michigan Central, for all western Michigan business.

—We are working hard to print a good country paper. It takes hard work to do it, and it also takes cash. You may think your $1.50 dole is enough to much, but, together with many otherlike amounts, and some larger, it amounts to very much. We need all these small amounts to keep the ball rolling and you may consider this an invitation to call in and contribute your mite. Don't wait for a dunned statement, but call in.

—At the recent annual school meeting there were sixteen citizens present—as down old time, only, also thought enough of our schools to devote an hour to them. When a village meeting is called to nominate village officers or a notice is posted for a township caucus to pick out a supervisor, the hall will be packed, and the good citizens will wrangle and scrap over their respective candidates. But our schools in which every citizen should have a nearly interest,—the schools in which our children are reared and which cost us more than anything else when we come to pay our taxes—they are not worth bothering with. This neglect of a vital public interest is criminal. When will we wake up and attend our school meetings?

—In another place on this page we speak of the small attendance at the annual school meeting. On Tuesday evening a special meeting was held to decide the question of bonding the district for enlarging the central school building. There were twenty six present, and the proposition was voted down. It goes without saying that this was not a fair test of the sentiment of the tax payers of Charlevoix. A judgment rendered by twenty-six out of four hundred can not be just decree. Now the school authorities are face to face with a crisis. The schools are over-crowded, and the prospects are for a larger number of children being left out in the cold—schoolless. Aside from the question of enlargement, a building of proper sanitation was involved, and that has been neglected—by twenty six tax payers. It is a shameful thing that can only be righted by employing a man to ring a big bell at the door of every citizen on the night of a school meeting.

—President McKinley, as the equal, united representative of two hemispheres, has lifted the yoke of oppressive imperialism from the shoulders of 900,000 Porto Ricans, from 1,500,000 Cubans, and 70,000,000 Filippinos. He has freed more subject colonists than the tyrannic of Spain, than Washington delivered from the oppression of Great Britain, yet in view of these facts of history Bryan would have the country believe that it boils down to a choice between him and an Emperor.

The Inland Route.

Very few of the residents of this fair north section are aware that just to the north of these is a fine a bit of scenic primeval nature as can be found this side of the Yellowstone. Right here under our noses, as it were, an expanse of navigable lakes and rivers that once explored, is a live hours dream.

It takes you 10 minutes—not to exceed 30, to reach Bay View, while it is yet early morning, and in ten minutes more you are whirling toward Lisbon on the G. H. & I., reaching there before your breakfast is fairly settled. At the dock lies the steamer Topinabee, a Chateaux built boat, and as comfortable and handsome a craft of her size as you can find in Lloyd's linguster.

You are soon speeding through Crooked Lake into Crooked River, the latter a seven mile, glorious stream, through broad meadows and again under archways of green, heading all points of the compass before entering the head of a sixteen of water about the size of Pine Lake.

During the hour that you are traversing this beautiful lake you can sleep or read if you like, but as you wave the big water and dive into Indian River your interest is again awakened. Down some beautiful resort grounds that cause you to wonder how they got there, and your wonder is intensified as you glide around a bend and into a pretty little town—Indian River. The Michigan Central resorts here, but before you discover the fact, you are wondering by what magic a town could be planted down here so in the midst of an African jungle. It may be that you pass on without knowing that "the iron sinews of commerce" have invaded this wilderness, and in the wild environments of nature but five minutes out from wilderness habitation.

In another hour you are in Mullet Lake—the largest inland body of water in Michigan. Away down yonder miles at the foot is the channel that leads to Cheboygan, 24 miles distant. But the boat takes a turn to the left, and in fifteen minutes you are at Topinabee, a beautiful resort, on the M. C. R. R. Here you get dinner, and an hour in the shade of a beautiful grove, and the Topinabee points her nose backward over the same wild pathway.

For tired horses, weary brain or strained nerves, the Inland route is a panacea. It is the loveliest trip in all the broad domain of Michigan, and too much whose energy and enterprise opened all its loveliness to the public, deserves public gratitude.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

Next Monday, August 6, the State teachers' institute for Charlevoix county will open and continue in session eight days. The teachers of Charlevoix county, and those contemplating engaging in the work should attend the institute.

The entire month of the institute will not take place of normal school training, but it is the best substitute we can give.

We note with pleasure that the teachers who are enthusiastic in institute work are doing the best work in the school room. Bring your text-books. The work will be conducted along academic lines as well as the professional. We will allow the usual per centages for attendance, at the regular examinations through the year.

James H. Thompson of Evart, familiarly known to his friends throughout the State as "Commissioner Jim," commissioner of Oceola county, the Republican nominee for member of State Board of Education and one of Michigan's five most educators will conduct the institute. E. T. Vee, superintendent of the Reed City schools will assist.

Mr. Thompson answer in this will be a lively session, and he is desirous of seeing our usual large attendance very much increased.

Parents interested in the advancement of educational affairs should visit the institute. All will be welcome.

The Reading Circle year begin with the institute and the books will be on hand for sale.

The State Democratic Ticket.

At the State Democratic Convention held in Detroit last week, W. C. Maybury, of Detroit, was nominated for Governor, Jonathan L. Hansdell, of Traverse City, for Lieut. Governor and H. B. Hudson, of Manistee, for auditor general. These are about the only names that interest northern Michigan.

Maybury is mayor of Detroit. Pingree was kept on the bench of this circuit for twenty-five years by the Republicans and because he could not hold it longer he went over to free-silver in the face of his previous condemnation of it.

If there was ever a case of genuine sorehead, it can be found on Hansdell's front farm. He will not carry his own county, city or ward.

Hiram B. Hudson is the man who introduced Bryan at the Charlevoix railway station as the "greatest hero of the century," supposedly not excepting Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Sherman or Sherman.

Maybury is an honest man, but a Bryan democrat, standing for all that the designation implies. The second on the ticket is as arrant a demagogue as ever betrayed his friends.

In Northern Michigan republicans who know all the facts, the apostasy of Jonathan L. Hansdell four years ago is considered to be without honest motive or reasonable cause. If the convention nominated J. V. Hansdell to strengthen the ticket in Northern Michigan it made a great mistake.

On the occasion when Judge Hansdell attended his last republican convention he participated in two other conventions the same day, and was a candidate in all three of them.

"Save the Republic," shouts Mr. Bryan, and then adds, not in voce, "I am the Republic."

Protection for American citizens abroad may always be relied upon under a republican administration.

The Tammany ice box will cut somewhat of a figure at the ballot box. So will the ice trust in Chicago.

The Democratic managers have signed up an Emperor scarecrow, but it will not stampede the American voters.

The Kentucky Democrats indorsed Goebel in their platform, but took very good care to shelve his principal accomplice in the Goebelmortal theft.

The Kansas City ticket and platform is calculated to make things lively at the exits instead of the entrances of the Democratic party.

Indiana friends of the Democratic imperialistic candidate are forcing Bryan Soldiers' clubs to "hoop" up martial patriotism for the Nebraska colonel.

The Republicans will be satisfied with nothing less than a majority of 300,000 in the state of New York this fall, and they are confident of securing it.

Wages have been higher during the last few years than ever they were before in the United States. And that was the period when the largest number of trusts were formed.

The shortage in the country's stock of lumber simply means that the lumbermen underestimated the extent of the building operations. Building activity always accompanies prosperity.

The Democratic leaders are unable to point to one act of the Republican congress that is inimical to public interests. Unlike its Democratic predecessors it didn't take orders from the Havemeyers and other trust magnates.

Senator Hanna has been pounding away at the Philadelphia platform. Senator Hanna is the gentleman who recently distinguished himself by not being able to tell the difference between conditions and a subscription.

Monopoly is impossible in this country unless it be enjoyed through a patent issued by the United States.

In their change of mind concerning the Goebel law the Kentucky Democrats are moved by expediency and not by morality.

In 1896 there were 111,000 tons of canned pig iron in the United States. The wage-earner wants a continuation of the latter condition.

It might be well for Bryan to arrange with his co-editors to get out a thicker edition of the "second Bible," and begin to prepare beforehand for explaining how it happened.

Wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye, hogs, beef, eggs, pork, bacon, rice and cotton all advanced in price during June. These are McKinley prosperity facts. Cash in hand is better than Bryan's libertos.

Bryan may be too busy to talk about the ratio, but his opponents may be depended upon to remind him of it about twenty-five times a day from now on to the idea of November.

If American ships carried American foreign commerce about $200,000,000 that is now annually paid to foreign ships would be kept in the United States.

A Berlin dispatch states that the Germans are hoping for the election of Bryan and a Democratic Congress, in order to prevent the passage of the American ship subsidy bill at the next session of Congress.

The Tammany ice trust is coining fever and thirst into such handsome profits that their Mayor is receiving an annual dividend of $10,000 on his stock. This is no political canard, for the Democratic mayor confessed it under oath on the witness stand.

The production of war vessels in 1896 was only 4,17,000 kegs. Last year it was 7,500,000 kegs. The increase of 80 per cent when the mills were open meant a large amount of extra business for all industries in which wire nails are used.

Information from Germany indicates that much alarm is felt in shipping circles there lest the passage of the American ship subsidy bill will restrict the development of German shipping in the American foreign carrying trade.

Those persons who argue that the election of Mr. Bryan would do no harm because the gold standard is an accomplished fact, utilize the same species of logic as those who believe in the suicide of the pardoning power immediately after the conviction.

Ex-Governor George Hoadly, of Ohio, is a railway Democrat who repudiates the Kansas City platform. He doubtless proceeds upon the theory that, when one plank of a political declaration of principles is admitted to Dishonest, it is safe to distrust the remainder of the document.

If the American shipping bill passes Congress at the next session, the increase in the world's shipping will be a very short time, largely reduce ocean rates of transportation, as an compliment that will largely increase the foreign markets for our surplus productions.

English newspapers have been keeping a keen watch on the development of American shipping, and they express well-grounded fears that the passage next winter of the ship subsidy bill will bring a large American shipping into sharp competition with British shipping in its American foreign trade.

The reception given to the Democratic National platform's utterance on the shipping bill by the patriotic press of the country has been one of ridicule and disgust. Nothing more partisan and untrue was written in the Democratic platform than what it said in opposition to that bill.

The payment of nine million dollars a year to build up American ships in the foreign trade, says Senator Frye, will, through the keen competition that will be engendered, effect a reduction in ocean freights on American imports and exports equal to about twenty-five million dollars a year.

Senator Frye estimates that as soon as the shipping bill, which he expects to put through Congress at the next session, has built up a substantial fleet of American ships, there will be a large and permanent reduction in ocean freights, the benefit of which would go more largely to our farmers, whose products compose nearly three quarters of our entire exports, than to any other class of our citizens.

Commissioner of Navigation Chamberlain estimates that the building up of American shipping will cost the United States about $200,000,000 in thirty years. That is the sum Great Britain has paid to British ships in the past sixty years. It is the sum, moreover, that the American people pay to foreign ships for doing our import and export carrying each 12 months.

STREET CAR INCIDENT.

Stolen Adoptions Cannot a Man be Honest for Its Sake.

This young woman and mine a downtown Madison Avenue car at Twenty-ninth street about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, says the New York Sun. One of them carried three four-foot adoptions in her arms. They were dead and stuffed but they didn't look it. An elderly man, who was asleep in the corner awoke when the girl turned to speak to one of her companions, jerked his nose with the stiff tail of one of the coyotes. The man's eyes bulged from end to end of the alligator and grew wide as they traversed. Then he arose unsteadily and slid out of the rear door. He made no outcry or remark till he had established himself on the platform. Then he soft sweet tones, not without a tinge of thankfulness, and with an accent on the final syllable, he murmured: "Good-by." He dropped off to the ground and took a leather that landed him within the dark shelter of a corner drugstore. The girl looked after him with a puzzled expression, which presently changed to one of relieved. Turning to the other passengers and patting her alligators she remarked inaudibly: "They're off."

Conscription Of Canes a Quaker.

The village of Saratoga has inaugurated its public market for the purchase of the finest tree ensignifiers which adorned out to deserve the street shade trees, says the New York Press. Three hundred people, residents and visitors, brought the goats in pairs and pairs and received 20 cents a quart for them from the village, which moves them alive. Nearly $300 was paid out yesterday. This method of extirpation is found more effective than spraying the trees.

Swamp Angel.

During the defense of Charleston, S. C., in the war of the rebellion the Union forces erected a rampart upon Morris island into the deep mud of the swampy land surrounding the fortification, and upon this rampart placed a huge piece of ordnance, which was fired with great effect in the attack upon Fort Wagner. The ordnance received the name Swamp Angel from the peculiar situation.

National Road.

The National road has been somewhat designated as the old Cumberland road. It is an ancient national highway established by Thomas Jefferson, and extended from Baltimore, Md., to Columbus, Ohio, passing through Western Pennsylvania and Wheeling. It was once a great thoroughfare.

Most Valuable American Coin.

In the estimation of coin collectors the most valuable of all the American coins today is the perfect silver dollar of 1804. The highest auction price is $1,000, and there is a report of $1,200 having been paid for one at a private sale.

Patriotic English Parent.

A parent, named Jenkins, in an English town, has named the twins which arrived the other day Roberta, Buller and Tugela. The latter was a girl baby.

"Yes, I thought it the right thing to do," said the Professor, in the quiet, deliberate way of his.

"Well, I don't know about that," said Dr. Philip, thoughtfully; "it may be the proper course under such circumstances, but I don't know that it is the best. I don't know that it would be best for us to have it generally known that there has been a robbery committed on board of the ship."

"Why, what difference does it make, pray, in the matter of the robbery as Mr. Philip—or, rather, Mr. Dunning, as we must now call him—has stated it, that the captain's clerk, who threw us off the scent, should have placed the money where he did?"

"I have already given my reasons for that course," said the Professor, drily.

"Yours and subject of conjecture," said Dr. Philip, with a little sharpness of tone, which he at once seemed to regret, and he added, in a more conciliatory manner, after which he suddenly asked, "Are the hospital patient, Dunning—What is the best name, anyway?"

"My real name is my Dunning, but I prefer Digby Digby, or Digby, or Digby Tuesday," said Sir Philip in a clear, ringing voice.

Both Doctor Digby and Winnie gave a smile in spite of the sympathetic feeling had for the very worse, or one might like to call it, a sinner, considering the present among the spectators, but the Doctor then turned back to his chair with a spasm in each of dolorous, which he at once, as if ashamed of the new name, came to.

"Yes, I think I will call you Digby," said the Professor, with a very, very, for him, kind smile.

"Well, I don't care a damn, so long as I get my medicine," said the patient, with a sigh of relief.

"Now, Dunning, I mean Digby, I will give you your medicine, and you must take it at once, and then we will see what we can do for you," said the Professor, in a tone of authority, which, however, was not at all disagreeable to the patient, who, as he took the medicine, said, with a little sigh of satisfaction, "It will be good to be in a place where I can get some more of that."

"Now, Digby, I will give you a little more of it, and you must try to get some sleep," said the Professor, as he gave the patient a second dose of the medicine.

"Yes, I will try to do so," said the patient, with a little sigh of satisfaction, as he settled himself in his chair, and in a few minutes he was fast asleep.

"Now, Dr. Philip, I think we may go on with our consultation," said the Professor, as he motioned to the Doctor to take a seat at the table.

"Yes, I think so, too," said the Doctor, as he took a seat at the table, and the Professor, taking a seat at the table, said, in a low, clear, and, for him, very pleasant tone of voice, "Now, Dr. Philip, I have to thank you very much for your kindness in attending to my poor patient, and I hope you will be good enough to continue your services to him, for I feel that I am not competent to do so, and I am very, very anxious that he should be properly attended to, for I feel that he is a very, very, very,

Central Lake will hold her annual street fair on September 25, 26 and 27 being the week after our county fair

Central Lake has suffered from an $8,000 fire that destroyed three hotel lugs in the business section. The loss is pretty covered by insurance.

Enos. Jordan Enterprise. We understand that Holy Island has been purchased by Messrs E. N. Clerk of this place and banker Curtis of Petoskey. For years this isle has been a favored site for a temperal resort park and we hear the new proprietors will take some steps to improve it the present season.

James Delaney, one of old Chief Pelonkey's elder sons, died today of pneumonia, at his home near the Indian camp ground, known as Wahmo-me, about four miles south of Petoskey. The funeral was held from the house Saturday, the body being interred in Greenwood. With this death there now remains but two sons and one daughter out of a family of 14 children.

Grand Rapids Press. The following communication dated at Port Huron, Mich., and has been received from a person signing himself Harry Hilliges, 11 Eighth-itself city: "Grand Rapids Press, Grand Rapids. I wish to notify Albert Smith, the Indian captive, that he has been granted $4,000 by the Indian Department of British Columbia for his ill treatment while a captive with Tecumseh from 1801 to 1807. He will be paid this by next fall. I served two-six years myself with Mr. Smith in the same tribe. I was taken from Fort Wayne and Mr. Smith was taken from Traverse City. I am now was to Hancock, N. H., where Mr. Smith lives. He was in Northern Michigan, and the story of his adventures while captive among the British and Indians has been published in the Press, which I will ask us to residents of the Grand Traverse District.

East Jordan Herald. The lumber company's roll-way at the old Burton mill site was the scene of a frightful accident Monday noon, John Kirkpatrick was engaged in loading logs on a car when it slipped from the roll the car jump hook imbedding itself into the calf of his leg, pinning him to the log beneath. A log about rolled down and struck him on the leg below the knee, completely pulverizing that member. The unfortunate man was immediately brought to town and Drs Sweet and Foster administered. They decided that immediate amputation was necessary to save the man's life. After all preparations had been made he refused to submit to the operation, and expressed to be sent to Manistee as he had a ticket pointing hither to the hospital. Accordingly he was placed on board the train and transferred to the train at Chatsworth, Tuesday morning, but he died before reaching Pelkadey. All efforts to communicate with the unfortunate man's relatives were unavailing.

Traverse City Record. News reach-ed this city yesterday of the death of W. W. Johnson, a thirty-year-old man, near Central Lake, from a terrible accident that occurred Tuesday night. Mr. Johnson had been in Central Lake during the day a week returning to his home along the railroad track in the evening when he was struck by the south bound Petoskey Manistee train and both legs were severed from his body. The train men did not know of the accident and Johnson was left by the side of the road all night, not being able to make anyone hear his cries. At a o'clock in the morning he was discovered by a man named McGuire on his way to work. A crowd collected around him and physicians were summoned, who, in the presence of the crowd, completed the ghastly work of amputation of both legs. Johnson rallied later sufficient to tell what he had heard the train, but had not been able to get out of the way. He was a hard drinker at times and it is thought that he was so intoxicated that he had lost power to properly appreciate his danger. We have heard six hours after the amputation of his limbs. Mr. Johnson was one of the earliest settlers in the region having homesteaded the land where now stands Kalkaska. He was a man of bright intellectual attainments, was a reader and a thinker, and could converse entertainingly upon almost any subject. He first went into the business of raising poultry and the early settlers remember his place by the nickname of "Chicken Johnny." At that time the market for poultry in this section was so limited that he found his business unprofitable and afterwards engaged in the raising of hogs but soon found that a lot of hogs with nothing to feed them, was more unprofitable than chickens, so he dropped that scheme and then engaged in the money business in which he did a large and thriving trade for many years. His specialty was foreign coins and tokens, and he had a large force of people engaged in gathering nine cones and in pulling up little maple sprouts and various other native forest products. His trade was extensive as he not only found a market in the United States but exported considerable to Europe. He was considered one of the best postal men in the world upon forestry and at one time published a large volume upon the subject at an expense of nearly ten thousand dollars, but which proved to be another unprofitable investment. For the past few years he has devoted his time to raising small fruits and gardening.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by his chains, of disease is the worst form of slavery. Geo. D. Williams, of Mason-ville, Mich., says, My wife has been a helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This surprises a needy for female diseases quickly, as nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This is guaranteed to work wonders with feeble people. CHAPTER XXVIII. (Continued.)

"Yes, neither the crews of four in safety rescued from the hospital a short time ago are good men," said the magistrate. "Six Pilots Dutch" was found murdered on Sunday morning and buried yesterday."

"Pa-ficus, and now knows the reason of it better than yourself and those two fellows at your elbow," said the Sir Philip.

"The report will overback the lamit to the bench, in consideration of the great services of Sir Philip, Sir Andrew and Commodore Hagan, and the Admiralty."

"My machines!" he mused and rationed as this it say was in this town, and Sir Philip.

MRS. PIPER'S TRANCES.

A Description of the Mode of "Communication" Made to Her.

The mode of communication is somewhat as follows: Mrs. Piper goes into a "trance" some six or 10 minutes after manifestations of some future sitter begins. She lies in her head resting on a pillow placed on a table, says Harper's Magazine. A pencil is placed in her fingers and the communications are written out on a sad provided by the sitter. Mrs. Piper is not touched in the mean time, so that material connection is excluded from consideration. The sitter simply remains in silence until he finds it necessary to ask a question, which is addressed to the medium's hand. In the meantime, and without any suggestion or question, all sorts of thoughts come rising to views in the previous life of the "communicator," may be written down, all unknown to Mrs. Piper and often unknown to the sitter, but verified afterward among those at a distance who may be thus interrogated. To many these facts will seem trivial, but their close connection is that first. The first problem for the psychical researcher is the personal identity of the alleged discarnate entity, and only the final trivial problems can make that certain. Telepathy, personal philosophy, social knowledge, and similar phenomena without disembodied intelligences spontaneous. Personal experiments, which I conducted show that living, intelligent, and even trivial incidents can be made to prove their identity and that the course of these does not arise at all times of their character or conditions of life in the session.

Nature's Magnetic Influence.

The mystery of the "wobbling" of the earth's axis may be explained by the opinion of Dr. J. Hain, a German astronomer, by assuming that the values of our planet is affected by changes in the magnetic influence of the sun. He publishes a compilation of observations on sun-spots and on meteorological motions of the north pole which appears to show a connectedness between the two phenomena. He proposes a mechanism of sunspots the magnetic influence of the sun seems to be greatest and after the passage of such a maximum the disturbance of the earth's axis is considerable. The fact that the north pole of magnetism do not correspond to latitude with the geographical poles may perhaps also explain the fact that the sun's rotation is not uniform, and that it is not perfectly spherical. When the magnetic axis of our globe is most powerfully excited then the strain along its magnetic axis may cause a distortion of the figure of the earth which becomes less as the strain diminishes.

What Girls Think Most Of Men.

In a recent issue of a London weekly, girl readers were invited to give an opinion as to what the characteristics were considered to be the most lasting in men, and it was stated that the competition should be decided by the votes received. A very large number intelligent opinions on the subject. The best features of character in men, affection, the latter, in some instances, manly and rather but after a careful reading, it has been found that according to the votes of readers the intellectual were the less characteristics considered most beneficial. 1. Freedom from 2. Conceit. 3. Selfishness. 4. Cowardice. 5. Meanness. 6. Laziness. 7. Jealousy. 8. Untruthfulness. 9. Gambling. 10. Cruelty.

Agricultural Statistics from Argentine.

The luxury or more young gentlemen from the Argentine Republic are arriving recently, come to the United States to study agriculture and stock raising at the expense of their government are now in Baltimore, Philadelphia and Hoskins, diligently learning the English language, in order that they may make the best use of the advantages that are to be offered them next fall in the agricultural colleges they will enter.

Wheat Crop of Northwest.

Minnesota alone produces enough wheat to supply the bakers of wheat, almost one-thirty-seventh of the total production of the world. Of this she is able to export two-thirds. Of the Dakotas are now beginning to reach their limit of productiveness. North Dakota raised in 1899 30,000,000 bushels and South Dakota 42,000,000. Oregon produced 24,000,000 bushels.

Hints for Country Houses.

A flag carpet woven in stripes is more effective than one in checks. Unless than straight will are fashion red, red blue, tan, black and white. Narrow lines of black and white edging broad stripes of color always look well. Make a design on paper by by the effect of the proper arrangement of stripes and colors. Chair tidies of any kind are no longer in vogue.

Switch and Irish Patent.

By the elevation of Sir Richard Webster to the office of master of the rolls England is left unrepresented in the great law office of the kingdom, at the new attorney general, the Right Hon. Bailey, is a Scotchman, and the new solicitor-general, Sir Edward Carson, is an Irishman. The latter is the first man who has been solicitor-general both in Ireland and in England.

Orange Freeborn's Scenic Experience.

Quoin poaching has no more charms for the few men who were left on Sikhs Island by the Mexican general Democrats, and had the alternative of starving or risking their lives in a small boat to reach the mainland. One of them arrived at San Diego a week ago, after a tramp of 800 miles—New York Tribune.

American Cheese Factories.

There are about 4,900 cheese factories in the United States, in addition to several hundred creameries making cheese in small quantities. The total number of cheese made last year was 265,000,000 pounds of which about 75,000,000 pounds were produced in New York state.

Proportion in German Army.

The majority from portionals is still quite high in the Germany army. Every soldier convalescent from it has a furlough of four weeks.

ON THE MAGICIAN.

How Bill Nye Once Turned a Joke Upon Herrmann.

A few years ago Bill Nye and James Whitcomb Riley were touring the company together and one day when in a Chicago hotel were seated at a table in the dining room opposite Herrmann, the magician. Although each was known to the other, no sign of recognition passed between them. But Herrmann, who was always playing practical jokes upon his friends, had prepared one for Nye. While the latter was about to investigate the mysteries of a salad that had been placed before him, he was beneath a metal bowl, a superb and scintillant diamond, set in a very fine gold ring. Without allowing the least surprise he lifted the ring from the salad bowl, slipped it on his finger, concealed all the while that every eye was upon him, and, turning to Riley who sat next to him, remarked, with his dry, inimitable drawl: "Strange how careless I am getting to be in my old age, James. I am forever leaving my jewels in unlikely places. Herrmann was dumfounded at the sudden manner in which his trick had miscarried, but he was destined for a still greater shock. Soon, when the darky waiter who presided over the table brought on the next course, Nye turned to him and soberly handing him the gem set ring said: "You are a very good waiter, Joe. You ask I guess I'le ask." "And you always will be a real good waiter, Joe" Nye, "Yes, sah, I'm boun' to do ma best, sah." "I believe you, Joe. I believe you, and, as an evidence of my faith in you, I want you to accept this little trifle. Wear it and always remember the man who most appreciated your services." The darky's eyes bulged. Herrmann's face rattled to the floor and he lugged at his great mustache, but was too clever to cut in with an explanation of such an inopportune moment. There were half-suppressed titters all around the board during the rest of the meal which the professor of occult art did not appear to enjoy. At a late hour this night Herrmann was heard in loud argument with the dusky recipient of the diamond ring, trying in two languages to convince him that it was a joke on the part of Mr. Nye. Finally, after disbursing a tip of more than customary liberality, Herrmann got back his ring. He afterward followed the same show, was worth 1,000 and that Bill Nye's somewhat presentation of it was a grinning social success.—Washington Times.

She Wanted It for "Kiddo."

"I want a very small toothbrush," said a fashionably dressed woman to the clerk in a Philadelphia drug store the other day. Jim was shown some children's sizes. "Oh, they are not nearly small enough," remarked the woman. "I want a diminutive, smaller. They don't come any smaller than this," said the clerk. The woman's face showed keen disappointment. "Just wait a moment," she replied. "I'll be back directly." Then she ran to her carriage and reappeared with a little Japanese spaniel in her arms. "You see," she explained, "I want the toothbrush for Kiddo. His little teeth are getting quite yellow and I thought an application of powder would do them a couple time." Then she compared the dog's mouth with the brushes. "No, they won't do," she decided. "I'm afraid Kiddo would hurt his poor little mouth terribly. Can't you have a very small one made to order?" The clerk, whose patience had been somewhat exhausted replied in the negative and the woman departed.

Tucson to California.

There has been considerable discussion regarding the author of the phrase, "The constitution follows the flag." Hayes has been generally credited with this distinction, because some months ago he wrote a signed article for a New York newspaper in which the phrase occurred. "No Democ statesman," says Congressman Long, of Kansas, "can rightfully claim to be the author of the expression." "It little has been working the rounds for years," said John C. Sheehan, "and I remember it was the source in a debate in the senate, on February 24, 1848. Calhoun said: "Wherever our flag waves, our constitution goes."—Washington Post.

Expensive Language Necessary Volapuk.

Volapuk is the name of the great universal language invented by Zamenhof, a Russian, it said to have invented. Volapuk died a natural death some years ago. Gladstone once predicted that English which is to-day spoken by upwards of 120,000,000 people—would be used by 500,000,000 in the year 2000. Inventors of language propose and the world of people dispose.

Constitution Inquiries Delay.

Our nation congressmen say that the results of the eclipse will not be known for months. The thing has already caused one good citizen in Georgia to commit suicide, and it is to be hoped that public indignation meetings will stop any further advertisements of a show which is now a back number.—Atlanta Constitution.

Rag-Time Around Americans.

At the first performance of Sousa's band in the American section of the Paris exposition, the enthusiasm of the musical audience of Americans that gathered to hear it did not break all bounds until the "Coke Walk" and other ragtime pieces were played. Then the American colony became delirious. The Frenchmen present couldn't understand it.

Tobacco and the Tax.

Gladstone, surface promises to stand on one leg, fellow at the first trail; he reviews the rag, and it balances perfectly. "Tell me, Chris," said Kate Ferdinand, "why did you turn three times?" "Because, you ungrateful girl, I had to wind up the clock!" "Oh, I see! Well, I guess that's the benefit of this Democracy. You get the idea of discovering America from Lord Salisbury. But, of course, theories are not always what they are cracked up to be.

Monster Aerial Vessel Sets Its Course Then Goes Lake Constance, Ventures and Returns to Its Starting Point Caused by Tube Blowing Out.

The airship was accompanied by a small boat containing the inventor and his assistants. Food with hammocks and blankets for the night, in case of the airship's being forced to descend on the lake, and a large Zeppelin dirigible balloon, which Prince Henry of Prussia christened on the occasion of his visit to the works in the spring, followed the airship in a gondola, the gondola being equipped with a wireless apparatus. The airship, which was filled with hydrogen, rose easily and steadily enough to a height of 1,000 feet, and then, with the motors working at full speed, it headed against the wind and made for the Swiss shore. When the bow reached the shore, the motors were stopped and the airship was allowed to drift back over the lake. When it was opposite the starting point, the motors were again started and the airship headed for the shore, but soon had to turn back because of the wind. When it was opposite the starting point, the motors were again stopped and the airship was allowed to drift back over the lake. For a time the airship was stationary, but then it began to drift toward the Swiss shore. The engineer ordered the motors started and the airship headed for the shore. When it was opposite the starting point, the motors were

East Jordan Enterprise. Bert M. Moore, of Great Falls, Montana, was visiting an old acquaintance this week while on his summer vacation. Mr. Moore was a former resident of this place for a number of years, being engaged in the practice of law, and from 1888 to 1890 held the office of Circuit Court Commissioner, and for a short time had charge of the Enterprise. He had not been in East Jordan for a number of years and was considerably surprised to see the extent of substantial improvements that have been made in our village since his last visit, seven years ago.

There was a sparring exhibition at Boyne City last Friday evening of last week between Frank Williams and Joe Ashley. Among those who went were M. A. Doty, Ed Hossefrosh, Mike Mathews and "Pike" Osborne. The latter went as a second for Will Simon. The affair was advertised as a twenty-round go, but only lasted about a minute and a half. At the call of time Williams began rushing Ashley and had Ashley going all over the ring landing several times and had him crowded over the ropes when in swinging blindly for possibilities he landed a chance blow on Will Simon's jaw, lifting him completely from his feet and landing him on the back of his head. He was "cold" for several minutes and was somewhat dazed for hours. There was over $100 in the purse, which was divided 75 and 25 per cent.

L. E. Slosser, judge of probate of Antrim county, editor of the Mancelona Herald, ex-postmaster, ex-president of the village, and Republican editorial writer and power in northern Michigan republican politics, been financially broken and each one of these has now added another laurel wreath to his brow. At Mancelona a harvest jubilee was planned for Saturday. Slosser announced in his paper that a novice would make the ladies admission and promenade drop, and when it came time Saturday for the novice to appear Slosser was on hand. He made an occasion of it, just four hundred people and slaughtered a calf from the place of starting, adjournment. He was the hero of a day and Antrim county admirers says he can have any other county office he wants to and hasn't had—Grand Traverse Eagle.

Boyne Citizen. A deal was completed last Friday whereby Sim H. Wilson and T. B. McLean came into possession of about thirty acres of beautiful resort grounds, just south of town. The land comprises a part of the Cobb farm, and takes in the natural grove so much admired by all who have visited the spot. It is the intention of the new owners to make it a prominent resort another year. For one present not much will be done toward developing the property, save to clear it up generally, and prepare it for another season. In addition to locating a large number of cottages from the town, and at the same time making good roads, going to it easy accessible at all seasons. If the project is successful, it means much to the future of Boyne City. No expense will be spared to advertise it thoroughly during the next few years and as much good of it as possible.

THE FALSE PROPHET OF 1896.

Summary of Disasters Predicted by William J. Bryan During the Campaign of 1896, as Found in His Own Words, Entitled "The First Battle."

If the prophecies and predictions made by Mr. Bryan had proven to be true, the gold standard which has been in operation ever since he uttered them, would have produced the following direful results, to wit:

It would have increased the purchasing power of the gold dollar.—(MacLean Square Garden speech.)

It would have been an certain to make prices fall as a stone is to fall when it is thrown into the air.—(New-ton, Iowa, speech.)

It would have increased the debt of the people and lessened their ability to pay them.—(Baltimore speech.)

It would have made times harder and harder.—(Sioux speech.)

It would have starved everybody except the money changers and the money makers.—(New Haven, Conn., speech.)

It would have transferred the bread which our toil earns to another land who had not earned it.—(Hartford, Conn., speech.)

It would have made the rich richer and the poor poorer.—(Newark, Ohio, speech.)

It would have decreased the number who are happy and increased the number who are in distress.—(Same speech.)

It would have destroyed the business of the farmer.—(Same speech.)

It would have destroyed the equality in wealth.—(Same speech.)

It would have increased the number on the next census.—(Same speech.)

It would have decreased the volume of standard money.—(Same speech.)

It would have impoverished the laboring of money.—(Hermosillo, Ill., speech.)

It would have made it more and more difficult for the farmer to live.—(Madison Square Garden speech.)

It would have injured the wage earner.—(Same speech.)

It would have made employment less certain.—(Same speech.)

It would have discouraged enterprise.—(Same speech.)

It would have paralyzed industry.—(Same speech.)

It would have lessened the ability of savings banks to collect their assets.—(Same speech.)

It would have increased the danger of depositors losing their deposits in savings banks.—(Madison Square Garden speech.)

It would have compelled depositors in savings banks to withdraw their deposits to pay living expenses.—(Same speech.)

It would have lessened the salaries of those engaged in business occupations and would have lessened the permanency of such salaries.—(Same speech.)

It would have injured those who have permanent investments in railroad stocks and other like enterprises.—(Same speech.)

It would have injured or destroyed the manufacturers of agricultural implements, engines and boilers.—(Springfield, Ohio, and Flint, Mich., speeches.)

It would have lessened the ability of the masses to buy goods and therefore would have lessened the number of commercial traveling men.—(Indianapolis speech to traveling men.)

It would have made it impossible for laborers and wives to pay all the mortgages on their homes.—(Minneapolis, Minn., speech to ladies.)

It would have made it necessary to sell cattle, the closing up of our public schools.—(Mannington, Ill., speech.)

It would have made it very difficult to raise money or to hoard it than to invest it in enterprise or property.—(Syracuse, N. Y., speech.)

It would have made dearer money, cheaper property, harder times, more people out of work, more people destitute, more people desperate, more crime.—(Minneapolis speech to ladies.)

It would have lowered the standard of civilization in this country.—(Madison Square Garden speech.)

It would have been writing the future in blood, crushed out by gold.—(Erie, Penn., speech.)

All these prophecies and predictions about the evils that would befall us if the gold standard were adopted have utterly failed.

Mr. Bryan said in a speech delivered at Lincoln, Nebraska, July 7, 1900: "The fight this year will be to carry out the sentiment of that song we have so often repeated, 'My Country 'tis of Thee.' If we lose, our children and our children's children will not succeed to the spirit of that song, and descendants of the Fourth of July will pass away, for the spirit of empire will be upon us."

Those Democrats who control the party machinery favor the registry of foreign built (chiefly British) ships as a remedy for our present insignificant merchant marine in the foreign trade; but they do not have the courage to so declare in their national platform, as they committed themselves to opposing the only bill that has any chance of passing Congress for the upbuilding of our merchant marine.

The Republican party had demonstrated that self-government is not only possible, but honorable and full of glory. The leaders of today take counsel of the wisdom of the past. They are the disciples, not the traducers of liberty. They gave freedom to Cuba and Porto Rico and will give that freedom to the Philippines which will best protect individual rights and guarantee the respect of other powers. This is the imperialism of true freedom, the loyalty of justice and will soon be recognized as the crowning glory of national achievement.

With the exception of two years, years productive of distress, hunger, bankruptcy and panic, the destiny of the nation has been partially or entirely under the control of the Republican party ever since the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln in 1861. During these forty years the country has advanced by leaps and bounds in population, wealth, material, social and intellectual development. The trans-Mississippi region has been reclaimed from ballalo ranges to imperial states, bridges have been thrown across mighty rivers, railways have been built over the mountains, millions of homes have been created, schools without number have been built, colleges have been endowed, human liberty has been extended, the verdict of the ballot has been respected in Republican states, and the public has a deeper hold on the affections of its citizens than ever before, and compels respect abroad.

W. A. CLINE, Mgr.

Mr. Bryan has much to say of "imperialism," as "Emperor" and the abolition of the 4th of July. Yet he was the first man to inaugurate and maintain a supreme dictatorship over an American political organization.

The confessed wisdom and justice of America's position with regard to the present Chinese trouble is a tribute to the ability of the administration, whose purpose is justice guided by firmness and tempered with mercy.

If the 16 to 1 proposition is not an issue why was it placed in the Kansas city platform? If that plank is dishonest and doesn't mean what it says what must the public think of the remainder of the structure?

The Republican National platform declares in favor of legislation for the upbuilding of American shipping in the foreign trade. The Democratic National platform opposes such legislation, and suggests no remedy for our present maritime decadence.

The Republicans are thoroughly committed to the shipping bill now pending in Congress. Without pretending any remedy for the lack of an American merchant marine the Democrats content themselves with merely opposing the pending shipping bill.

—Mr. and Mrs. Eli Jefferies are settled in their fine new Clinton street home.

—Mrs. John B. Hough, of Grand Rapids, joined her husband here last week.

—Capt. Wm. Hulme, Sr., returned from Cleveland yesterday on the schooner Mahr.

—Frank Frederick, of Traverse City, with his yacht, the Haven S. Pingree, Jr., is here this week.

—R. M. LaFollette, republican candidate for Governor of Wisconsin, is here on the yacht Bohila, of Menominee.

—Nines from the Belvedere and Inn played ball yesterday afternoon before a good crowd. The score was 9 to 7.

—Mr. and Mrs. Will Holdsworth, of Traverse City, are the guests of Mrs. Holdsworth's parents, Archie Irwin and wife.

—The steamer Pilgrim will give an excursion to Petoskey Sunday, Aug. 19th. Leave Charlevoix at 9:30 a. m. Fare, 50 cents.

—Mrs. Capt. Fountain and children joined the captain yesterday, and are settled in the pleasant quarters at the life saving station.

—Lotus and Myrtle Miller have been entertaining several young lady friends the past week—one from Cadillac, four from Traverse City, and one from Ypsilanti.

—Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, of Portland, Ind., were here last week, the guests of Mrs. Chas. Tripple. Mrs. Smith will be remembered as Miss Ella Reed, who visited Charlevoix a few years ago.

—Rev. Dr. J. W. Hallenbeck, of Union City, joined his wife here Friday. The Rev. Dr. says he has been homesick for Charlevoix many times. He will spend a portion of his vacation here.

—Over at the roller mills about $1,000 has been expended lately on new and modern machinery. The Charlevoix roller mill management propose to keep the plant up to date in every particular, and are contemplating still further improvements.

—The man whom the Democrats have put up to run against Mr. Dalzell for Congress—Dr. Geo. Simon, is a Methodist minister who has preached all his life, inside the past two years, and he will, if he is a good fellow, keep right on preaching at St. Louis to the limit of his five years.

—A straw indicating how the people of Michigan feel on the political issues of the day is taken from the fact that 25 newspapers that two years ago reported their politics to the secretary of state as independent or democratic now report their politics as Republican, and some of them in very strong terms.

—The congregational church people will give a concert at the church on the evening of August 20th. Besides local talent, musicians and singers of ability from the resorts, and numbers furnished by members of Prof. Newell's Inn Orchestra, will make up the program. The evening will be one of the greatest ever presented here, and should be well patronized.

—Without a doubt Charlevoix, as a nursery of fame reports, takes the prize. Whether some individual takes delight in exciting times stories for the fun of the thing, or does out of sheer cussedness, we know not, but whether the latter is, he should be hoed to the penitentiary for life. Last week the report went flying that the steamer Pilgrim was lost with all hands, and this week a boat was capsized in Grand Traverse Bay and several lives lost. Of course there was not the slightest foundation for either report. Starting these false reports is a crime and should be punished. Those who utter them, when they cause much anxiety and pain,

—"A Breezy Time" at the opera house Friday evening.

—Wm. Stevens and wife, of Petoskey, were in town Monday.

—H. F. Pillsbury left Friday for an two weeks' visit in Minneapolis.

—Mrs. W. H. Calef returned to her home in Chicago Tuesday, on the S. S. Illinois.

—Mrs. Jessie Smith McGibbony, of New York, is visiting her brother, F. A. Smith.

—At this writing the hotels are full and applications for accommodations are being rejected.

—"A Breezy Time" will appear at Lewis' opera house Friday evening of this week. It is one of the best things on the road.

—Mrs. J. W. Harris is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Hillenberg. Mr. and Mrs. Harris now reside at Eddyville, Iowa, where Mr. Harris holds a position in the engineer corps of the C. & N. W. R. R. Co.

—This season demonstrates the fact that Charlevoix is short on summer hotels yet, as people are being turned away from the town every day. Without doubt there will be some enlargements before another season opens.

—The Rev. C. A. Vincent D. D., pastor of the First Congregational church, Galesburg, Ill., will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church next Sunday morning, August 19th. The church should be full on that occasion as those who fail to hear Dr. Vincent will miss a treat.

—The greatest disaster in the history of that road occurred early yesterday morning on the G. R. & I., just north of Grand Rapids. Because an operator slept two trains running at full speed, came together. Seven were killed, and more will probably die. Both engineers and firemen, and one conductor were among the killed. Both engines were demolished, and the baggage cars smashed. The accident occurred in a dense fog.

—Although one hundred dollars reward has been offered, the body of Ralph Wentworth, who was drowned in Pine Lake last week, has not been recovered. Capt. Fountain, of the life saving station, has been searching for it, but would not accept the reward, however, if succeeded. The region in which the body is supposed to have gone down, has been thoroughly dragged. On Monday an expert from Chicago will come.

—A geological party is being formed for a day's outing to hunt fossil and other rock specimens. Rev. Jas. Dwelle, D. D. and member of the London Geological Society, Dr. V. F. Marsters, Professor of Geology, Ind. State University, and Mr. H. F. Palmerlee, will conduct the excursion. Ladies or gentlemen who can walk three miles, and wish to join the party can leave their names at the Inn, Belvedere, Elston or Beach hotels. Date about Aug. 21.

—Charlevoix had a strike one day last week that at one time promised to seriously effect if not entirely paralyze a big industry. The cause was the gait team had been getting into ranks an hour, and the strike was for "fifty cents per round." The kids were in dead earnest, and their nerves were on the jump. The gait players were saddles, and they yielded, and pretty soon we shall read about the "Gaff Cadillac Tailors."

—A correspondent of a Chicago paper, writing from Charlevoix, says: "A colony of Ishelbeing (Ill.) people is located at Ironton, a point on Pine Lake six miles from this place. These people have one of the novel locations of the resort region. Ironton is an abandoned smelting town. Ten years ago fire ore was brought here and smelted. There are now the remains of a dozen or more charcoal ovens where the material was burned for charcoal purposes. More than $500,000 was invested here, but the coke regions of Pennsylvania began producing coke so cheaply that it was no longer feasible to ship ore where fuel was to be had. While the blast furnace was in operation it brought a large number of people, little cottages were built for the employes and others. When the furnaces was suspended the cottages were unsaleable. A citizen of Charlevoix, John Thompson, was raised in this country, and brought one or two neighbors to summer with him here. Thus was the beginning. Subsidiing people were taken in until now there is more than 100 of them here. The old general store of the blast furnace company is now used as part for a dining room, and the cottages have all been fixed up and trimmed according to Rock county ideas. There is no "Ironton" in Charlevoix county, and of building a modern clubhouse."

—Cadillac News: The Rev. George Kilborn, a Methodist minister, has been transferred to our neighboring eleventh district as the Democratic candidate for congress. It requires some fortitude and grace than the average sinner possesses to go up against the seven thousand majority which Mr. Dalzell, the republican candidate in that district, will most assuredly receive, and it was an act of self denial on the part of the Rev. Mr. Kilborn to present himself for the sacrifice.

—At the Traverse City shooting contest on the 9th the Traverse City club won, thereby retaining the trophy that they came up here and captured. This was, Traverse City 69, East Jordan 62, Charlevoix 61. The only contesting teams were those mentioned, but there were several marksmen present from other places aside from Traverse City, who participated in the sweepstake shoots. The grand stand on the grounds was filled and there was quite a large crowd besides, although the intense heat kept many away. The tournament was a success and the visiting marksmen were pleased with the reception they received there. The event inspired new interest in shooting in this section and another similar occasion will most probably be arranged. One of the interested spectators at the shooting contest, says the Traverse City Record, was H. Elgin, of Chicago, one of the owners of Forest Lodge, who is spending the summer at that resort. Mr. Elgin is an ardent admirer of good marksmanship and after the contest yesterday he generously offered a $25 trophy cup to be contested for by the same clubs eligible in this contest, to be contested for before the first of September. The prize will become the property of the team winning it in a single contest. This offer was greatly appreciated by the local and visiting teams and another exciting tournament will be the result.

The matter of the nuisance complained of by many citizens and property owners and agents of property in corporate limits of the village to the city carts and manures, filth, rag weed and other foul growth within 48 hours after said notice.

On motion the superintendent of sidewalks was directed to build sidewalks in front of the lots owned by S. H. Nelson, Jos. Dixon and Mary Wood at once, and charge same against the property. It was also directed to put Livingston's sidewalk on grade.

The question of a dumping ground for refuse was considered and on motion the Com. on sanitary matters was instructed to procure at best terms possible a place for such dumping ground.

On motion the Supt. of water works was instructed to put in three ventilator windows to better room at once.

Council adjourned.

W. H. McCARTHY, Clerk.

People who talk of this country backing out of free silver if it proves dangerous, demonstrate their ignorance of the situation. It would be a case of damage once done, could not be undone. When a person loses money through carelessness or otherwise, it may be recovered or the loss made good in some way. When a person, however, loses money by cheating, it is not easy to get it back. Probably the only way is to go to a court, and, and all over again. Silver thus, however, cannot do that. There is no way for them to hide from the scorn and contempt of other civilized nations.

THE GOLD STANDARD.

ALL COUNTRIES ARE RAPIDLY ADOPTING IT

Russia, Japan and India, with Their Population of 800,000,000 People, Have Fallen Into Line Since the Congress of 1896.

The extensive discussion now in progress directed in 1895 and thereafter upon the subjects of silver as a standard money metal is now a thoroughly dead issue by the events since that date, that a detailed discussion of the question seems not necessary. It is not improper, however, to call attention to some great facts which account in some degree, at least for the success of the gold nations in run by the vanquishing the double, fluctuating standard and adopting the single and now almost universal standard gold. The general movement among nations fell to adopt the single gold standard did begin about 1870, during the 10 years of England, which took into account in 1816, and when that time all the nations of the world excepting Russia, China, Korea, Siam, Persia and some of the smaller republics of Central and South America, had by law adopted the gold standard. Recent statements indicate that Russia is preparing to follow the action of the gold standard in her own terms, this accomplished, leaving with the doubtless being initial step toward similar action with reference to the currency of that country. Japanese statements recently published indicate that Japan is preparing to adopt the single gold standard. Even in the short time since the enactment of 1896 the gold standard has been adopted in Russia, with a population of 125,000,000, India with a population of 300,000,000 and several of the Central and South American republics.

In the same time the old and very much gone by, in the gold production of the world averaged less than $140,000,000 per annum, in the fifty years since then the average of the world has averaged $230,000,000 per annum, and in two years it has been $300,000,000 in the short closing years of the nineteenth century. The total production by a planetary and universal law half of the century. In the single year 1896 the gold production was as large as that of the first fifty years thereof.

This enormous increase in the production of gold as compared with that of previous centuries began with the discovery of gold in California in 1847, and gold mining in Alaska in 1848. Gold was found in Australia in 1851, the European discoveries in South Africa in 1886, and the Klondike in 1896. The enormous deposits in South America, which have been known for a long time, will doubtless be developed and gold-producing mines now known, and those of which we have no knowledge, will be found in the future. Humboldt in whose all time has been supplemented and their results have been and are now being, in the hands of new agents of extraction. Humboldt wrote: "Gold is found in alluvial or mechanical form, in veins, in the sand of rivers, in the sand of the ocean, in the sandstone and in the rock. The gold-producing mountains are found in the primitive rocks, in the primitive sandstone, in the secondary rocks, in the tertiary rocks, in the alluvial rocks." Humboldt wrote in 1811 and 1812, and the gold-producing mines now known, and those of which we have no knowledge, will be found in the future. In addition to this, however, Humboldt says that the bulk of the gold of the world to day is found and used as money, while in 1809 only one-sixteenth of the gold was used. This again does not take into account the gold money, and therefore some than four times as much gold coinage for each coin used in the world today as in 1809.

Of the world's silver, according to the same authority (Mulhall), 40 per cent was mined in 1800 and 52 per cent in 1900.

Gold, unlike most commodities, can be used, and is used, over and over, permanently, not eaten, or worn out or destroyed, and each year's addition to the mass, which is now the world's permanent stock of the precious metal, swamps the small proportion which is used in the arts, which, everyone knows, perhaps 15 to 20 per cent of the world's product. Keeping this in mind, it is seen that the result of the last half century of gold production is the total amount mined is more than twice as great as that in the hundred and fifty years preceding, for, roughly speaking, the world's present total stock of this Aristocrat of money metals, will exceed Redfield's offer as important, if not a complete explanation of the fact that during that half century in which the product was so greatly increased, the price of all commodities of the world have advanced the double standard and adopted this rapidly increasing and generally acceptable measure of value.

There has been also an enormous increase in the production of silver during the same period, the total of the last fifty years being, in round numbers, 10,000,000,000 against 2,000,000,000 in the three hundred and fifty years preceding. This silver has also gotten largely into use as a money metal, and the annual use of silver money in China is now at a full circle, and is greatly increased.

Hit as an Index.

About one hundred million pollars of all of all kinds are annually exported from the United States. Nothing can be the largest and most valuable of the products of the country, and which first all the money receipts in consideration for the exports would be needed to offset the sum foreign shipments take out of the United States each year for doing 32 per cent, of the foreign carrying. People readily appreciate the value of our old exports, but they seem to be ignorant regarding the gold or its equivalent in our commodities that is sent abroad each year to pay foreigners for carrying our imports and exports.

OUR ISLAND MARKETS.

French Journal Shows Their Value to Our Foreign Commerce.

The prospective value of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Hawaiian, Philippine and Samoan Islands, as markets for the products of the farm and factory in the United States, is illustrated by a recent publication in the Moniteur Officiel du Commerce, an official publication of the French government, which discusses at considerable length the commercial powers of those islands and their, consequent economic value to the United States, and the prospective increase in their consuming powers through enlarged production under American control. The statements are as follows:

"The consumption of foreign products by these islands is made, in almost equally of articles of manufacture and of agriculture of the temperate zone. Out of $20,192,321 worth of products exported from the United States to Cuba in 1894, the value of $9,490,363 was in goods of agriculture. Out of $4,604,477 worth of exports for the same year, $2,000,000 was in goods of the same category. The exports from the United States to Porto Rico and the Antilles are making gradually of cotton, live animals, oil seed, cotton goods.

"The first thing that comes to the minds of the farmers when the events following the war for the liberation of Cuba brought matter into contact with tropical crops was whether or not possessions were adapted to the cultivation by the United States would be a source of profit or loss. The apprehensions which they believed were all groundless. Cuba is a country of the tropics, which is the most favorable world of sugar which of the world's consumption is annually consumed. This fear of it needed at the stage in which it could be called by the time was answered in the negative by the Republican party when it passed the Dingley bill. The Democratic party fought with all its power against the Dingley bill, and its measures which placed a duty upon sugar, coming into the United States from Porto Rico. The duty was small, but it was sufficient to protect the sugar industry of Porto Rico. The Republican party that it would not hurt the power to fix such tariff as it might deem expedient, against the products of other tropical lands wherever located and under whatever conditions. In other words, it was a distinct advantage to the United States to have Porto Rico and Cuba, and that the Dated, Charlevoix, August 20, A. D. 1900.

In case Mr. Croker fails to rally the young men of the country, the work ought be turned over to the Tammany Ice Trust.

There is not a free trade newspaper in the United States that does not warmly commend the Democratic National platform plank which opposes the passage of the shipping bill.

The Texas Democrats are engaged in a lively internal rumpus. The "Hogg" element is bent upon making trouble, and intervention by Chairman Jones' forces may be necessary.

The battleship Oregon will come home with a patch on her hull. This was the normal condition of the American laborer's trousers during the late Democratic administration.

The Democratic orators are being instructed to use the act repealing the 16 to 1 plank of the Kansas City platform. Thus do they apply the scuttle policy to their own declaration of principles.

The North Carolina Democrats have again red-shirted that state. They will now turn their attention to national affairs and join Mr. Bryan in the protest against "government without the consent of the governed."

When one plank of a political platform is admittedly rotten the entire structure should be condemned at the ballot box. The Republican party is not striving to hide or apologize for a single line of the Philadelphia platform.

The brave General Lawton, a life long Democrat, lost his life because of the encouragement given Aguinaldo by his American sympathizers. The Democratic leaders have the audacity to ask the voters to endorse that policy in November.

Chairman Jones declares that the Cotton Compress Trust, of which he is a stockholder and beneficiary, is authorized by the constitution. We believe the same claim was set up by the promoters of the Tammany Ice Trust.

"Silent as to the Presidency. The senate is safely Republican, and it would be impossible for me to do any harm to the country during the next four years." Does the country want a chief executive who is compelled to make such a plea in his own behalf?

Mr. Bryan doubtless feels internally vexed over the praise bestowed upon him since his nomination, by prominent English papers like the "Spectator." It must be naturally disagreeable to be taken for a friend by a nation serious which he wants to wage a worry war in the hope of gaining the votes of such people in this country as feel hostile to The English apparently care nothing about Bryan's pro-Boer protestations, for they do not believe Mr. Bryan as president would be militant enough to interfere the Anglo-Saxon countries so blandly was by going any further than offering to mediate, as president McKinley did. Why England wishes for Bryan's election is because he is a Free-trader. By closing the ports of the United States the mills of England would do a big per business. The work that Mr. Bryan would keep very from idle some workmen would go to the workmen of England.

The Democratic pies that the 16 to 1 plank was inserted in the Kansas City platform to fool the Populists is not calculated to inspire confidence in the pluck of the other voters. A party that foreswore conception upon one class of voters will not hesitate to enlarge its field in that particular line.

"I was a Democrat and I believe in 1896," declares the Hon. Thomas M. Waller, of Connecticut, "and as the situation has not changed, I am a Democrat and a leader still." The Democratic editors have devoted many columns to abject failures to answer this Connecticut Democrat.

What Lincoln accomplished for the black man, McKinley is doing for the brown man, and as the African has erected monuments to the memory of their great emancipator, the Filipino, when he realizes the work accomplished for him will build monuments to the memory of his liberator.

The Hon. Webster Davis' profound knowledge of military affairs has led him to pay a high compliment to the war record of the Hon. William J. Bryan. It will be recalled that it was the Hon. Webster Davis who so graphically described the operations of the "brown dragoons" in South Africa.

General Ferdinand C. Latrobe, an old line Democrat who served as mayor of Baltimore for seven terms, declares that McKinley and Roosevelt will carry Maryland by a handsome majority. Mr. Gorman declines to identify himself with the Bryan campaign in that state.

Some of Mr. Bryan's injudicious friends are trying to show that his support of the Dewey treaty, like his 16 to 1 plank in the Kansas City platform, didn't mean anything. Mr. Bryan's friends should step to one side and permit their candidate to appear as a candid man in some matters.

The Hon. James M. Beck, of Philadelphia, one of the leading lawyers of that city, announces that "I am no longer a Democrat. I don't believe in free silver, nor do I believe in hauling down the flag in the Philippines." It must be conceded that Mr. Beck has executed a very intelligent and business like exit from the party of Bryan and Aguinaldo.

The tears of Senator Teller flow on very slight provocation. He wept at St. Louis in 1896, and the moisture took possession of his eyes at Kansas City last month. If the senator will take the pains to investigate conditions in his own state he will ascertain that a great many of the men who have been following him have dried their eyes and returned to the Republican fold.

The civil service reform plank and the income tax plank and the anti-Supreme Court plank were all omitted from the Kansas City platform. This makes the structure so full of holes that some vigorous patching must be done at once or the candidates who try to stand upon it will find themselves falling through, much to the detriment of both their skins and dignity.

One year ago the Democrats could not talk enough about the "trusts." It was a theory fondly held that the "trusts" were held in trust for the Democratic party as the "paramount" issue in 1900. Way is it that there is so little talking about the "trusts" by the Democrats now? Were it not that the writer of the anti-trust plank of the Democratic platform, Van Wyck, has kept the trust issue fresh on ice, that Richardson, of Tennessee, who presided over the Kansas City gathering, through his private lock trust, has made the "trust" issue an open book, that Senator Jones, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has found a trustworthy use of a "trust" in cotton as a means of extracting "velvet" that Bryan himself is seeking to get elected by means of political fusion "trust," the "trust" is not in political world, during this campaign, be a rather rusty issue.

Senator Pettigrew, who addressed the delegates to the Sioux Falls convention as "Fellow Populists," now states he is a Bryan Democrat, and by making such a statement he feels to make a bit of sensation, nor stir up a couple of sugar in the ranks of the Sioux Falls populists. This is because there is no popular disposition to split hairs over the minimal difference between the pie biting wing of the populist party and the democracy under Bryan. It only stirs up bad feeling to dispute which it is that has really swallowed up the other in its attempts to swallow you. J. Sterling Morton, who is an unwallowed remnant of the old Democracy which Jefferson founded, says that the Bryan Democracy is an amalgamated mass in the course process of gestation. Anyhow, however, there are evidences that Mr. Morton cannot be wholly right. After the dust of contention had become cleared from the atmosphere of the state conventions of Nebraska and Kansas it was found that there were similar on the tickets about sixteen pieces of populistic lead to every one piece of democratic tall.

STOLEN CHILD BACK.

KIDNAPED GIRL RETURNS AFTER 26 YEARS' ABSENCE.

Captured by Gypsies, Who Retain Her Possession, If But for More than Quarter of a Century—Very Fairly Treated—Efforts to Recover.

Twenty-six years and a quarter ago little Florence Hunt, three years old, disappeared from her home in Ottawa, Ill., and all trace of her was lost. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunt, mourned her as dead, and her little playmates grew up and married and became parents themselves, but the child they had lost was never forgotten by her parents, and they still hoped against hope that some day she would return. Mr. Hunt is a well-to-do man, and he spared no pains or money in the search for his child. Last week the long-lost child was restored to her parents, and the story of her adventures and her recovery is one of the most remarkable on record. The Ottawa Republican of Nov. 3 has the following account of the affair:

Mrs. Hunt was in her kitchen Tuesday afternoon when a knock came at the door. She opened it and there stood a young woman who was a stranger to her. The young woman said she was her long-lost daughter Florence, who had been stolen by gypsies 26 years before. The mother was overcome by the news, and the young woman had to support her into the house. When she had recovered her senses she was shown the photograph of her husband, taken years before, and was asked if she could identify it. She said she could, and then her mother showed her a photograph of herself taken a few weeks before her disappearance. The young woman said she could identify herself from that picture, too, and she then showed her mother a scar on her forehead which she said she had had ever since she was a child. The mother was then sure that her daughter was her long-lost child, and she called her husband and other members of the family into the room and introduced the young woman to them as their long-lost relative. The news soon spread all over the city, and the house was thronged with people who had come to see the young woman who was known to have been stolen by gypsies years before. The young woman was taken to the home of her father, where she was surrounded by her brothers and sisters, who had been children when she was stolen from her home, and who had grown up and married while she was away. The young woman said she was treated very kindly by the gypsies who had her in charge, and she did not want to say much about her life with them for fear of implicating some of her friends who were still with the gypsies. She said she was married to a young man who was a member of the gypsy band, and she had two children, a boy and a girl, living with the gypsies. She said her husband was not with the gypsies at present, but was expected there in a few weeks, and she was going back to meet him. She said she was married when she was quite a young girl, and her husband was much older than she was. She said her husband was very fond of her, and she was very fond of him. She said she was married according to gypsy rites, and that her husband was considered a very fine young man among the gypsies. She said she was married in Ottawa, Ill., and that her husband was well known there. She said she was married in the city hall, and that her husband had given her a gold ring and had married her according to the gypsy rites. She said her husband was a member of the band that had her mother in charge when she was stolen, and that he was one of the gypsies who had been in Ottawa at the time of her disappearance. She said her husband was not with the gypsies at the time she was married, but he was with them when she left them to come to her parents. She said she was married about a year ago, and that her husband was about 25 years old

The fruit growers of Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties have taken the initatory steps towards the organization of an association whose benefits are sure to be very material to those who raise fruit for the outside markets.

Central Lake has caught the shooting fever and at a recent meeting a club was organized with 12 members Lester Servis is president and Hugh Vaughan secretary. It is the purpose of the club to at once get into good practice and to enter the competition for the challenge cup won from Charlevoix by the Traverse City Hot A Gun Club.

Harbor Springs Republican: The Rue Bros.'s have lately purchased from Joseph Isenovas of Charlevoix, his steam pile driver with the scow which carries it, with the outfit complete for that class of work. The boys will proceed at once to make some changes and improvements in the machine and place it in first-class condition for business.

Capt. James Reid has added another success to his record as a weeker. A dispatch from Ashtabula, O., says he released the stranded schooner Sophia Minch Monday with the tug Salvor and would tow her to Cleveland to go into dry dock for repairs. She has been on the beach over a year and several ineffectual attempts had been made to release her before Capt. Reid undertook the job.

H. Bonnette of Philadelphia, and Miss Dabella Hall of Coffeeville, Miss., were married at Petoskey Monday, being the culmination of a romance. They were engaged some time ago, but he did not know she had arrived at Petoskey. He went there for a few days' rest and accidentally met her on the street. They were so overjoyed that they went right off and got married, but against the advice of her parents.

Boyne Citizen: John Albert Sidman, the oldest white settler in the vicinity of Deer Lake, killed himself on the morning of July 31st, by putting the muzzle of a 44-calibre revolver in his mouth and firing it off while seated in his granary doorway about o'clock. No particular cause is assigned for his rash act, aside from the fact of his being in poor health for some months with erysipelas.

At the recent meeting in Traverse City of the fruit growers of Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties, inquiries from each one present gave an approximate estimate of the probable product to market this season. Taking the individual reports it was estimated that the crop would be about as follows: From 25 to 30 carloads of peaches, 300 baskets to the acre, 1,000 baskets plums, 2000 baskets pears, and probably not less than 15,000 barrels of early apples. These figures may be increased by reports from some who were not present, but it is considered a fair estimate of what there will be for shipment this season.

The Cayuga Sun reports quietly at the bottom of Lake Michigan, near Skillegallee, and Capt. James Reid's steel cylindrical lifting pontoons are extending in the mud along either side of the wreck. Thus far the present season Capt. Reid has not encountered a resumption of work on the craft, nor is it likely now that he will, for the reason that the fall season is now at hand. Whenever he is spoken to concerning the Cayuga Capt. Reid expresses the utmost confidence in his ability to lift her from the bottom when he gets ready. But he has not been ready for two seasons now and no one seems to be able to guess even when he may be ready.—Detroit Free Press.

Grand Traverse Herald: Uncle Dan Walpole came to the city yesterday to see Pawnee Bill's show, but especially to see Pawnee Bill. The show was nothing more than he has seen a hundred times in real life, and was but a representation of part of the life he used to live. But Pawnee Bill was an old friend, and Uncle Dan could not miss the chance of shaking his hand and taking over old times a little. These two pioneers know each other years ago, when the cowboy life was a reality to both of them.

Traverse City goiters will be greatly interested in anything new in the encouragement of the favorite Southtown goiter and they will be patriotically interested in knowing that D. H. Day, the timber magnate of Glen Haven and the former links in this part of the state. The course is admirably located and Mr. Day keeps it in good shape. It is also well patronized and local golfers might find some worthy labor over in that part of Leelanau county for a change.—T. E. Murray, treasurer of the Traverse City & Lelanau Railway Co., received a letter Saturday from Hon. O. A. Wheeler states that he would be here in a short time in company with President Justice H. Storrs and that the matter of carrying on the project would be definitely decided. Mr. Murray believes that the road will soon be pushed to a position state of progress.

WAS A BRAVE SOLDIER.

Fine Record of A. B. Darragh, of St. Louis.

Maj. James C. McMillin, secretary and manager of the Nelson Matter furniture company, is a close friend and warm admirer of A. B. Darragh of St. Louis, who was recently nominated for congress by the republicans of the Eleventh District. Both men were born in the town of Monroe, Mich., and are nearly of an age. They went to school together and grew up to young manhood as intimate acquaintances.

In a sentimental mood yesterday, Major McMillin told of many experiences which his "friend and he had passed through while fighting together as brother officers in the same regiment, the famous Ninth Michigan cavalry, one of Custer's brigade in the Army of the Potomac.

"Mr. Darragh," said Major McMillin, "enlisted first in the Eighteenth Michigan infantry and was later transferred to the company of which I was the captain in the Ninth cavalry. In time he left the state he had been promoted to be orderly sergeant of the company, and the first opportunity he was given a second lieutenant's commission. He was later made adjutant of the regiment, and when I received my appointment as major he succeeded me in command of the company in which he had enlisted as a private.

"He is the only man in my whole army experience of whom I think I can say that he really enjoyed a fight. A good many men have said that they were hungry for that sort of thing but Darragh, although he never said so himself, I really think enjoyed it better. How very that may be, he certainly never missed one whenever he could possibly find an excuse for getting into action. He was certainly one of the bravest men I ever knew.

LOST DESPERATE CHARGE.

"Some particular instance of his bravery and coolness occurs to my mind that the cup would be about as follows: From 25 to 30 carloads of peaches, 300 baskets to the acre, 1,000 baskets plums, 2000 baskets pears, and probably not less than 15,000 barrels of early apples. These figures may be increased by reports from some who were not present, but it is considered a fair estimate of what there will be for shipment this season.

These figures may be increased by reports from some who were not present, but it is considered a fair estimate of what there will be for shipment this season.

The Cayuga still repose quietly at the bottom of Lake Michigan, near Skillegallee, and Capt. James Reid's steel cylindrical lifting pontoons are extending in the mud along either side of the wreck. Thus far the present season Capt. Reid has not encountered a resumption of work on the craft, nor is it likely now that he will, for the reason that the fall season is now at hand. Whenever he is spoken to concerning the Cayuga Capt. Reid expresses the utmost confidence in his ability to lift her from the bottom when he gets ready. But he has not been ready for two seasons now and no one seems to be able to guess even when he may be ready.—Detroit Free Press.

Grand Traverse Herald: Uncle Dan Walpole came to the city yesterday to see Pawnee Bill's show, but especially to see Pawnee Bill. The show was nothing more than he has seen a hundred times in real life, and was but a representation of part of the life he used to live. But Pawnee Bill was an old friend, and Uncle Dan could not miss the chance of shaking his hand and taking over old times a little. These two pioneers know each other years ago, when the cowboy life was a reality to both of them.

Traverse City goiters will be greatly interested in anything new in the encouragement of the favorite Southtown goiter and they will be patriotically interested in knowing that D. H. Day, the timber magnate of Glen Haven and the former links in this part of the state. The course is admirably located and Mr. Day keeps it in good shape. It is also well patronized and local golfers might find some worthy labor over in that part of Leelanau county for a change.—T. E. Murray, treasurer of the Traverse City & Leelanau Railway Co., received a letter Saturday from Hon. O. A. Wheeler states that he would be here in a short time in company with President Justice H. Storrs and that the matter of carrying on the project would be definitely decided. Mr. Murray believes that the road will soon be pushed to a position state of progress.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. N. CHEW, COMM'R.

The teachers' institute, just closed in this county has been very profitable to the teachers. The phases of work presented by the conductors along the normal plan, and the reviews and drills connected therewith will be helpful to the teachers in their methods in the school room.

The teachers have taken hold of the work enthusiastically. The schools of the county will be benefitted by this experience of the teachers.

Better work, better classification, more thorough drill, will be carried in each school.

Importance of Good Seed Wheat.

"The great trouble with most of the farmers of this county, and I suppose with the majority of farmers elsewhere, is that they do not pay enough attention to their seed wheat. A farmer ought to take the same pains in bringing up his seed wheat as in breeding cattle. If the same wheat is grown year after year on the same land it is bound to deteriorate in quality and become mixed with rye and then the farmer complains because his crop is diminishing year after year, when, as a matter of fact, all that is needed is careful attention in the selection of seed. Seed that is pure may be sowed this year and there will be only a few spears of rye in it. But the rye ripens before the wheat and shells out on the ground and comes up the next year as volunteer rye. The consequence is that this farmer's wheat is sure to mixed with rye that he is doing for that reason when he takes his wheat to mill.

"Every farmer who grows wheat should set aside a small field in which to grow his seed wheat for the next year. He should see that it is kept clear of rye and weeds, and he ought to winnow the wheat carefully, selecting the largest grains of seed, and occasionally he should get a fresh supply of imported seed. The farmer who does this will make money by it, and his wheat yield will be a thing larger than his neighbor's, who does not observe these precautions."—Exchange.

—On Tuesday the Elk Rapids baseball surreptitiously, and with malice aforethought came up here and vanquished our boys in a game, to the tune of 9 to 2. The summer Hustler went down to Elk Rapids and brought up an excursion on that occasion.

—We are informed that only about one-third of the applicants for accommodation at the Belvedere could be accepted this season. The same is true of other Charlevoix resort hotels. This clearly demonstrates the fact that another good resort hotel could be filled. In any event, we may be certain that the big hotels will be enlarged to meet the demand before the opening of another season.

—Supt. F. M. Clark, of the U. S. fish hatcheries of the lakes, was here Friday looking over the field for fall spawn gathering. He will only operate at Beaver Island this fall, the harvest at this point last fall proving very unsatisfactory. The operations at St. James will be continued to two tugs. Mr. Clark has by no means despaired of getting a permanent hatchery at Charlevoix, for which Charlevoix has offered to furnish grounds and water.

—The many friends of Rev. A. E. Cook will sincerely regret the resignation of that worthy clergyman from the pulpit of Charlevoix Baptist church to take effect the last of September. In the two terms that Mr. Cook has served as pastor here he has exerted the influence of a stalwart christian gentleman and exemplary christian teacher. He is accepted for a broader sphere of work than Charlevoix, and, wherever he goes, the people of Charlevoix regretfully of religious persuasion which wish him well.

—Four tramps, happy in the possession of a full bottle of whiskey, took up quarters in the old ore house near the Pere Marquette freight house last Thursday. From this secluded castle of the Bootlle the quartette sallied forth for plunder. On the platform of the freight station they found boxes of pop, one of which they opened, retreating to the saw dust of the ice house with a supply of pop. The whiskey and the pop seemed to raise the devil in the tramps, as they went at each other with the bottles—fighting furiously when some one sent in an alarm. The sheriff and posse shall went up and gathered three of them in, one escaping. Two of them were horribly cut up about their head, so badly, indeed, that their wounds had to be sewed up by a surgeon. The trio were locked up, and Friday morning the marshal was instructed to drive them out of town, which he did.

—Manistee Herald: The subject of better roads is becoming more and more prominent each day and columns of good suggestion and advice has been published. No one is equally interested with the farmer in this great question for to him, good roads adds value, not only to his real estate, but to everything he has to drive to market. An average wagon that the highway commissioner call a meeting of the poli masters of its township, and note the subject thoroughly and intelligently discussed and agree on adopting the best and most practical method of making better roads. If so they will find that it will do work still better on we expect to have better roads!

—The customs office for this port is directed to report all supplies taken from outgoing after dark without the marine lights prescribed by law. There are many of these boats running habitually without lights. This is to certify that they must provide the proper lights, or pay a fine.

—The philanthropic fellow citizen, Frank E. Wood, who was the author, and finisher of the drinking trough for man and beast that now commissions in front of his place, is now engaged in a like enterprise of larger scope. From the Macabee celebration funds there was money left over, and the treasurer of the newspaper convention funds still has money in his hands. Inasmuch as about everybody subscribed to these funds, and the drinking fountains are of general benefit, Mr. Wood asks that these funds be expended in the purchase of two iron fountains. The designs show facilities for two horses and dogs to quench their thirst, and are highly comfy offered as the gift of the committee of both these events has consented, and Mr. Wood is now only waiting for the official action of the K. O. T. M. lodge to offer the fountains. The money could not be expended in a more worthy or beneficial cause.

—In a review of the lumber situation in Michigan made by an observing representative of the Hardwood Record of Chicago, after a trip through this section of the state, the following comments interesting to our readers are made:—Another thing which impresses me strongly after a thorough study of the situation, is that the Michigan lumbermen are not getting enough for their product, especially for their maple. Maple lumber should bear a higher price. It is worth more than it is bringing. The value is there. Maple flooring as now produced is by far the most beautiful and most durable flooring on the market at anything near the price, and is caught to bring more money. Outside of Michigan there is but little maple of good quality to be had, and at the present rate of consumption another ten or fifteen years will make a great big hole in Michigan's supply of maple.

The following is from the Detroit paper: Capt. Cunningham is a brother of Mrs. A. M. Ross, of this place, and was well known in Charlevoix. Capt. Edward Cunningham, vessel master and owner of vessel property, died at his family home, 406 Chamberlain street, yesterday afternoon, after a long illness. Capt. Cunningham was for many years associated with Jones and Frank H. Wallace, in the Wallace & Cunningham Transit Co., reorganized in 1892. He was captain of the New Orleans for 12 years, but retired last fall on account of illness. Capt. Cunningham had been in good health for some time and the recent hot spell so reduced his vitality that he could not recover strength. Three children survive. Mrs. Sarah H. Baker, Miss Maud L. and Andrew H. Cunningham of this city. Capt. Cunningham was an active member of Ashlar lodge, F. & A. M., and Sam Ward chapter of Marine City. The funeral service will be held at the house at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, under Masonic auspices.

The Representative Convention.

After a tenacious contest of fifteen ballots, at Central Lake yesterday, the representative convention, nominated Wm. H. Totten of Eastlake. The fight was between A. L. Coulter of Charlevoix and Representative Burdick of Antrim—Coulter polling the solid Charlevoix vote of five and two votes from Kalkaska from start to finish. Mr. Burdick held the majority of similar loyalty on the part of the six Antrim votes and one from Kalkaska.

Wednesday morning, after a conference, Coulter swung his votes with Kalkaska to the dark horse, and the job was done.

Mr. Totten is a leading attorney of Kalkaska county and enjoys an excellent reputation. He is a man of better than average ability and of unblemished character. All parties agree that we have one of the best men in the district as a candidate.

The first ship-rotted set ever passed on the United States was a Revolutionary measure. It became a novelty five years ago, and quite 6 sons of the finest ships of their day in all the world, built in Maritime Canada were sold for several millions of dollars from the national treasury under administration Democratic administration. Now, whether being fitted up by Republicans now, are of course opposed by latter-day Democrats.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The fruit growers of Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties have taken the initatory steps towards the organization of an association whose benefits are sure to be very material to those who raise fruit for the outside markets.

Central Lake has bought the shooting fever and at a recent meeting a club was organized with 12 members. Lester Lewis is president and Hugh Vaughan secretary. It is the purpose of the club to at once get into good practice and to enter the competition for the challenge cup won from Traverse City by the Traverse City Golf & Gun Club.

Harbor Springs Republican: The Roe Bros's have lately purchased from Joseph Beauvais of Charlevoix, his steam pile driver with the scow which carries it, with the outfit complete for that class of work. The boys will proceed at once to make some changes and improvements in the machine and place it in first class condition for business.

Cape Cannon Reid has added another success to his record as a wrecker. A dispatch from Ashtabula, O., says he released the stranded schooner Sophia Minch Monday with the tug Salver and would tow her to Cleveland to go into dry dock for repairs. She has been on the beach over a year and several ineffectual attempts had been made to release her before Capt. Reid undertook the job.

H. Bennett of Philadelphia, and Miss Dalzella Hall of Coffeyville, Kas., were married at Petoskey Monday, being the culmination of a romance. They were engaged some time ago, but he did not know she had moved to Petoskey. He went there for a few days' visit and accidentally met her on the street. They were so surprised that they went right off and got married, but against the advice of her parents.

Boyne Times: John Albert said man the oldest white settler in the vicinity of Deer Lake, killed himself on the morning of July 31st by putting the muzzle of a 41 caliber revolver in his mouth and firing it. The whole section in the granary door was found 5 o'clock. No particular cause is assigned for his rash act, aside from the fact of his being in poor health for some months with stomach.

At the recent meeting in Traverse City of the fruit growers of Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties, reports from various sections showed an approximate estimate of the probable product to market this season. Taking the individual reports it was estimated that the crop would be about as follows: From 2, to 3 cordwoods of peaches, 300 bushels to the 1000 bushels plums, 2000 bushels pears, and probably not less than 10, 000 bushels 2d early apples. These figures may be increased by reports from some who were not present, but it is considered a safe estimate when these will be for shipment this season.

The Cayuga will repose quietly at the bottom of Lake Michigan, near Sheboygan, and Capt. James Reid and crew find lifting pumps and unloading in the mud along either side of the wreck. This for the present season out, but he is not anxious for a resumption of work on the craft, for it likely now that he will, for the reason that the Reids have made a lump sum offer. Whatever is to replace in connecting the Cayuga Capt. Reid continues the utmost confidence in his ability to lift her from the bottom when he gets ready. But he has not been ready for two seasons now and he seems to be able to guess even when he may be ready.—Detroit Free Press.

Grand Traverse Herald: Uncle Dan Whipple came to the city yesterday to see Pawnee Bill's show, especially to see Pawnee Bill. The show was nothing more than he has seen a hundred times in real life, and was but a representation of part of the life he used to live. But Pawnee Bill was an old friend, and Uncle Dan could not miss the chance of shaking the hand and talking over old times a little. These two plainsmen knew each other years ago, when the cowboy life was a reality to both of them.

Traverse City golfers will be greatly interested in anything, new to their encouragement of the favorite Scottish game and they will be particularly interested in knowing that H. H. Day, the lumber magnate of Glen Haven has the finest links in this part of the state. The course is admirably located and Mr. Day keeps it in good shape. It is also well patronized and Long golfers will find some worthy talent over in that part of Leelanau county for a partner. W. S. Morris, treasurer of the Traverse City & Leelanau Railway Co., received a letter saturday from Hon. O. A. Wheeler stating that he would be here in a short time to confer with President Lyon and Morris and that the matter of carrying the project would be definitely decided. Mr. Murray believes that the road will soon be pushed to a practical state of progress.

WAR A SUAVE SOLDIER.

Fine Record of A. D. Darragh, of St. Louis.

Maj. James G. McBride, secretary and manager of the Robert Mallet Furniture company, is a close friend and warm admirer of A. D. Darragh of St. Louis, who was recently nominated for congress in the republican of the Eleventh District. Both men were born in the town of Monroe, Mich., and are nearly of an age. They went to school together and grew up in young manhood as intimate acquaintances.

In a reminiscent mood yesterday, Major McBride told of some experiences which his friend and he had passed through while fighting together as brother officers in the same regiment, the famous Ninth Michigan cavalry, one of Custer's brigade in the Army of the Potomac.

"Mr. Darragh, said Major McBride, 'enlisted out in the Eighteenth Michigan infantry and was later transferred to the company of which I was the captain in the Ninth cavalry. He soon left the state he had been promoted to be colonel sergeant of the company, and the first opportunity he was given a second lieutenant's commission. He was later made adjutant of the regiment, and when I received my appointment as major he succeeded me in command of the company in which he had enlisted as a private.

"He is the only man in my whole army experience of whom I think I can say that he really enjoyed a fight. A good many men have said that they were hungry for that sort of thing but I think, although he never said so himself, I really think enjoyed a battle. However that may be, he certainly never missed one whenever he could possibly find an excuse for getting into action. He was certainly one of the braves' men I ever knew.

"Of the particular instance of his bravery and coolness concern no one just now," continued the major, "it happened on our march with Sheridan to the sea. Captain Ladd, one of the best officers in the regiment, was selected to make an expedition which took him miles from our march and destroy a bridge and tear up some track. He selected as his companions in the dangerous enterprise Captain Darragh and the two captains with their companies started out. During their march and from the point through where they were marching the little command was surrounded by the Confederate cavalry and attacked. We made up a part of command but one afterwards that only Ladd's and Darragh's companies were cut off and fought their way through. In one encounter, in order to escape the circle thrown around them by the enemy, three troopers had to charge five men against a white regiment and succeeded in cutting their way out and what again surrounded the command, led by these indomitable leaders, cut their way through two regiments of cavalry. The expedition took two days, and the days and nights were filled with continuous fighting.

"In fact, it was generally understood that whenever anything particularly hazardous or desperate was under foot Darragh would get the lead and he never checked, no matter how great the chances for failure or death seemed to be.

"Captain Darragh is a man of unusual ability. He is a graduate of the literary department of the university of Michigan, and student law under ex-Governor Blair, of Jackson, before he was admitted to the bar, Governor Blair knew his record in the war and was very much attached to Captain Darragh up to the time of his death.

"Mr. Darragh is the soul of honor. While serving as a member of the state legislature an attempt was made to influence his vote on the senatorship through the agency of his friend, but having made up his mind as to who was to be sent home for the place he was true to himself and could be moved by absolutely no considerations what.

"If elected he will certainly represent the Eleventh district of Missouri in an able manner.—Grand Rapids Herald.

Importance of Good Seed Wheat.

"The great trouble with most of the farmers of this county, and I suppose with the majority of farmers elsewhere, is that they do not pay enough attention to their seed wheat. A farmer ought to take the same pains in bringing up his seed wheat as in breeding cattle. If the same wheat is grown year after year on the same land it is bound to deteriorate in quality and become mixed with rye, and then the farmer complains because his crop is diminishing year after year, when, as a matter of fact, all that is needed is careful attention in the selection of seed, seed that is pure may be sown this year and there will be only a few spears of rye in it. But the rye ripens before the wheat and falls out on the ground and comes up the next year as volunteer rye. The consequence is that this farmer's wheat is soon so mixed with rye that he can do no other than reason when he takes his wheat to mill.

"Every farmer who grows wheat should set aside a small field in which to grow his seed wheat for the next year. He should see that it is kept clear of rye and weeds, and he ought to winnow the wheat carefully, selecting the largest grains of seed, and occasionally he should get a fresh supply of imported seed. The farmer who does this will make money by it, and his wheat yield will be a third larger than his neighbors, who does not observe these precautions."—Exchange.

—On Tuesday the Elk Rapids base ball successfully and with usual afterthought made up here and vanquished our boys in a game, to the tune of 6 to 2. The steamer Hackley went down to Elk Rapids and brought up an excursion on that occasion.

—We are informed that only about one third of the applicants for accommodation at the Belvedere could be accepted this season. The same is true of other Charlevoix resort hotels. This clearly demonstrates the fact that another good resort hotel could be filled. In any event, we may be certain that the big hotels will be enlarged to meet the demand before the opening of summer season.

—Capt. F. S. Clark, of the U. S. fish hatcheries of the lakes, was here Friday looking over the field for fish spawn gathering. He will only operate at Beaver Island this fall, the harvest at Isle point last fall proving very unsatisfactory. The operations at St. James will be confined to two tugs. Mr Clark has by no means despaired of getting a permanent hatchery at Charlevoix, for which Charlevoix has offered to furnish grounds and water.

—The many friends of Rev. A. E. Cook will sincerely regret the resignation of that worthy clergyman from the pulpit of Charlevoix Baptist church to take effect the last of September. In the two terms that Mr Cook has served as pastor here he has exerted the influence of a stalwart christian gentleman and exemplary christian teacher. He is equipped for a broader sphere of work than Charlevoix, and, wherever he goes, the people of Charlevoix regretfully of religious persuasion which wish him well.

—First tramps, happy in the possession of a full bottle of whiskey, took up quarters in the old ice house near the Pere Marquette freight house last Thursday. From this ancient castle of the Hootlie the quartette sallied forth, for plunder. On the platform of the freight station they found boxes of pop, one of which they opened, extracting to the saw-dust of the ice house with a supply of pop. The whiskey and the pop seemed to raise the devil in the tramps, as they went in each other with the hatchet, fighting furiously—when some one said in alarm The sheriff and posse—shall went up and gathered three of them in, one escaping. Two of them were horribly cut up about their head so badly indeed that their wounds had to be sewed up by a surgeon. The trio were locked up, and Friday morning the marshal was instructed to drive them out of town, which he did.

—Manistee Herald: The subject of letter rents is becoming more serious and prominent each day and columns of good suggestion and advice has been published. No one is more interested with the farmer in this great question for to him, good rents adds value, and where he is not certain, but to everything he has to draw to market. An exchange suggests that the highway commissioner call a meeting of the path masters of the township, and have the subject thoroughly and intelligently discussed and all agree on adopting the best and most practical method of making better roads. If no two path masters will do work alike how can we expect to have better roads?

—The customs officer for this port is directed to report all naphtha launches running after dark without the mailing lights prescribed by law. There are many of these boats running horseback without lights. This is to certify that they must provide the proper lights, or pay a fine.

—Our philanthropic fellow citizen, Frank E. Wood, who was the author, and founder of the drinking trough for man and beast that now does duty—one in front of his place, is now engaged in a like enterprise of larger scope. From the Macalaw celebration funds there was money left over, and the treasurer of the newspaper—convention funds still has money in his hands—inasmuch as almost everybody subscribed to these funds, and that drinking fountains are of general benefit, Mr. Wood asks that these funds be expended in the purchase of two iron fountains. The designs show facilities for man, horses and dogs to quench their thirst, and are highly ornamental. The committee of both funds certain have consented, and Mr. Wood is now only waiting for the official action of the K. O. T. M. lodge to order the fountains. The money could not be expended in a more worthy or beneficial cause.

—In a review of the timber situation in Michigan made by an obscuring representative of the Hardwood Record of Chicago, after a trip through this section of the state, the following comments interesting to our readers are made:—Another thing which impresses me strongly after a thorough study of the situation, is that the Michigan lumbermen are just getting enough for their product, especially for their maple. Maple lumber should bear a higher price. It is worth more than it is bringing. The value is there. Maple flooring as now produced is by far the most beautiful and most durable flooring on the market at anything near the price, and it ought to bring more money. Outside of Michigan there is too little maple of good quality to be had, and at the present time of comparatively another ten or fifteen years will make a great big hole in Michigan's supply of maple.

The following is from a Detroit paper: Capt. Cunningham is a brother of Mrs. A. M. Rose, of this place, and will be well known in Charlevoix. Capt. Edward Cunningham, vessel master and owner of vessel property, died at his family home, 406 Chestnut street, yesterday afternoon, after a long illness. Capt. Cunningham was for many years associated with Capt. and Frank H. Wallace, in the Wallace & Cunningham Transit Co., organized in 1882. He was captain of the New Orleans for 17 years, but retired last fall on account of illness. Capt. Cunningham had not been in good health for some time and the recent hot spell so reduced his vitality that he could not resume strength. Three children survive. Mrs. Sarah W. Baker, Miss Maud L. and Andrew H. Cunningham of this city. Capt. Cunningham was an active member of Ashlar lodge, F. & A. M. and Sam Ward chapter of Marine City. The funeral service will be held at the house at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, under Masonic auspices.

The Representative Convention.

After a tumultuous contest of 153 ballots at Central Lake yesterday the representative convention nominated Wm. H. Totten of Kalkaska. The fight was between A. L. Coulter of Charlevoix and Representative Burton of Antrim—Coulter getting the solid Charlevoix vote of five and two from Kalkaska from start to finish. Mr. Totten being the recipient of similar loyalty on the part of the six Antrim votes and one of those from Kalkaska.

Wednesday morning, after a conference, Coulter swung his votes with Kalkaska, to the dark horse, and the job was done.

Mr. Totten is a leading attorney of Kalkaska county and enjoys an exceedingly popular reputation. He is a man of better than average ability and of unblemished character. All parties agree that we have one of the best men in the district as a candidate.

The first ship subsidy act ever passed in the United States was a Democratic measure. It became a law fifty-one years ago, and under it some of the most ships of their day in all the world built in America; ship-yards were paid several millions of dollars from the national treasury under antebellum Democratic administrations. Ship subsidies being favored by Republicans now, are, of course opposed by latter-day Democrats.

RAID BAD-MONEY DEN

COUNTERFEITERS ARE ARRESTED IN CHICAGO.

Capt. Parks of the Government Service and Chicago Detectives Invade a House and Secure Counterfeit Dies and Other Reports on Business.

The capture of a gang of counterfeiters was effected by United Secret Service men assisted by Chicago Detectives Saturday afternoon in a house in the city of Chicago.

Inspector Walter Smith, Chief of the United Secret Service, Assistant Inspector Parks, Detectives Miller, Kelly, Lyons and Fitzgerald, with a search warrant, invaded the house and found a complete outfit for the manufacture of counterfeit money, including a complete set of dies for the manufacture of the bills of the denomination of $5, and a quantity of the bills ready for circulation. The dies are the work of a man who is well known to the Secret Service as a counterfeiter of the highest order. The men in the raid found two men in the house, who were taken into custody. The prisoners are Charles Gilmore and Frank Wilson. Gilmore is well known to the Secret Service men as a counterfeiter of the first order. The prisoners will be taken to Milwaukee for trial.

Louisiana Man Tells a Remarkable Story of Abduction by Negroes.

J. P. Clark is a leading business man of Lake Providence, La., who arrived in this city ten days ago for the sole purpose of having his eyes examined. Mr. Clark is a man of about 40 years of age, has a wife and two small children, and is one of the most prominent young business and his disappearance created very great excitement. Advertisements were inserted in metropolitan papers, but no trace could be found of him. Mr. Clark had business with a man who was to meet him in Chicago, and he left home for the purpose of keeping the appointment. He left his home on the night of the 12th of last month, and was last seen by his family at the Lake Providence depot, and was subsequently identified by a conductor on the train as having left the train at Tallulah, La., a station about 40 miles south of Lake Providence, and was last seen walking in the direction of a negro settlement. He was on the train that passed through Vicksburg at about 2 o'clock on the morning of the 13th, and was noticed by the conductor on account of his peculiar actions. The history of the mysterious disappearance is as follows: He left his home at about 7 o'clock in the evening, intending to take a walk before the train came in, and was accosted by two negroes in the vicinity of his residence, who told him that they had a sick man in a house in the woods, and that they had been sent for a doctor, and that they had heard that he was a doctor, and they had come to him to know if he would go with them to see the sick man. He accompanied them, and was led into a house in the woods, where he was met by a man who was sick in bed, who told him that he was very sick, and that he had been sent for a doctor, and that he had heard that he was a doctor, and Dated Gaylord, August 8th, 1900.

If the silver question is out of politics, why was it introduced into a political platform?

Bryan sees danger in our national prosperity, and those willing to do his bidding seem willing to do his opinions prevail, such a source of danger would be speedily removed.

Mr. Aldgeld has pronounced Mr. Bryan the greatest man in the civilized world, and Bryan has all along contended that Mr. Aldgeld is one of the best judges of greatness extant.

Of the several nominees for the Presidency, Mr. Bryan is far the wealthiest, and he made all of his money during the prosperous times brought about by the McKinley administration.

Those who vote for Bryan vote to abandon a condition more prosperous than any ever before enjoyed by any nation, for the purpose of trying a financial experiment condemned by all nations.

Chairman Jones thinks one may be able to pick enough Democracy from the Kansas City platform to stand upon. There are a great many distinguished Democrats who are anxious to the Jones way of thinking.

In one breath the Democratic orator will assure his hearers that McKinley has to back down, that he is a creature controlled by those around him, and with the next breath will accuse him of shaking the Republic to pieces in order to erect a throne on the ruins thereof.

If it be true, as the Democrats assert, that ships can be built in the United States as cheaply as they can anywhere, how is it that out of 400,000 tons of ships built in the United States last year, all but 2,000 tons were for the coastwise or domestic trade?

The Democratic utterances against the ship subsidy bill in their national platform only states one half of the Democratic proposition, the other half, which they were too cowardly to declare themselves publicly in favor of, being in favor of foreign instead of American ships for the carriage of American foreign commerce.

The Democratic candidate for the Presidency has persuaded the Populists, Democrats and Silver Republicans to pool their interests. In short he has formed a political trust for the express purpose of destroying competition, yet stands on a platform which declares that such methods are destructive to personal liberty and dangerous to National life.

The Democrats favor a stable government for the Philippines. The Sultan of Turkey has a stable government, the Czar of Russia has a stable government. China has had a stable government for twenty centuries, which kind does it favor? Not a single Spanish colony that ever threw off the Spanish yoke ever possessed a stable government within fifty years after declaring independence. The Philippines to-day would have a peaceful and just government were it not for the encouragement afforded to the insurgents by the hostility here in the States to the efforts of the army to conquer rebellion.

From the Philippines.

Calamba, P. I., July 4, 1900.

DEAR DEAR AT HOME:—Last Sunday night we got mail from the States. I was lucky enough to get two letters—one from home and one from the girls. The tomato seeds came all O. K. About mean November will be the time for planting them. This, you know, is the beginning of winter or the rainy season here.

Have just finished our Fourth of July dinner—chicken pot-pie, dried apple pie, bread and coffee. Everything here is as quiet as Sunday in a country graveyard. The natives had a little Fourth of July celebration last night, burning down a small shack we have at the railroad crossing built to protect the soldiers while waiting for trains. When the sentry at the gate of the cotonment saw the fire it was too late to do anything and the guard was not sure it was the shack that was burning, so many fires and lights are to be seen at night.

Rumors about our going to China and to Manila are flying about pretty promiscuously now-a-days. If we had not been for the Chinese affair, I don't think we should have moved until after the rainy season was over, but as it stands, I would not be surprised if we did make some kind of a move.

July 5.—I must tell you of a little Sunday morning excursion we took this morning. Just before taps last night a party of us were notified that we would be called to go out at three o'clock in the morning. Accordingly, we were up and eating breakfast shortly after two, and at three sharp went down to the river and embarked in two large canoes. Lieut. Sharp, two sergeants, four corporals and eighteen privates. Natives, two of whom were prisoners from our calabooso, furnished the motive power. Two privates were stationed in bows and sterns of each canoe with instructions in case we were fired on to score the poles and push the canoes into the bank from which the fire came, for it was expected that at the first fire our natives would jump into the river. After a couple of hours ride, just as day was beginning to break, we landed at a little barrio, not in less than 15 taken to put it on paper (our idea of American sentries were all about the place—a collection of about thirty native shacks, occupied apparently by internos and their families. An hombre was pulled out of a shack and it developed that we had made our landing at the wrong barrio. A squad of six men and a corporal, of which I was one, was detailed to guard the place and see that no one left to give the alarm, while the balance of the party doubled on to another barrio about a quarter of a mile farther down the river. Just as they were leaving, a noise came up with about fifteen and a party from "M" Company at Bulacan. They were to meet us at this point. After reaching the point they started for our fellows came straight back, and struck out for a barrio in the rear of the first position, at double time over the rice dikes. They had seen the natives running out of this barrio from the second landing. They were shortly followed by the "M" company detachment poling through the bayous. Shortly after passing in an occasional shot was heard mostly fired by our boys, the natives only firing a few shots as they ran. "M" Company men were chasing them back into the swamp, and rounding up as many as possible. A detachment from "F" Company, at Mojonatan, under Capt. Mellen, who was in charge of the expedition and who had scouted across country now put in an appearance, having struck the barrio where our men made the second landing and crossed over in bancas. They followed on after our boys, leaving orders for us to search the barrio where we were, which we did, finding nothing. "F" Company searched the barrio from which the natives had run followed by our men, found four rifles and more ammunition, burned the shacks in which arms were found.

Lieut. Sharp had corralled a big bunch of natives, one of whom was shot by Corp. Shugard, of "A" Company to get him. They were questioned and searched and let go except a couple of fellows who acted in a suspicious manner and the wounded man, who were brought back to Lambar. No more arms were found, nor could the natives be induced to tell where they were hidden. No doubt there were plenty of arms there, as we were after an insurrecto colonel and a band of about 250 guerrillas, ladrones, or whatever land they come under, having their headquarters there, but it is pretty hard to identify them, and unless you catch them with guns in their hands, you cannot tell which are amigos, and which ladrones. In our race out of fire, the same thing, depending entirely on the color of their trousers.

All this time we were getting nicely soaked by a rain we all lasted with more or less violence for about three hours. Finally, we remembered, arriving home in time for dinner.

The country we were through lies south and west of here between lake and Manila bay, all cut up by tidal streams and bayous, and mostly occupied by made fish dikes and ponds along which grow just enough bamboo and brush to prevent a man knowing anything about where he is going, or what is just in front of him, an ideal place for ambushes and secret retreats. A man who knows the paths along the fish dikes could never be caught if once out of sight for a minute.

Imagine a country all water except raised paths running by any and all imaginable directions, straight and crooked, as cosmos handicut, said paths lined with swamp growth, and you have a picture of the places where we were to-day.

July 13.—Well, here is July almost half gone and we have not heard anything as yet of the "pugs inserire." Last Monday fifteen more of our men went out for a scout. Got back the same afternoon, found nothing, but I understand Lieut. Sharp made some notes for his usage. There are continually small scouting parties out from one post or another, so I imagine the life of a lubrone must be anything but a lemanne.

Guess I will bring this to a close and send it on.

MARTIN HERMAN'S WILL

A STORY OF CITY LIFE

By MAJ. ALFRED ROCHEFORT

Copyright, 1896, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER I.

Colin Dunbar, named Morton, Harvard class of 1888, was a man who had his own ends to be.

"Tell me Morton, why you boys and men are coming to the city, when you must know it is a place of hard work, and little or no fun, at least, for those who have to do it?"

"Why, Uncle Ned, we want to be independent of the old folks at home."

"Independent! Independent! Why, you are as much a slave to your employer as any other man, and, if you don't do your work, you will be discharged by the first man who can do it better than you."

"Well, I suppose that is true, but, anyhow, I want to be independent."

"Independent of what, Morton? Independent of your father and mother? Independent of your home? Independent of your bed and board? Independent of your clothes? Independent of your pocket-money? Independent of everything that makes life worth living? Why, Morton, you are a fool! Independent! Why, you are a mere machine, and, if you don't do your work, you will be thrown aside for a better one. Independent! Why, you are a fool! Independent! Why, you are a fool! Independent! Why, you are a fool!

MARTIN HERMAN'S WILL

By MAJ. ALFRED ROCHEFORT.

CHAPTER I.

"Now, gentlemen, Martin Herman's will." said the clerk to the assembled men, "is a very long one, and I shall not read it all to you. It is dated the 10th of May, 1890, and it was witnessed by Sarah Jones and Thomas Brown, who are, I suppose, some of the clerks in the Herman firm. I propose to read the most important parts of it, and to give you the gist of the remainder."

Mr. Martin Herman was a man who had made himself a name in the city of Montreal. He was a man of great wealth, and was known to be a man of great shrewdness and ability. He was a man who had made his fortune by his own exertions, and was known to be a man who was very hard in his dealings with his fellow-men. He was a man who had married a lady who was a great beauty, and who was known to be a very good wife to him. He was a man who had two children, a boy and a girl, who were the pride of their father's heart. He was a man who was known to be very hard on his clerks, and who was known to be very hard on his children. He was a man who was known to be very hard on everybody with whom he came in contact, and who was known to be very hard on himself. He was a man who was known to be very hard on everybody except his wife and children, and he was known to be very hard on them when they did anything he did not like.

Martin Herman was a man who had made his will some years before, and he had never altered it since. He was a man who was very fond of his children, and who was very fond of his wife, but who was so hard on them that he had made his will in such a way that they could not touch a cent of his money for a year after his death, and that they could not touch the principal of his money for five years after his death, and that they could not touch the principal of his money at all if they married without his consent. He was a man who was very fond of his wife, and who had made his will in such a way that she could not touch the principal of his money if she married again, and that she could not touch the principal of his money at all if she married without his consent. He was a man who was very fond of his children, and who had made his will in such a way that they could not touch the principal of his money if they married without his consent, and that they could not touch the principal of his money at all if they

Council Proceedings.

Council room, Aug. 17, 1898.

At the regular meeting of the council held on the above date President Nichols and trustees Coulter, Van Alsburg, Hodge, Wilkinson, Carpenter and Eaton answered roll call.

The sanitary com. reported that they found the sewers of East Lewis, Prof. Kiser and I C. Nye in a very bad condition and recommended that a box of plank be carried down the bank from the home sewer until the level of the water of Round Lake, and a three sided box with the open side on the bottom carried across the beach and covered 18 inches deep with sand as a temporary expedient until such time as a public sewer shall be put in Bridge street.

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information came to Mrs. Geo. Long, of New Strasburg, Ohio, saved her little child. A dangerous cough had kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors, but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her and she writes, this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of its power to cure all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1. Guaranteed. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hixon & Co's drug store.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

There seems to be no more doubt but that the proposed Traverse City and Lackawanna county railroad is an assured fact, provided Traverse City will furnish entrance to the city and a means of connection with the Pere Marquette and G. R. & I. railroads.

Grand Traverse Herald: A meeting of the fruit growers of this region was held yesterday at the council rooms. An organization was effected to be known as the Grand Traverse Fruit Growers Association, and its object is defined by the constitution as "to more handily co-operate in the shipping of all kinds of fruit and farm and garden products, and to exchange ideas on fruit culture."

A. S. Fairbanks, well known in Northern Michigan, died at his home in Whitewater township yesterday morning, aged 79 years. Mr. Fairbanks was attacked July 30, seriously by heart disease, and although everything possible was done to save his life all efforts were futile, and he gradually sank from the date of his first attack.

Traverse City Record.—The limestone formation of the Beaver Islands is of such a character that it is thought that it would make good macadam. Capt. Chase, of the schooner Harvey Hanson, cleared for the Beavers yesterday to bring back some of the stone, and it will be tried on some street in the city as an experiment. If it is all that is expected, larger quantities will be brought later.

The Longshoremen at this place are taking the lead in arranging for the biggest celebration of labor day that has ever been attempted in this region. All other organizations in the village, as well as surrounding villages have been invited to join in the celebration, and a big time is assured. The K. O. of P. will have always accepted the invitation, and will heartily co-operate, and other organizations will do likewise.—East Jordan Northerner.

Central Lake Torch: Dr. L. Coulter informs us that he has discovered the dreaded pin louse at work in this section. This pest has been a source of great annoyance farther south, but never has been found in Northern Michigan before. Wisconsin reports them quite thick over there and Mr. Coulter is making a trip through Northern Wisconsin this week on a tour of inspection, as he has to go south to learn the extent of the ravages of this little animal.

Traverse City Record: Fruit shipments from this section are beginning to assume proportions of some magnitude, although the season has scarcely begun. J. U. Berg, who is handling a good deal of the fruit of the peninsula, shipped to Chicago on Saturday six barrels of apples and a large quantity of peaches. They go by the steamer Chicora. The steamer also lands at the Old Mission dock where shipments are beginning to be made in large quantities. The quality of peaches is very fine this year and the later varieties promise to be better than the average.

A twelve horse power gas engine for sale cheap. Inquire of Erickson Bros., Charlevoix, Mich.

Bryan would give absolute independence to the Philippines. This of course means that the flag shall be furled and the army recalled. Will he explain how this can be done in face of any constitutional provision relating to territory? If there is one constitutional argument against acquiring territory there are a dozen against abandoning territory. The rebellion settled that question once for all. As well talk about abandoning Texas, Alaska, Kentucky or Ohio. Methods of administration are legitimate questions for party differences, but to deny a fact solemnly adjudged by arms and ballot by congress is to betray unpatriotic ignorance of the powers and functions of government.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is a worst form of slavery. Geo. H. Wilkins, of Manchester, Mich., says: "My wife has been a helpless invalid for years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female complaints quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting spells and nervous prostration. It is a godsend to sickly, run-down people. Only guaranteed. Only 50c. Sold by F. G. Hixon & Co., druggist.

HOW THEY WOOED.

Courting Days at Point Mrs. Were Somewhat Peculiar.

Men who have attained the dignities in public life have their romances as well as do their less-noted fellow-citizens. The first time Mary Todd met Lincoln she said to her sister: "That man will be president one of these days. He will make a husband to be proud of." About 12 years later Lincoln's chance of becoming president seemed as remote as possible, and Mary's sister laughed the idea to scorn. A few months after ward Mary Todd was married to "Ugly Abe," and in 4 years the prediction was fulfilled. As a child the future of Mrs. Lincoln had promised that she would become the wife of a president of the United States. The first August Belmont's marriage to Commodore Perry's daughter grew out of a duel. At his first meeting with the lady, a blooming Baltimore belle, at the theater, he challenged a man who made some remark reflecting on the virtue of women generally. When the smoke of the simultaneous fire of the two pistols cleared away it was found that the belle had a bullet through her heart and Belmont a foot in the leg. He became a lion of the hour, proposed to the beautiful Miss Perry and was accepted. He said it was her noble face that moved him to request the imposition of her sex. Thomas Greeley and Mary Young Cheney were married the first day they met. They had corresponded for some time, a mutual friend who was something of a matchmaker, having brought this about. She was young and beautiful and all his fancy painted her, but she was much disappointed in his appearance so much so, that when he appeared before her, having prepared and been accepted by letter and the marriage day fixed, she frankly told him that although she married him she was not in love with him. Their married life was long and happy and the loss of his wife was a blow which he did not long survive. The first marriage of Jefferson Davis was of a romantic character. Taking desperately in love with Sallie Taylor, daughter of Colonel Zachary Taylor, who did not approve of the attachment, the young people went Southern in their own hearts and eloped. Sixteen years passed before Old Zach would speak to his son-in-law, and then it was because his son Eli treated had covered themselves with glory at the battle of Buena Vista.

Fruits in the Plant World.

There is a plant in Jamaica called the life plant. Sometimes it seems almost impossible to kill it. When a leaf is cut off and lying up for a string it sends out white, thread-like roots, gathers moisture from the air and begins to grow new leaves. In South America is a flower which can only be seen when the wind is blowing. The plant belongs to the nutcracker family, and when the wind blows a number of beautiful flowers protrude from little lumps on the stalk.

When Children Drank.

According to the recent studies of Signor De Sanctis of Turin, children born in drunk before their fourth year, but are unable to recall dreams before the age of 5. This age, he concluding is that at which a child first becomes instinctively conscious of self. Bad people dream less frequently and less vividly than the young. Women's dreams are more frequent, more vivid and better remembered. Champions of men.

Manufacture of Cement.

The manufacture of a kind of Portland cement has commenced in 20,000 barrels a month, and between Nos. 3 and 4 on the southwestern antipath wharf, and covers eight continents by 600. These figures include the 7,000 continents of antipathal cement and the 12,000 cubic cubic meters through which were made at the port laboratory in the isolated Sea at Wannstadt which was opened July 200.

Give Your Shoes a Rest.

No pair of shoes should be worn more than one without being set back in the closet for a rest not, however, in such a way that it will generate the mold, which thereby becomes permanent—must the shoe be worn. Old will to 27 at times, every suitable and cause disappears, and the shoe remains apparently new and fresh until the day it is discarded.

Military in North Carolina.

Military in North Carolina is increasing, particularly among the whites. By the census of 1870 there were 25,131 Illinois white voters in North Carolina. In 1880 it was 40,000—an average increase of 500 Illinois voters a year, and a total of 27 per cent of the entire white population.

Colorado Antarctic Expedition.

The commanding officer of the British or Colonial antarctic expedition is Lieut. Robert F. Scott, now brigadier Boston east of the latitude. Majestic. He has been thirteen years in the British navy and has a record of service of the biggest chain and will soon be promoted to commander.

Fashion of Nations Vary.

The Worst fashion of modern times was the fashion in Ireland in 1846-47, in which 1,000,000 people perished; the fashion became of least, which claimed 1,000,000 victims; the fashion fanatics of 1877, in which 9,000,000 people perished and the great famine in China in 1878, in which 9,000,000 died.

Biggest Deal in Corks.

It is announced that a brewing syndicate has purchased about 10,000 pounds of cork, or about 300,000,000 corks. This is said to be the biggest deal in corks ever made. These 300,000,000 corks in bulk would support 300,000 men on one of water if put into life preservers.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

We will take time in our letter this week to discuss the 9th problem in second grade arithmetic at the recent examination.

A ship sailed due N. E 50 miles, then due N. 20 miles. How far was she from the point of starting?

A knowledge of this geometrical theorem is necessary for solving the problem. In an obtuse-angled triangle, the square of the side opposite the obtuse angle is equal to the sum of the squares of the other two sides increased by twice the product of one of these sides by the projection of the other side.

Draw the diagram. Then by arithmetic, square 20 miles which becomes the hypothenuse of a right-angled triangle. Divide by two. Extract square root which equals 17.7 miles, the base and altitude of projection. 50 miles plus 17.7 equals 67.7 miles, new base. 17.7 miles altitude. Square base plus altitude squared, extract sq. root equals 69.9 miles the distance from point of starting.

The Democratic delegates at the Kansas City convention were parties of the first part, and the voters to whom the platform is addressed are the party of the second part, while the platform itself is the instrument setting forth the respective duties and obligations of the two parties to the contract. Yet the party of the first part is telling the party of the second part that the 16 to 1 obligation means nothing, and that if they will promise votes they may be assured that the monetary standard of the country will be temporarily left alone this 1a the party of reform that they do not intend to promise promises unfulfilled and continue obligations fulfilly performed.

—Gov. Pingree is reported as saying that he will "hold his nose and vote for McKinley." This is too bad. We have been in the company of Mr. Pingree long enough to everybody present following their noses and filling their ears with cotton. This may Pingree should offer no excuses for voting for McKinley. He is not a republican and nobody expects him to vote a republican ticket. He is a renegade that the republicans of Michigan are mighty glad to get rid of.

—They have a good joke on Newell and some of his lion musician gang. One day last week Newell and some of his artists, with an outside friend or two, got a napkin inched and went up Pine lake for a ride. All had some sealed ashes and walked into million home—and Newell was one of the three. But Newell had a wicked job than wanting. He edutated some pebbles and with them propelled the boat home. —W. F. Hobbs, lately a resident of Bellaire, has opened up a stock of furniture in the Ayers block. Mr and Mrs. Hobbs have endeared themselves to Bellaire people in a thousand ways, and there is not one of those with whom they have been associated but will miss them. —A very pleasant affair was that on the lawn at Chester Inwood's Tuesday evening. Her Cadets, who attired her husband away that evening at Fred Cooper's. They had been there but a little while when a message came calling them home at once. But they did not reach their destination. They were waylaid by the personal gentlemen's shaving school class and carried bodily into the midst of Chinese lanterns, tables in the lawn, ice cream, cake, etc. After the usual speech was made by one of the young ladies, at the end of which she presented Mr. Cook with a beautiful silver mountache cup and saucer, as a token of esteem from the class. The whole affair was a surprise to Mr. Cook and was very happily planned. The fact is they had learned from Mrs. Cook that Aug. 29th was their teacher's birthday, and he expressed as highly admired with their methods both on Sundays and birthdays.

—The tug Avery and steamer Gordon were on the ways last week for minor repairs.

—The steamer Hackley brought 600 bushels of peas from Cross Village to the Ferry warehouse Tuesday.

—The steamer Pilgrim is laid up on account of a broken wheel, and will not be out again this season.

—Mr. D. O'Connor, of Harbor Springs, owner of the steamer Ideal Agitator, was in town yesterday doing business at the custom house in connection with the re-build of his boat. The Ideal Agitator, which Mr. O'Connor bought of the Hobbs, has been rebuilt and made a passenger boat. It is the intention to make a round trip daily between Harbor Springs and St. James, via Cross Village. She is a fast boat, and it is claimed she can make the run easily. That will be three boats for Beaver Island from this shore, and there is room in the lake for two or three more.

—Milwaukee Sentinel: The schooner Ogden, sold by Wm. Johnson, of this city, to Texas parties, is the second vessel to go from the lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Several years ago W. H. Turner of Beaumont, Texas, and T. J. Hooks of Village Mills, Texas, who bought the Olga, came north and purchased the schooner Starke at Milwaukee. The Starke was sent south via the St. Lawrence river and the Atlantic coast, and has been a great success in the lumber trade. The Olga will carry a load of corn to Montreal at 4½ cents a bushel. After unloading there she will go direct to Florida. Capt. Olaf Olsen will take the vessel to Montreal, where she will be joined by a salt water master.

ALLIED ARMY ENTERS PEKIN WITHOUT A FIGHT.

American Troops Under General Chaffee in the Lead—Note of the Liberation of the Besieged Ministers and Their Friends.

Out of the gloom of the recent months came the cheering announcement from many papers Friday morning, that the besieged ministers in Pekin had been released, and that the legations had been relieved. The information came from London, Shanghai and Hongkong, and was copied doubtless by the officials in Washington. The dispatch from Hongkong was dated Thursday, and was copied from a Shanghai paper. Minister Conger was also reported as the messenger who brought the news to the outside world. The dispatch was credited to the Shanghai Mercury, and was similarly received in Washington. Secretary Hay was at his home when the news came, and was not disturbed at the information was credited to a reputable source. The news was similarly received in Washington, Minister Wu being the only person who could be reached for information. The Chinese minister said he had received no official confirmation of the report, but was inclined to believe it was true. He said he had been informed that the Japanese had taken Pekin, and that the allied armies had reached Tientsin. He said he had not received any news from Minister Conger, but was inclined to believe the report was true, because of the fact that the Japanese had been mentioned as the first to reach the city. He said he

The common house fly is said to be provided with 15,000 eyes, that is to say, his two compound eyes have each 7,500 facets. By this singular arrangement he is enabled to see in every direction, and to dodge with great skill and address the many dangers which threaten his daily existence.

Pennsylvania's coal output is greater than that of all other parts of the country combined, equal in quantity to the entire returns of Great Britain, and larger than is taken from the mines of all nations in the world except the United States.

Exportation of Metals.

The most rapid increase in the exports of our manufactures of metals has been in the exportation of metals which increased in 1897 alone. The exports of iron, for example, rising in 1897 were but $321,137, will exceed $1,700,000 this year.

Japanese Love of Nature.

The Japanese is a born lover of nature. Whatever he produces, from classic painting, work of art to the simplest household utensil, is after natural models. In the representation of figures and scenes the Japanese display a non-conventionality which is astonishing. With a couple of strokes of the brush they reproduce what they see with a truth to life which is almost incredible.

REWARDING OF HEROES.

How England Has Repaid the Soldiers for Imperial Service.

In times past England's military heroes were richly rewarded by the government for long services. Of late years, however, the custom of bestowing great gifts upon successful soldiers has come into disfavor and the royal grants of years agone are not forthcoming. Probably the most munificent general of any age, from a financial point of view, was the celebrated Jonathan Churchill, duke of Marlborough. For his famous victory at Blenheim alone he received the royal manor of Woodstock upon which Queen Anne subsequently erected the magnificent Blenheim palace. At the same time the nation's gratitude was expressed in the highly practical form of a perpetual pension, to himself and heirs forever, of the very respectable sum of £6,000 per annum. The Marlborough "perpetual" was actually paid to the great warrior's descendants right up to the year 1884 when it was commuted for £187,500. Up to this date the English nation had paid the Churchill family the very respectable sum of £783,000, exclusive altogether of interest. Although the monetary "pinkings," being entirely legitimate, were of considerably less value than those of his illustrious predecessor, the duke of Wellington had nevertheless, but little to complain of in the rewards showered upon him.

Not for Fire.

A Chicago man has designed a life-saving net for use at fires, which is easy for the firemen to support, having an outer grip rope looped at intervals in the rope which supports the net. The rope being curved sufficiently to allow the men to grip the rope without holding the hands.

Practical Sense in Mormons.

It is perhaps not generally known that in the Turkish states, on the banks of Yoga creek, Montana, an extensive mine is in operation, producing as fine sapphires and rubies as are found in the world. Sapphires and rubies are both varieties of the mineral corundum. Burmah and Siam were formerly the only localities for these gems.

Immortal Memory.

Those persons who object to eating meat have many strong arguments to support their case. In Jewish Culture one writer says it has been estimated that if only meat from entirely healthy animals were marketed meat could not be bought for less than $1 a pound. At least seven-tenths of the world's population never eat fresh meat.

Learned to Treat Himself.

Prince Hilmer of Dakota, N. Y. has been adjudged insane and committed to an asylum at the county capital. Although he continued the farm in which Hilmer owns on his father's farm, he will remember and learn the functions for the time which at times overcomes him will send him to do otherwise unless "drugged."

Girls in Glasses.

In Greece girls are betrothed at a very early age, and their dowry consists of household furniture and money rather than money. Although most Greek girls are naturally very pretty, they bake to paint and powder from a very early age—the cheeks brilliant red, the eyebrows and lashes deepest black and veins delicately blue. The result is that they are withered old women of 40, and that nowhere are rather female to be found than beneath the blue skies of this classic land. Every Greek family who can afford to do so keeps a French nurse or maid for French is almost universally spoken in society. Painting and rouge are quite unnecessary, but girls are carefully trained to dance and drilled to conduct themselves with dignity. Lastly, household duties are taught—how to make rose jam, Turkish coffee and various delicate sweetmeats.

Interesting Morals.

A valuable manuscript, if not the most valuable one in America, is owned by John Jacob Astor, who gave $15,000 for it. It is the Shiras manuscript in a manuscript dated the thirteen and seven-eighths inches by nine and three-quarters inches. It has one hundred and eighty-four pages of vellum and is bound in old morocco. It was made for Dunmore, 10, no, to the great Pocahontas artist, Francesco Filippo Lippi. The sails are studded all over the covers of a set of miniats owned by Mrs. Samuel Bowen Thomas of Brooklyn who paid $600 for the set. It contains the full contents some used in a European monastery—it is a choice book.

Immense Encyclopedia.

The most voluminous encyclopedia work in the world is in the Berlin Anthropological Museum. It is in twelve hundred volumes, in Chinese. It embraces literature, philosophy, astronomy, natural science and medicine. Each volume has one hundred to one hundred and fifty pages. Originally only one hundred copies were printed and these were not put on sale but recently a new edition was put forth, which sells at $250 for the set. It is splendidly illustrated with maps and pictures. The largest pot-ale in brary in America was owned by the historian, H. H. Bancroft. It consisted of fifty thousand volumes, valued at $100,000.

Andrew Quinn's Faithful Dog.

Andrew Quinn of No. 66 West 1ma Hundred and Sixteenth street, New York, was moved from his home to Harlem Hospital Wednesday says the Press of that city. His water spaniel Jim, followed the ambulance and made such a fuss in front of the house that it had to be shut out that Dr. Blackmon took the dog to the station and that he—on her within an hour. The dog had followed the cars in two, sneaked into the hospital by a rear door, and crawled under Mr. Quinn's cot. All efforts to dislodge him without making a disturbance were made, and the remained under the cot until yesterday morning, when Mrs. Quinn called to inquire about her husband's condition. Mrs. Quinn screamed to see Jim out and led her home with a chain.

"Yes," said the old man, "I know how you feel about it. I was young once myself. I have loved the right woman myself. If she answered my proposal—if she gave me the right to call her my wife—I would be happier than the greatest king on earth. Well, what do you want?"

"Father, I want your consent to marry the woman I love, and I want your blessing."

"And who is she, pray?" asked Mrs. Herman.

"Your adopted daughter, Jessie, mother. I am going to marry her."

"Jessie!" said the old man, as he turned his head, and looked fondly into the old woman's face.

"Mr. Herman," she began, "I am very fond of Jessie. I love her as my own child. Why love Jessie I do not know, but I do love her. I will not say that I would prefer to see you take some other woman, but if you love Jessie and she loves you, I will not say a word against your marriage."

"Jessie, come to me!" I will say the same to you. Jessie, I love you as my own child. Why I do not know, but I love you. If you love Herman, and he loves you, I will not say a word against your marriage."

"Dear children," said the old man, with a smile, "I am very happy. I have your mother's consent, and I have your consent, and I have my own. Now, children, I have something to say to you. Jessie, you have been a good, true, loyal daughter to us. Herman, you have been a good, true, loyal son to us. Now, children, I have a little surprise for you. Jessie, you are not our adopted daughter. Herman, you are not our adopted son. Jessie, you are our own daughter. Herman, you are our own son. Jessie, I adopted you when you were a little babe. Herman, I adopted you when you were a little boy. Jessie, I adopted you from your dying mother's arms. Herman, I adopted you from your dying father's arms. Jessie, your father and mother were our dearest friends. Herman, your father and mother were our dearest friends. Jessie, your father and mother left you in our care. Herman, your father and mother left you in our care. Jessie, I have kept your secret. Herman, I have kept your secret. Jessie, I have kept your secret from your father. CHAPTER II.—(Continued.)

"Yes," continued Mrs. Hilliard, "he was a good husband, too, for his wife, and he left her well provided for. Of course, he left his property to his wife, but he knew she would share it with her children."

"Well, I was right," he said. "I would like to look you in the eye above, and the children shall have some, even when they shall be gone."

"May you live many years," said the old woman. "May you live to know what it is to suffer like the poor and sorrowful."

"Are there such, then?" he asked.

"Others, no; but there're not long for this world. And the old woman closed up her three fingers and looked at all the world."

"Why, see that!" Paul stopped with a jump in his hand and looked kindly into the old woman's face.

"Why, dearie, what is the matter?" and she patted a tear away as the tear of joy fell on her hand.

"Why, I take me at last. I will help you."

Poor man, the old woman's arm, with a strong hand, was very concrete, and he helped her to Rudolf and Mary, and the old woman's face was lit up with the intensity of joy. Paul was a young man with their eyes, and he was a young man with their ears, and he was a young man with their hearts, and he was a young man with their souls. Paul Neville was a young man with their souls.

"Why, what is the matter?" he asked.

"Why, I was a young man, too, and I had a young man, too, and I had a young man, too, and I had

Mr. Bryan owns a farm, but the money he paid for it was carried in the sweat of his brow.

A political party that cannot stand by its predictions will naturally run away from its platforms.

It is believed that the Hon. Tom L. Woolington is engaged in blowing into the wrong end of his Waterloo.

"He voted for Bryan in 1896" is becoming quite a common form of introduction for the speakers at the Republican meetings in Kansas this year.

It is not necessary to blame the Democratic leaders in this campaign. They regard the liberal employment of quotation marks as the very worst form of chastisement.

Among the many exhibits in Kansas prosperity is a potato field forty miles long. It is not believed that even the Hon. William Vincent Allen can outtalk this showing.

In contemplating the result of the Kentucky murder case it should be borne in mind that the prosecution had the persecution assistance of a partisan trial judge.

Gold to the amount of $25,000,000 was brought into this country from the Klondike this year. Here is another text for a prolonged weeping spell by Senator Teller.

After surveying all the predictions he made a less vain man than Mr. Bryan would, emulating the example of the parrot, come to the conclusion that he had fallen too much.

"The gold standard," declares Mr. Bryan in his Minneapolis speech in 1898, "would destroy the opportunity to work." Is Mr. Bryan depending upon the votes of the idle this year?

"It is only skin deep," declare the Democratic editors in their attempt to account for the McKinley prosperity. Yet they are vigorously rippling every policy calculated to send it deeper.

Will Colorado hang back and decline to approve of the prosperity the country is enjoying? Colorado people are believed to be manly and other persons enough to acknowledge a mistake.

Chairman Hanna has not been compelled to attempt an explanation of his connection with trusts for the simple reason that, unlike Chairman Jones, he is not a beneficiary of such organizations.

Before going any further with their arguments the Democratic leaders should explain why it is that, if President McKinley has no backbone, he can go about shattering the republic and establishing an empire.

With the Hon. Pen Tillman protesting against "government without the consent of the governed," and Tom Croker fulminating against the tacks into the campaign with its assertion of dignity and patriotism.

The efforts to introduce foreign issue into the campaign have come exclusively from the Democrats. The Republican platform appeals directly to the American voter and his welfare and doesn't evade a single issue.

The Hon. George Fred Williams announces the arrival of the sugar. George Fred is always a little ahead of time. It will be recalled that last year he took the precaution to select the Massachusetts delegates to the Kansas City convention.

The party that must look upon the generally prosperous condition of the country as a menace to its political prospects, is in an unfortunate condition deserving of sympathy but in sympathy which should be devoted to efforts at reformation and not at encouragement at the polls.

Drowned in a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. Geo. Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, saved her two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes, this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of its power to cure all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c. and $1. Guaranteed. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

Mr. Pitmajn.

To be on hand at the time required or promised, is something some people doing business in Charlevoix would do well to learn and practice. If a person asks for an omnibus or dray to be at a certain spot at such a time, it means perhaps that the one so needed for chinch or to keep some other engagement; or that both are wanted to be at the least or depot. It is a bad reputation to get—you can't rely on."

City people, especially, are accustomed to have engagements kept to the minute.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. ORTH, COMM'R.

While much has been said recently concerning nature and science in the primary schools, the work seems to be as yet in a formative state. It is conceded on all sides that those should be taught, but the questions as to how much and how to teach them in the ordinary graded and rural schools are not yet definitely answered.

The teacher will find in the "Course of Study" suggestions elastic enough to fit any ordinary work.

The purpose of the study is to train to correct habits of observation, to accumulate facts which will be a service in other study.

The department of agriculture is trying to introduce a bird day in the public schools. In the department's circular, No. 17, division of biological survey, the teacher will find suggestions as to the various course open to them and the sources of instruction. It is for the sake of the magic balance of nature and the benefit to agriculture that this step is taken by the department.

Nature knows her business; a certain bird eats a given bug, bugs and bees carry the pollen of the flowers. The most deadly enemies of the birds are the small boys hunting eggs and the women who wear feathered creatures on her hat. The time to check their ravages is when they are school children.

Pennsylvania spent one hundred thousand dollars in two years for bounties on hawks and owls, only to learn that those birds were absolutely innocuous.

Michigan and Illinois have spent thousands of dollars in endeavoring to exterminate the English sparrow. If the habits of this pest had been undeveloped the bird would have been destroyed when it was brought to this country.

Send for the circular.

The island contains about 160 acres and it is the best location for a resort as can be found in the state.

East Jordan Enterprise: Daniel Dayton died at his home in Eveline township Tuesday, Aug. 21, aged 77 years. Deceased was born in Hancock county, Kentucky, Nov. 22, 1822, and removed to Charlevoix county in 1880 since when time he has resided here highly respected by all who knew him. Some seven years ago he was badly injured in a runaway, and since then he has never got out but little. An attack of malarial fever left him prostrate, and death came to release him from pain.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. Geo. D. Wilhelm of Manchester, Mich., says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. It is a godsend to weak, sickly, run-down people. Cure guaranteed. Only 50c. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggist.

—Eleven persons from Ohio, constituting a camping party, near Elsworth, had an exciting experience last sunday evening. They were camped in a building near the lake when a little cyclone collapsed the structure. Several of them were injured slightly, but a Dr. Sherrill had one of his legs and two ribs broken. He was brought here Monday and taken home Tuesday by boat.

—Traverse City Record: Alva Seymour, a young man 18 years of age, who has been employed by J. A. Jackson as driver on one of his ice wagons, was arrested Monday by Sheriff Simpson, charged with taking improper liberties with Isabella Nash, aged 16, a daughter of Frank Nash. Seymour was taken before Justice Brown and confronted with the girl and a companion, who positively identified the young man as the party who had committed the act charged. At first there was some doubt in the minds of the officials as to whether Seymour was the right man, as there were two employes of Mr. Jackson who were employed at the ice house on the day of the alleged crime. Seymour was held in the sum of $500 bail, and as he could not furnish the necessary sureties he was lodged in jail. Seymour was formerly a Charlevoix boy, and was at one time messenger boy for the W. U. Telegraph Co. here.

—Just as we go to press we receive the announcement that Hon. Henry Watterson, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, will deliver his celebrated lecture on Abraham Lincoln, in the Grand Opera House, Petoskey, next Monday evening. Col. Watterson is the most eminent living orator, ranking with Ingersoll in brilliancy and genius. His pathogric on Lincoln is his masterpiece. —Mrs. Martin, relict of the late James S. Martin, died at her home in this village Monday morning, aged 81 years. Deceased was a pioneer. She was born in Ireland, coming to New York when a girl. —Joe Dunlevy, of St James, was tried by a jury of his peers, in Justice McCartney's court last week Thursday, for buying and shipping white fish on an illegal size. The jury was out but a short time and brought in a verdict of not guilty. The evidence brought out the fact that there was a percentage of small white fish in the 1000 pounds of "Menominees." But it is the old, old story over again—it legal fish caught in a legal mesh. If the fisherman throws them back, he is liable, and if he is caught with them he is liable for it. In other words, he is damned if he does and damned if does.

—A great many people in Charlevoix will regret the removal from Charlevoix of Mr. J. W. Watson, who has been here several months in charge of the J. V. Farwell Co. store. Mr. Watson has made many friends here.

—Matt at this time the country needs a new religion that will make a man pay his debts," says the Methodist Advocate. "Shooting and giving testimony doesn't settle accounts with God or man. We bounce right into a fellow and put him out of the church if he goes to a ball or theatre, but do not say a word to the pious scamp who never pays his debts. The latter are doing the church more harm than the dancers and drunkards, for there are none of them in the church."

—The Alma Heywood company played to a crowded house here on Friday evening, and the entertainment was of the usual high standard of the Heywood recitals. The concert, however, was marred by the boisterous conduct of a crowd of young men and boys from Charlevoix resort. This is an almost of occasion when an entertainment has been disturbed by this sort of rowdies, and we are informed that if it occurs again they will be ejected from the room, or more severely dealt with.

Mr. Bryan owns a farm, but the money he paid for it was earned by the sweat of his target.

A political party that cannot stand by its predictions will naturally run away from its platform.

It is believed that the Hon. Geo. L. Wellington is engaged in blowing into the wrong end of his Waterloo.

He voted for Bryan in 1896—is coming quite a common form of introduction for the speakers at the Republican meetings in Kansas this year.

It is not necessary to abuse the Democratic leaders in this campaign. They regard the liberal employment of quotation marks as the very worst form of chastisement.

Among the many exhibits in Kansas prosperity is a potato field forty miles long. It is not believed that even the Hon William Vincent Allen can outtalk this showing.

In contemplating the result of the Kentucky murder case it should be borne in mind that the prosecution had the persuasive assistance of a partisan trial judge.

Gold to the amount of $25,000,000 was brought into this country from the Klondike this year. Here is another text for a thoroughly energizing spell by Senator Teller.

After surveying all the predictions he made a few vain ones Pan Mr. Bryan could, emulating the example of the parrot, come to the conclusion that he had taken too much.

"The gold standard," declared Mr. Bryan in the Kansas City speech in 1896, "would destroy the opportunity to work." In Mr. Bryan depending upon the votes of the idle this year.

"It is only silver," declare the Democratic editors in their attempt to account for the McKinley prosperity. Yet they are vigorously opposing every policy calculated to send it deeper.

Will Colorado hang back and decline to approve of the prosperity the country is enjoying? Colorado people are believed to be manly and enterprising enough to acknowledge a mistake.

Chairman Hanna has not been compelled to attempt an explanation of his connection with trusts for the simple reason that, unlike Chairman Jones, he is not a beneficiary of such organizations.

Before going any further with their arguments the Democratic leaders should explain why it is that, if President McKinley has no backbone, he can go about shaking up the republic and establishing an empire.

With the addn. Ben Tillman protesting against "government without the consent of the governed," and Jack Croker talcumizing against the backsliding in the campaign with its accustomed dignity and delicacy.

The efforts to introduce foreign issues into the campaign have come exclusively from the Democrats. The Republican platform appeals strictly to the American voter and his welfare and doesn't evade a single issue.

The Hon. George Fred Williams succumbs to the arrival of his master. Grover Fred is always a little ahead of time. It will be recalled that last year he took the precaution to advise the Massachusetts delegates to the Kansas City convention

The party that must look upon the unusual prosperous condition of the country as a calamity is in unfortunate position to be an unfortunate object for the exercising of sympathy. But it frequently which should be devoted to efforts at relieving misfortune and not of enjoyment of the pain.

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. Geo. Long, of New Salem, Ohio, saved her two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her; and she writes, this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of its power to cure all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1. Guaranteed. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

Be Prompt.

To be on hand at the time required or promised, is something some people doing business in Charlevoix would do well to learn and practice. If a person asks for an omnibus or dray to be at a certain spot at such a time, it means perhaps that the one is needed for church or to keep some other engagement; or that both are wanted to be at the boat or depot. It is a bad reputation to get "you can't rely on."

City people, especially, are accustomed to have engagements kept to the minute.

A REGULAR.

The Elk Rapids Iron Dock Company desires the services of 75 laborers, wages $1.50 per day; 10 carpenters, wages from $1.75 to $2.50 per day; 5 machinists, wages from $1.75 to $2.50 per day.

Religious Items.

Methodist.

Quarterly meeting service next Sunday, the presiding elder, Rev. M. D. Carrel, officiating. Love feast at 9:30 a. m. Sermon, followed by sacrament of the Lord's supper, at 10:30. Quarterly conference on Saturday evening in pastor's study.

Presbyterian.

The children of the Sunday school, with their teachers and parents, passed a pleasant day Friday, Aug. 17, at Bishop Gillespie's cottage. This visit has been annually enjoyed for many years by all.

Sunday, the 19th, the Rev. Alfred H. Taylor of Marion, Ohio, preached in the afternoon the Rev. Jesse Brown of Indianapolis, Ind., officiated at Mystic hall. Mr. Brown was formerly on junior circuit, Ohio.

Miss Blake of Gambier, Ohio, and Rev. Brown addressed the Sunday school as now.

It helped Wm Burdick.

Twenty-nine calves and one week old, the property of Chas. Fredericks, Grafton, Ohio, W. Jones, Sam Peet and Will Jones, Burdick's Arcica Salve is the best in the world. Same for Burns, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggist.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. H. CREW, COMM'R.

While much has been said recently concerning manual and science in the primary schools, the work seems to be as yet in a formative state. It is confessed on all sides that these should be taught, but the questions as to how much and how to teach them in the ordinary graded and rural schools are not yet definitely answered.

The teacher will find in the "Course of study" suggestions classic enough to at any ordinary work.

The purpose of the study is to train to correct habits of observation; to accumulate facts which will be a service in other study.

The department of agriculture is trying to introduce a bird day in the public schools. In the department's circular, No. 17, division of biological survey, the teacher will find suggestions as to the various course open to them and the sources of instruction. It is for the sake of the single balance of nature and the benefit to agriculture that this step is taken by the department.

Nature knows her business; a certain bird eats a given bug; bugs and bees carry the pollen of the flowers. The most deadly enemies of the birds are the small boys hunting eggs and the woman who wears feathered creatures on her hat. The time to check their ravages is when they are school children.

Pennsylvania spent one hundred thousand dollars in two years for bounties on hawks and owls, only to learn that these birds were absolutely necessary.

Michigan and Illinois have spent thousands of dollars in endeavoring to exterminate the English sparrow, if the habits of this pest had been understood the bird would have been destroyed when it was brought to this country.

Send for the circular.

The Charlevoix County Herald has been sold to M. G. Thimmig of Hessner.

The rumor on the streets last Friday that half of Mackinaw City had been wiped out by fire was wholly untrue. Two cottages on Mackinac Island were burned.

The people of Boyne City are trying to place stock to the amount of $5,000 to build a city hall to accommodate political conventions, "barn dormers" and local entertainments.

Bellaire Independent: Seven fishermen from St. Louis, Mo., were down from Belvedere recently and took back with them about sixty pounds of bass caught here. The money paid out by the party for bait, hotel fare, boats, guides, etc., was just $20.00, or practically 50 cents per pound for their catch.

Traverse City Herald: Arrangements are being made for the sale of Marion island, the property of Mrs. Fowler of Ionia. Many efforts have been made to secure the sale of the island, but they have hitherto been unavailing. The island contains about 160 acres and is as fine a location for a resort as can be found in the state.

Dan Jordan Enterprise: Daniel Dayton died at his home in Kentucky township Tuesday, Aug. 21, aged 77 years. Deceased was born in Hart county, Kentucky, Nov. 23, 1822, and removed to Charlevoix county in 1880 since which time he has resided here, highly respected by all who knew him. Some seven years ago he was badly injured in a runaway, and since then he has never out but little. An attack of malarial fever left him prostrate, and death came to release him from pain.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. Geo. D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This surprising remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. It is a godsend to weak, sickly, run-down people. Cure guaranteed. Only 50c. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggist.

—Daily Reader: During the first year that Mr. Foley has had the Detroiter it has grown, from almost an obscure club house to a large hotel—well known throughout the entire northwest region. Its increased popularity is entirely due to his capable management.

A continuous show, all smiles, no tears; all laughs, no time-worn features, stale jokes; no deep plot to unravel, no sorrow to be adjusted; no villain to be hissed. A laugh from start to finish. A good cure for the blues. There may be others, but this is Peck's Bad Boy. Don't forget the date—Sept. 8th.

—Eleven persons from Ohio, constituting a camping party, near Elsworth, had an exciting experience last Sunday evening. They were camped in a building near the lake when a little cyclone collapsed the structure. Several of them were injured slightly, but a lady therein had one of her legs and two ribs broken. He was brought here Monday and taken home Tuesday by boat.

—Traverse City Record: Alva Sprague, a young man 19 years of age, who has been employed by J. A. Jackson as driver on one of his ice wagons was arrested Monday by Sheriff Simpson, charged with making improper liberties with Pauline Nash, aged 16, a daughter of Frank Nash. Sprague was taken before Judge Brown and confronted with the girl and a companion, who positively identified the young man as the party who had committed the act charged. As there there was some doubt in the minds of the officers as to whether Sprague was the right man, as there were two employes of Mr. Jackson who were employed at the ice house on the day of the alleged crime, Sprague was held in the sum of $300 bail, and as he could not furnish the necessary surety he was lodged in jail. Sprague was formerly a Charlevoix boy and was at one time messenger boy for the T. U. Telegraph Co. here.

—Capt. Hansen, of the schooner J. V. Jones, of Kenosha, was drowned while boarding his vessel in the dark at Sutton's Bay Tuesday night. The body was recovered. Capt. Hansen is well known here.

—Another loss by fire caused by lightning is reported, this time from Beaver Island. On Sunday afternoon the barn of Owen Boyle was destroyed with all its contents, entailing a loss of $2,000. Mr. Boyle managed to get his team out just before the crackle was enveloped in flames. Owen Boyle was one of the pioneer farmers of the island, and one of the best.

—Lightning caused two fires in Manistee Sunday. In the afternoon it struck the barn of John Dougherty, on the State road, destroying it with all its contents, consisting of his crop of hay and grain, partly covered by insurance. About nine o'clock the house of township treasurer Alfred Lynd, was destroyed in the same manner, with all the treasurer's books and vouchers.

—Just as we go to press we receive the announcement that Hon. Henry Watterson, of the Louisville Courier Journal, will deliver his celebrated lecture on Abraham Lincoln, in the Grand Opera House, Petoskey, next Monday evening. Col. Watterson is the most eminent living orator, ranking with Ingersoll in brilliancy and golaics. His panegyric on Lincoln is his masterpiece. It is hoped that enough tickets will be engaged by Charlevoix people to secure a special train to return after the lecture.

—Mrs. Martin, relict of the late James S. Martin, died at her home in this village Monday morning, aged 81 years. Deceased was a pioneer. She was born in Ireland, coming to New York when a girl. In that city she married Mr. Martin. They came to Northport long before the war of the rebellion, moving here in 1869. She was the mother of Mrs. George Newland, John and George Martin, of this place, Mrs. Sarah Blackman, of Traverse City, and Mrs. Alva Smith, of Trenton. The funeral was from the Catholic church Wednesday morning.

—Jas. Dunlevy, of St. James, was tried by a jury of his peers in Justice McCaffney's court last week Thursday, for buying and shipping white fish of an illegal size. The jury was out but a short time and brought in a verdict of not guilty. The evidence brought out the fact that there was a percentage of small white fish in the 5000 pounds of "Manoominee." But it is the old, old story over again—illegal fish caught in a legal mesh. If the fishermen throw them back, he is liable, and if he is caught with them he is to fix it. In other words, he is damned if he does and damned if he don't.

—W. J. Pearson last week purchased of Rice & Stevens, of Petoskey, the finest dri'ng team in northern Michigan. They are a pair of Wilkes horses, full brother and sister and cost $600.

—A great many people in Charlevoix will regret the removal from Charlevoix of Mr. J. W. Watson, who has been several months in charge of the J. V. Farwell Co. store. Mr. Watson has made many friends here.

—Just at this time the country needs a new religion that will make a man pay his debts," says the Methodist Advocate. "Shouting and giving testimony doesn't settle accounts with God or man. We bounce right into a fellow and put him out of the church if he goes to a ball or theatre, but do not say a word to the pious scamp who never pays his debts. The latter are doing the church more harm than the dancers and drunkards, for there are more of them in the church."

—The Alba Heywood company played to a crowded house here on Friday evening, and the entertainment was of the usual high character of the Heywood recitals. The concert, however, was marred by the boisterous conduct of a crowd of young men and boys from Charlevoix resort. This is not the first occasion when an entertainment has been disturbed by this sort of rowdies, and we are informed that if the season again they will be ejected from the room, or more severely dealt with.

TRAGEDY IN A HOTEL.

CHICAGOAN SHOOTS ANOTHER MAN AND KILLS HIMSELF.

Man Unknown to Women at Hotel Vendome, New York, and a Mysterious Lady Shot Their Lives, Leaving Sensational Facts Buried.

At 11 o'clock in a female dressing at Hotel Vendome, New York, a man was found dead with a bullet in his head. The man was about 35 years old, dark hair, well-dressed, clean. Hanging from a chandelier nearby was a woman's corset. Therefore of the man there could be no doubt that he had been with a woman, and the corset was evidence that the woman had left in haste. The man had been dead for several hours, and the woman, if she was alive, was not in the hotel. The man had registered under an assumed name. He had come to Vendome the night before, and had taken a room for himself and a woman. A woman was seen to go into the hotel with him, but the county office has complete evidence.

CHILD HERDING OF KANSAS.

Six Starving Girl Sears Her Baby Sister from Drowning.

The three-year-old daughter of A. G. Smith, who lives in the town of Blaine, Kansas, "accidentally" saved her younger sister from being drowned a few days ago, and in so doing lost her own life. The younger sister was in the pasture, and had wandered from their hut about six rods of water in which the child was drowned. The little girl ran to the house and called her sister, and the other daughter ran to the pasture. The little girl was far ahead of her sister, and was among enough to be the drowning girl while the sitting down for the day. A shack was then thrown into the pasture and the other two plunged into the water. By holding on to the board she managed to keep from sinking, and the two girls were in the water together for the space of about half an hour, when the mother, Mrs. Smith, discovered the situation and ran to the pasture to assist the young girls. Mrs. Smith had to wade in the water about waist deep before she could reach the girls, and by the time she had reached them she was almost exhausted, and was unable to lift the little girl out of the water. She then ran to the house and called her husband to the pasture, and he succeeded in getting the little girl out of the water, but the child was so exhausted that she died in a few minutes after being taken from the water. The mother and her husband had gone to the pasture to look for the little girl, and had left the two girls at home. The little girl had wandered from the house, and the other two had gone in search of her. The little girl was about six years old, and the other two were about four and five years of age, respectively. The child's death is the result of the exposure and fright she underwent while in the water.

COULD NOT SINK.

Dorlon Bros' Experience in Great Salt Lake.

Robert Bridges of Boston yesterday at the Hotel Manhattan told of an experience he had once in the Great Salt lake of Utah, says the New York Tribune. "I was staying at Salt Lake City with some friends," said Mr. Bridges, "and one day they invited me to go out in the Dead beach for a swim. After checking our valuables and dressing our bathing clothes we assembled in the pavilion and made our way to the water. Up and down the slope of the inclined space there was only landing in the water and at each step we felt the depth of the water at that particular point. What depth will you go in?" asked my friend, and, being a sly footer and a golfer also, as it turned out, I chose five and a half feet and turned off at that point. At the end of the runway steps lead down into the water and when I was in waist deep I started off with vigorous strokes, intending to swim up and join my friends. Never was an era treated to a great surprise. I lay on top of the water and as I could not get neither foot nor hand down I tried with great difficulty that I made even the less feat in the landing stairs. Once there, I hastened to rejoin my party, only to be greeted with derisive cheers and inquiries as to how I enjoyed my swim. It is great fun though, for you can lie on your back and smoke or read so comfortably as when in your cot, and it is exhilarating, also, by the only way to propel yourself is to lie on your back and paddle with your hands. Any other mode of swimming fails. We waded out and found that at about four and a half to five feet we could not keep our feet down."

KINGS IN CAPTIVITY.

England Keeps Several of Them in Jail.

Phone

An insight may be gained as to treatment of royalty in some of the Boer republics who may suffer defeat and fail to escape into either German or Portuguese territory, by comparison with that of ex-Queen and kings held captive heretofore by the British government. Approaching Cabinda on the left coast of the Mail river at Gaiche beach, the visitor will have pointed out the fine palace of the late Wadi Ali, king of Oudh. There from 1856 until a recent date this prince was held in semi-captivity upon an annual allowance of $200,000, the only pretext as to his freedom of action being that he should not leave the vicinity of Calcutta. The king of Oudh, true to those peculiar hereditary instincts which brought about his downfall, still managed to expend this large sum, but in the keeping of snake charmers, necromancers and other costly forms of amusement dear to the Oriental mind, was obliged to draw frequently upon the imperial treasury for further amounts. Meeting with jeers and ridicule in a short campaign with Sikhs and assisted in a short coup-de-main, with assents to royal liveries, the king of Oudh was often a conspicuous figure at the Calcutta maidan—the famous park where the society of the Indian capital takes an outing after the heat of the day has passed. Far different was the fate of the pace old Bahadur shah, lar of the great Moghuls. After the fall of Delhi, in 1857, he was tried for high treason and sent as a state prisoner to Rangoon. There in a small hut, the only lineal descendant of Shah Jehan was confined and passed the remainder of his days, unnoticed and upon a mere pittance. An, however, both his sons were slaughtered and a few months before death, Thalia Tog, was escorted to the bay near Bombay hoping fortunate to escape with his life. Near Colombo, in Ceylon, England still holds in durance Arabi Pasha and his colleagues of the Egyptian rebellion of 1882. Arabi has not ceased to bemoan his fate and unceasingly petitions the British government for permission to return to Egypt. Of minor potentates, England has at present one Affidah, confined to the limits of that island in the south Atlantic made famous as the prison of the great Napoleon, and at other seats for the less desirable members of Queen Victoria's family. For several years Cetewayo, king of the Zulus, was held an unengaged prisoner at Durban, near the scene of the present so hard operations in Natal, where he died before the promise of return home on his throne was verified into effect.

Sultan of Montenegro.

Prince Nikola I, of Montenegro, will celebrate his fortieth anniversary in a few weeks. The Montenegrins, the Serbians and the Greek of the Balkans will participate in the celebration. The prince is one of the most remarkable of all the European rulers. Only 500,000 people are under his command. Their ancestors, centuries ago, sought refuge from the barbarous Ottoman hordes in the impregnable natural fortresses of the Mesdo Negro. Prince Nikola, in a comparatively short time, succeeded in making his land an island, as regards military training, surrounded by a free and wise government. Under his paternal rulership Montenegro has become the strongest factor of all the Balkan states.

Honey Where Drying Glad.

Upon the two hundredth anniversary of Dryden's death it is interesting to note that of all the London houses prominently associated with the poet only one is still occupied by a tenant. This is No. 43 Gerrard street Soho, and it bears a tablet recording the fact that he resided and died there. The house is Jacobean where he lived for some four years, is now outworn, and all its mates in Petter lane, over Fleet street, which, when he bore a commemorative tablet, went the way of the "Mermaid" in 1891. Not the time of his repair, of a jubilee, who lived and died in the house. Where the Record Office now stands, Finally, Will's Coffee House, once a favorite haunt of Dryden and his wife, has long since succumbed the prosaic guise of a hide and leaf shop.

An Embarrassing Question.

"Is your new boarding place aristocratic?"

"Yes, very; when we begin to eat soup at the end our landlady goes up from the table and stirs a music box on the piazza."—Chicago Record.

A JOLLY FUNERAL.

Was That or an Italian Dinner Named Louis Cortado.

An Italian dinner named Louis Cortado, who died in the last country, left some curious instructions as to the manner of his burial. The gentleman by his will instructs his relations to weep at his funeral, on pain of being disinherited, and appointed him or his who should laugh the longest and loudest at the principal bier or bagatee. Not a pitted, of black was to be displayed either in the house in which he should die or in the church in which he should be buried—they were both to be strewn with flowers and green boughs on the day of his funeral. Instead of the tolling of bells, lively music was to accompany his body to the church, and fifty minstrels were to march with the clergy, emptying their flutes, crumhorns and trumpets. The bier was to be carried by virgin marriageable girls, clothed in green, to each of which the infanta bequeathed a sum of money for her dowry. Lastly, no one in the procession was to wear black. All the orders were absolutely carried into effect.

Too Old for Countesses.

Sir Henry M. Stanley originally entered the English parliament with his mind set on making his mark in the house, but found himself too old and too proficient in debate to make much headway. So he has been a silent member and is said to be not interested in standing at the next general election.

Hogton Gives Pasal Infinitation.

When the son of the late King of the Matabeles, a tribe of South African Kaffirs, was on exhibition at Earl's Court, London, it became a fashionable craze for young English women to visit him and his kraal unchaperoned, and to lavish all sorts of gifts upon them. Such was the scandal that proceedings against women prohibited from entering the pavilion where the South African natives gave their entertainment. But Miss Jewel, a handsome and well-bred young English girl, had already become so infatuated with the leader of the dusky band that she eloped with him and became his wife. Two or three times since then the Kaffir has been charged in the police courts with illusing his fair young wife, and it is now reported that she has contracted polygamic affair a quarrel with her till-chosen spouse.

Electricity for Life-Saving.

Electricity is being used in a life-saving machine devised by Dr Laborde of France. It is well known that tingual traction, or the pulling out of the victim's tongue at regular intervals has saved the life of a person asphyxiated or drowned, and that some hours after the accident. To accomplish this, Dr Laborde has constructed a machine run by a small electric motor. A metal clamp is attached to the tongue of the patient so as to grip it firmly. From it runs a wire attached to the motor, which is set to run at a certain speed. As its armature revolves it carries the wire with it thus drawing the tongue backward and forward.

Pole-Curse Family.

In England the family of Carew to which the poetic Geo. Pole-Carew belongs, has supplied many romantic stories to Devonshire. One of them is connected with Anne's case, a bewildering beautiful spot not far from Torquay on the Babbicombe side. Once upon "Cripple" called only as a fishing village and the Tor wood and the Wells wood stretched from the hills down to the sea on either side, and were the chosen haunt of pixies, one of the Carews of Haccombe struck up a friendship with a gypsy girl named Anstey Lee. They used to meet on the heights above the inlet, which is now known as Anstey's cove and finally he threw her over the cliff and killed her. And as it was said, for years, that no mortale sights in the vear her ghost haunted the cove and the cliffs. But as the place is remote and difficult, and inaccessible at night, people do not go there after dark, so the ghost has not been seen within recent times, and the legend is almost forgotten.

Birthplace of Dr. Johnson.

The announcement that the Lichfield City Council has purchased the birthplace of Dr. Samuel Johnson, in Market square, is not the first sign of the lively appreciation of its most illustrious son. In 1867, at a common hall of the burgesses and citizens, it was offered (without solicitation) that lease of the ground upon which the house stood should be granted to the doctor for a term of ninety-nine years at the old rent, which was five shillings, and that no fine should be paid. Johnson also had a high opinion of his native town. "Sir," he said to Boswell, "we have a city of gentlemen; we walk with our heads, and make the barbies of Birmingham look for us with their hands." It was in Lichfield, too, that Johnson fell in love with an actress who played Phoebe in "Hob in the Well."

An Expensive Telegram.

Several years ago a telegraph cable was laid in the bed of the Amazon river to connect the various towns along that stream with Para. It was soon found that the rapid current of the river and the vast quantities of driftwood, etc., brought down by the stream, broke and interfered with the workings of the cable to such an extent that it has been in use only about one month in twelve during its existence. A company has been formed, aided by the Para government, to construct a land line of telegraph wires along the river, and so far, the million dollars has been built. The difficulty of protecting a telegraph line through the Amazon forests is enormous, and it will probably cause this to be the most expensive telegraph line in the world when it is completed.

Received as Prize Wagon.

Physicians in the state prison at Columbus, O., have just taken a fifth finger from the hand of Will Byers, a noted thief. Byers is serving a term for robbing the mails and found that his fingers fingers included, with his work in the glove shop of the prison.

MARTIN HERMAN'S WILL

By MAJ. ALFRED ROCHEFORT

Copyright, 1900, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER IX.

"A Bonner, Ann, are you? I haven't seen you for a long time. Lawyer Crosby tells me from his office next door, needs work; a short, fluid man of cross, whose type portraits and profiles are in demand, and who is interested in what is called in the newspaper world, a fake sensation."

"Yes, Mr. Herman, I am Bonner; I have worked for Mr. Crosby, and I know Mr. Chatterton, and I know the man you mean. Why, Mr. Herman, I'm a sketch artist myself. Chatterton, as he calls himself, refers to taking pictures of the bogus heroes and heroines in his sensational sheets."

"Then Mission would be of advantage to you, Ann, she would turn me to view the lame."

"You are a dear man, uncle. You deserve success," said Ann. Then there, she was kissed young man's head, and she was off to the desk.

"Now, Ann, you know what I want, and you know what I want." said Mr. Herman, "Mr. Chatterton, as he calls himself, is a rascal, and I want you to be a match for him."

"Yes, uncle, I will do my best," said Ann, and she was off.

"Ann, Ann, come back,"

The Democrats are very careful in their campaign against the ship subsidy bill not to say that foreign governments subsidize their merchant ships to the amount of more than $20,000,000 and against whom our unaided American ships cannot compete.

The general prosperity of the masses in all parts of the country, north, south, east and west, resulting from good crops and good prices is a legitimate vote maker for the Republican party. The Lord gave the good crops and the Republicans gave the good markets, and no amount of political misrepresentation can deprive either of the credit due.

The country is not yet ready to turn over the chair which has been filled by such statesmen and patriots as Washington, Lincoln, Grant and Harrison to one who appeals for support on account of his record against most of the wise legislation that has been enacted ever since the Republican commenced to legislate in politics.

Bissell Gage is not satisfied with the present prosperity. He complains with bitterness that money is a drug on the market now. In the hard times of the Cleveland administration Mr. Gage could lend out his money with usury. Now he has to complete even with the farmers of the West who have become lenders of money where they used to be borrowers. No wo, he is dissatisfied with McKinley prosperity.

If Mr. Bryan cared to be candid enough to admit that more honestly upon the art of accumulating wealth than any of the other candidates in the form, Mr. Bryan is the wealthiest candidate before the people today and he has made his money since the inauguration of the policies against which he declaimed so vigorously. Let Mr. Bryan be candid enough to confess to $20,000 the Republican administration the proper credit for his good fortune.

The Supreme Court fell under the displeasure of the Democratic party because it would not declare constitutional a piece of partisan legislation and their party vented its anger by trying to haul the chosen of the highest and purest court the world has ever known. The country resented the outrage so much that in the platform this year the Democrats refrained from attacking the court, for not they notwithstanding the insurance, opposed to the court, yet they have adopted the platform which advocated the measure and condemned the court.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

"The golden rule is the basis of all good manners."

"Manners are something with every one and everything with some."

Since an animated corpse is a much worse enemy to society than an ignorant one, education without morality is a curse.

All teaching should therefore possess the vital elements of morality; not that every lesson or day's work should have a moral tacked upon it, but back of the teacher's every look, word and act there should be purity and honesty. Character in the teacher will develop character in the pupil. Closely allied to good morals is good manners. Indeed, good manners should be the outgrowth of good will, and no person really possesses them whose acts do not spring from a kindly heart.

Conversely, good manners properly taught the child, exert upon his heart and produce a gentler desire to give others no discomfort.

The teacher will find in the "State Manual and Course of Study" suggestive outlines for teaching morals and manners. These outlines may be supplemented by others, as occasion demands; but when an attempt is made to teach this subject let it be systematically done, and not simply to fill some idle moments. Furthermore, strive to have courteous acts spring from the desire to be kind rather than from the desire to be of appearance.

The whole aim of education is self culture. Culture consists in standing above the present moment, and in seeing the remoter good. It consists in seeing in things all that is really in them, including their relation to each other and to the universe of God. The teacher who will inspire habits of punctuality, regularity and self-control; of courtesy, honor and respect for law; of kindness, tolerance and charitableness; of tenderness, forgiveness and humility, must himself be practical, regular and self-contained, must be courteous and honorable, and have respect for authority, must be kind, tolerant, patriotic, tender, forgiving and humble. Then will he be able to give his pupils that which will enable them to help themselves.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Boyne City people are working hard to secure the bowling of a ball or open house there to provide a place suitable for good entertainments and large public gatherings.

Phil Dalmut, who was at one time editor of the Boyne City Statesman and postmaster at that place, is now editor of the Oconto (Wis.) Enterprise, and is a very prominent candidate for the congressional nomination in his district.

The hull of the G. H. & L. wreck at Pierson was cleared away lately. The main line is now in one sheets the wreck occurred. It has been a slow and hard job for the company. It took 19 cars to carry away the debris and there were three outloads of broken timbers burned.

Wm. F. Empey and his brother departed Thursday for the northwest, says the East Jordan Enterprise. They will go by the Canadian Pacific road to the province of Alberta, and will choose seek a good location for the stock raising business. Mr. Empey has been actively identified with East Jordan's history for a good many years and a host of friends will miss him, while wishing him the best of success wherever they may decide to locate.

East Jordan Enterprise—Many of our readers will deeply regret to learn of the death of Frank J. Cutler, who succumbed to an attack of yellow fever at his home in Louisiana, Aug. 10. Mr. Cutler was a resident of East Jordan for many years and leader of our band. At the time of his death Mr. Cutler was a member of the Louisiana state band. Deceased leaves a widow and one daughter, who are now at Central Lake at the home of Mrs. W. M. Wilson, mother of Mrs. Cutler.

Petoskey News—Burt McKenzie of Petoskey, collector for J. H. Miner & Co. was badly injured last Thursday at the G. R. & I. crossing. Both legs were badly mangled. McKenzie, with Frank Dalmute and Oliver Jolway, were in a buggy and were crossing the tracks when they saw a train approaching. McKenzie and Dalmute became frightened and jumped. Balmore escaped, but McKenzie landed on the track. He was dragged fifty feet by the cowcatcher before the train was stopped. Jolway, who had stuck to the buggy, was not injured. McKenzie died of his injuries.

A peculiar incident in connection with the drowning of Pentiago Sakunar Elk Rapids lately, was the refusal to work by all of the Indians, eight or ten in number, who have been helping to dig the ditch. The Indians have a superstition among themselves that it is certain death for one of their number to go in or upon the waters of Petobago. Therefore when the boat in the marsh on the edge of the lake was struck they all withdrew. This belief dates back a number of years, when an Indian chief was lost in the lake and was supposed to have been swallowed by some terrible monster, since then no Indian dares to venture upon the lake.

A resorter who has tried for several years to secure possession of a piece of choice land just north of Northport was a caller at this office, says the Traverse City Eagle, to learn the status of the proposed Leelanau railroad. "People at Northport," said he, "are refusing to name prices upon property row. They are all waiting for the raise in view of the railroad being built, and won't even name prices upon lands which a few years ago they were anxious to sell. I know a piece of land which six years ago I could buy at a reasonable figure, which today the proprietor says he doesn't feel like putting a price on."

The Pere Marquette Ry Co. have undertaken to develop the unoccupied lands along its lines in northern Michigan by the organization of a new land department. The new department, while working in the interest of the Pere Marquette road, is organized separately. It is known as the New York Land association. The Michigan office of the company is located at Manistee, and in addition offices have been established in New York, Chicago and Detroit. The methods pursued by the company are similar to those of similar organizations kept up by other roads. The lands are large giant stump lands in the northern part of the state. The land is being advertised, and immigrants are being brought west and located on the land, which is sold to the settlers on easy terms for from $5 to $10 an acre.

—The U. S. revenue cutter Morrill came into port yesterday.

—Mrs S. H. Nelson, formerly of this place, but now of Shelby, is here visiting friends.

—The schooner Natal collided with a Chicago lodge and lost her jibboom last Saturday.

—Lelah and Myrtle Miller leave this week for Kalamazoo, where they will enter the Kalamazoo Ladies Seminary.

—The first and severest wind storm of the season came upon us Tuesday night. The weather service says it is the same storm that swept Galveston.

—George Seelignon and family are guests at the Inn. Mr. Seelignon's home and much other property was swept away by the cyclone and tidal wave last Sunday.

—The new passenger boat for the Charlevoix St. James route, the Oral Agitator, Capt. McCauley, was here last week for a trial trip. A syndicate, of Harbor Springs, proposes to make Charlevoix headquarters, and will move here. It is proposed to take in Harbor Springs both ways, and the enterprise is said to have been urged by Harbor Springs in order to capture the Beaver Island trade. The Oral Agitator is a good boat.

—The Charlevoix County Agricultural Society will hold its seventeenth annual fair at East Jordan next week Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The conditions are favorable for a greater display of farm products than ever before, and the racing program is the best in the history of the association, and covers the three days of the fair. Besides all manner of races with prizes from $25 to $100, East Jordan and Petoskey will contest in a game of foot ball. We hope the fair will be well attended.

—Charlevoix can at last claim the metropolitan distinction of having had a genuine "hold-up." One evening last week a party of Chicago club people had been having an evening beach party south of the water works. A conveyance came after them but could not hold the crowd so John Stuart and Stanley Keith followed on foot. On their way up to Main street they were confronted by two men who demanded their money. One had a little over a dollar and handed it over. The other pretended his arms and said, "Well, you see we come to all the money I have with me." The robbers allowed Mr. Stuart pass, although he had quite a sum of money on his person, and both had fine gold watches. The young men could not describe the robbers.

—A Traverse City paper prints the following particulars of the launching of Capt. Thorwald Hansen, Capt. Thorwald Hansen of the schooner J. V. Jones, of Kewaunee, Wis., was drowned at Sutons Bay Tuesday morning, though the fact was not known nor suspected till the body was found in the bay under the hull by dock yesterday morning at 7 o'clock. Captain Hansen was unloading the Jones with a cargo of hay, and had spent Monday evening on shore. He was accompanied part way in the boat about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning, who left him there to proceed to the boat alone. It is evident that he fell between the boat and the dock while seeking to board the boat in the darkness. He had stated that he would go to Northport Tuesday, and his absence was not considered strange until he failed to return Thursday evening. When yesterday morning came and he had not returned a search was instituted, and his body was found under the dock, where the boat was moored Monday night. A coroner's jury was summoned, which decided death was caused by accidental drowning. Capt. Hansen's home was in Milwaukee, where he leaves a wife and family. He was 52 years of age, and a brother of Capt. Ole Hansen of the schooner Allen, well known here. Both are well known in Michigan ports, and together they owned two other fine schooners besides the Allen and the Jones.

—Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Hinyan of Alma, Mich., and their daughter, who have been visiting Mrs. J. A. Hawkins the past week, returned home Monday.

—L. J. Morse returned Saturday from Mt. Clemens, where he represented Charlevoix lodge at the G. M. M. A. convention. Battle Creek secured the convention for 1901.

Detroit Journal: Any effort to muzzle the Hon. Charlie Hampton will be met by stern and unrelenting opposition by the republicans of Michigan. The Hon. Charlie Hampton is a source of never ending gaiety and republican votes.

—When Governor Roosevelt finished up his work of speechmaking in Michigan, he is reported to have said that he was very tired but happy. Many of his hearers may have felt the same way.—Traverse City Eagle. Yes, but they are mostly democrats.

—Yataro Kinoshi, M. A., of Yale university will lecture at the Congregational church next Sunday evening on the "Success of Christianity in Japan." Mr. Kinoshi will appear in Japanese costume and exhibit articles illustrative of the manners and customs of his people. This is a rare opportunity to hear a Christian Japanese gentleman tell the story of the rising greatness of that wonderful nation or "the rising sun."

—A very pleasant musical event was the violin recital given last Friday evening at the home of Mr. A. L. Coulter by Mr. Geo. Newell's juvenile class. The occasion demonstrated the fact that Charlevoix will soon have a number of accomplished violinists not fiddlers mind you. The pupils gave a very elegant little concert and Mr. Newell has reason to be proud of his musical work here.

—One of the most notable political changes in northern Michigan is that of Archibald Cameron (Rep.) of Torch Lake. He has been a lifelong democrat, but now announces his intention of voting the republican ticket this fall. His express reasons for this change is that the protective tariff policy of the republican party brings greater present business prosperity than would the tariff policy of the democratic party; and, while he has misgivings about future results of prosperity resulting from such measures, he has decided to lay aside his democratic conservatism and vote for what he considers the best business interests of the present generation. James Cameron, a brother of Archie and a member of the Cameron Lumber Co., while in Charlevoix recently, announced his desertion of Bryanism, and his intention to vote and work for McKinley.

—Traverse City Record: The peach crop in this section will be the largest in its history. Several orchards could be bearing this year, notable among them being that of Dr. Kneeland's, in the bearing the first year he will ship from it. The first shipment of good size from the local market was this morning when 300 bushels were loaded on boat. Henry Courtel also shipped 75 bushels of early Crawfords, the first of that variety to be shipped locally. Yellow peaches brought $2 a bushel on the street today, and local producers are finding considerable difficulty in the fact that peaches sold Tuesday 25 cents a bushel in Grand Rapids on Wednesday. Notwithstanding the big crop they are not look for any great downward tendency in prices. "Peaches are overcoming the estimate," said Dr. Kneeland this morning. "Of the champion variety upon my farm I estimated about 75 bushels. Yesterday we picked 80 bushels and there are as many more left. Of the Alexanders I have seven trees and from these we have picked 100 one-fifth bushel baskets." The early Crawfords will be ripe next week, and shipments will be at their height. Local peaches will all go north, the southern markets being fully occupied by the St. Joe belt.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

The teachers who attended the recent examinations at Charlevoix saw a note attached to the list of questions on "theory and art of teaching," stating the fact that hereafter if in subject would be omitted thirty to the reading circle work.

Teachers who are preparing for examination should be cognisant of this fact and prepare themselves accordingly.

"Horace Mann and the Common School Revival in the United States," by Dr. Rinsdale of Michigan university is an excellent pedagogical work. From an important point of view the history of great education is a history of education itself. The purpose of this book is to set before the reader Horace Mann as an educator in his historical position and relations.

We do not wish to dictate to the teacher what he shall read, but be cannot fail to be benefitted by keeping in touch with our State Reading Circle work.

While professional reading by all teachers is of great importance, the reading and study of a systematic course is to be commended. Such work always adds interest to the unwellings of teachers and becomes a source of mental improvement.

Notice to Teachers!

The law requires that all children between the ages of 7 and 16 years shall attend school at least four months in each year, beginning the first of the school year. This law is obligatory and must be enforced. All persons between said ages who are not in school at the beginning of next week will be interviewed by the truant officer.

J. M. TEN, Sup't.

President Gardfield, of the state forestry commission, believes he has solved the forestry problem. There are hundreds of thousands of acres of timber lands in the northern part of the lower peninsula which are practically worthless for agricultural purposes, and from which the timber has been cut. President Garfield says that if the owners of some of these lands, instead of allowing them to revert to the state for unpaid taxes would deed them to the University of Michigan for the support of a school of forestry, they would furnish the nucleus of what might develop into a magnificent endowment. Since the University is a state institution, the lands would be exempt from taxation. He thinks that in 25 years by the natural growth of the trees, the lands could be made self-supporting.

Latest Events.

A terrible cyclone and tidal wave swept away more than half of the city of Galveston, Texas, last Sunday. The loss of life will exceed 2,500.

In China matters remain much the same as last week. Europe proposes to stay, while the latest reports are that the United States will evacuate.

Mexico gave out about 25,000 republican majority last Monday.

The president's letter of acceptance came out Monday, in which he traces 70 years in union cause, reviews the democrats, and confounds the enemy in his answer to the cry of "imperialism."

Blood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Houston, Texas, once treated a grave disease. He says: "My brother was very low with malaria fever and jaundice, pronounced him to be in the last stage, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy cures malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood, aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at F. G. Hines & Co's.

A Night of Terror.

"Last night my baby was taken with croup, and we thought she would die from paroxysms of coughing," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, of Marshfield, Mass. "But fortunately we had the Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, which had always been a safe remedy for croup, and it soon relieved her and she slept quietly all the rest of the night. Further use entirely cured her. This wonderful medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

The Democrats are very careful in their campaign against the ship subsidy bill not to say that foreign governments are willing to pay subsidies to the amount of more than $20,000,000 and against which Great Britain and America alone cannot compete.

The general prosperity of the times is in all parts of the country, north, south, east and west—working men and capitalists, farmers and manufacturers, are all in accord—political campaigns are for the time being forgotten and the Republican party, the party that gave the good times, and is entitled to political recognition, is the party to receive the support of the people.

The country is not yet ready to turn over the ship which has been tinkered to and fro, and almost wrecked by the Democratic crew, to the Populists. The Lord protects the drunken and the Republicans gave the good times, and as a consequence of political recognition they will deprive office to the south side.

The country is not yet ready to turn over the ship which has been tinkered to and fro, and almost wrecked by the Democratic crew, to the Populists. The Lord protects the drunken and the Republicans gave the good times, and as a consequence of political recognition they will deprive office to the south side.

Bonnell wagons are satisfied with the present prosperity. He smiles with bitterness that money is a drug on the market now. In the land items of the Cleveland administration Mr. Sage could lend out his money with safety. Now he has to complete cars with the labors of the Wise Men who have become holders of money where they used to be borrowers. Not wise, for he is associated with McKinley, judge not.

If Mr. Bryan cared to be candid he would inform the people how much money he is accumulating outside that of the other candidates in the field. Mr. Bryan has the candidate and he has the popularity and no less than the names when the tribunes shout of the people against the declaration so vigorously made by Bryan is certain enough to Democrats to give the opposition and Republicans the proper credit for his good fortune.

The Supreme Court fell under the displeasure of the Democratic party because it would not declare certain actions a piece of partisan legislation and thus partly vented the anger by trying to hamper the actions of the highest and purest court the world has ever known. The country recognized the contempt—it made that in the platform this year the Democrats of mind from attacking the court, and they further the money-bags, control by the courts, yet they have allowed the platform which advocates the measure and condemned the court.

Republican Issues.

Nothing comes from the conference very. The morning service will consist largely of complaints in the new manners and manual reports of the various auxiliary societies of the church. Sermon in the evening.

Services will be held at Christ Church in Charlevoix on Sunday Sept. 16th, 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Rev. George A. Gillespie, D. D., Bishop of Western Michigan. All are invited to attend.

LAKE NOTICE.

Sears, of Chicago, payable in six months was obtained from the undersigned without value received, and Notice is accordingly issued warning all persons not to purchase said note as payment will be refused. It is made payable in Charlevoix, Michigan.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. S. CHEW, COMM'R.

"The golden rule is the basis of all good manners."

"Manners are something with every one and everything with some."

Vices are educated casual to a tooth worse enemy to society than an ignorant one, education without morality is a curse.

All teaching should therefore possess the vital elements of morality—not that every lesson or day's work should have a moral tacked upon it, but back of the teacher's every look, word and act there should be purity and honesty. Character in the teacher will develop character in the pupil. Closely allied to good morals is good manners. Indeed, good manners should be the outgrowth of good will, and no person really possesses them whose acts do not spring from a kindly heart.

Unnecessarily, good manners properly taught the child, react upon his home and produce a genuine desire to give others no discomfort.

The teacher will find in the "State Manual and Course of Study" suggestive outlines for teaching morals and manners. These outlines may be supplemented by others as occasion demands, but when an attempt is made to teach this subject but it be systematically done, and not simply to fill some idle moments. Furthermore, strive to have continuous acts spring from the desire to be kind rather than for the sake of appearance.

The whole aim of education is self culture. Culture consists in standing ready to do the greatest amount, and in seeing the greatest good. It consists in seeing in things all that is really there, including their relation to each other and to the universe of God. The teacher who will magnify habits of punctuality, regularity, and self control, of courtesy, honor and respect for law, of kindness, toleration and patriotism, of truthfulness, forgiveness and humility, must himself be punctual, regular and self-controlled, must be courteous and honorable and have an respect for authority, must be kind, tolerant, patriotic, truthful, forgiving and humble. Then will he be able to give to his pupils that which will enable them to help themselves.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Boyne City people are working hard to secure the building of a hall or opera house there to provide a place suitable for good entertainments and large public gatherings.

Phil Hadnor, who was at one time editor of the Boyne City Statesman and postmaster at that place, is now editor of the Oconto (Wis.) Enterprise, and is a very prominent candidate for the congressional nomination in his district.

The last of the G. R. & I. wreck at Pierson was cleared away lately. The main line is now in use where the wreck occurred. It has been a slow and hard job for the company. It took 19 cars to carry away the debris and there were three carloads of fresh cut timber burned.

Wm. F. Dupey and his brother departed Thursday for the northwest, says the East Jordan Enterprise. They will go by the Canadian Pacific road to the province of Alberta, and will thence seek a good location for the stock raising business. Mr Dupey has been actively identified with East Jordan's history for a good many years and a host of friends will miss him, while wishing him the best of success wherever they may decide to locate.

East Jordan Enterprise—Many of our readers will deeply regret to learn of the death of Frank J. Cutler, who succumbed to an attack of yellow fever at his home in Louisiana, Aug 19. Mr. Cutler was a resident of East Jordan for many years and leader of our band. At the time of his death Mr. Cutler was a member of the Louisiana state band. Deceased leaves a widow and one daughter, who are now at Central Lake at the home of Mrs. W. M. Wilson, mother of Mrs Cutler.

Cheboygan News—Jim McKenzie of Petoskey, colonel for 11 Minor & Co., was badly injured last Thursday at the G. R. & I. crossing. Both legs were badly mangled. McKenzie, with Frank Dubuque and Orion Jed way, were in a buggy and were crossing the tracks when they saw a train approaching. McKenzie and Dubuque became frightened and jumped. Dubuque escaped, but McKenzie landed on the track. He was dragged 100 feet by the connection before the train was stopped. Jedway, who had stuck to the buggy, was not injured. McKenzie died of his injuries.

A peculiar accident in connection with the blasting at Pelobogo lake, near Elk Rapids lately, was the refusal of work by all of the Indians, eight or ten in number, who have been helping to dig the ditch. The Indians have a superstition among themselves that it is certain death for one of their number to go in or open the waters of Pelobogo. Therefore when the girl in the marsh on the edge of the lake was struck they all withdrew. This belief dates back a number of years, when an Indian child was lost in the lake and was supposed to have been swallowed up some terrible monster. Since then no Indian dares to venture upon the lake.

A timber business land for several years to secure possession of a piece of choice land just north of Northport was a caliber at this office, says the Traverse City Eagle, to learn the status of the proposed Cadillac railroad. "People at Northport," said he, "are refusing to name prices upon property now. They are all waiting for the mine to view of the railroad being built, and won't even name prices upon lands which a few years ago they were anxious to sell. I know a piece of land which six years ago I could buy at a reasonable figure which today the proprietor says he doesn't feel like putting a price on."

The Pere Marquette R'y Co. have undertaken to develop the unoccupied lands along its lines in northern Michigan by the organization of a new land department. The new department, while working in the interest of the Pere Marquette road, is organized separately. It is known as the New York Land association. The Michigan office of the company is located at Manistee, and in addition agencies have been established in New York, Chicago and Detroit. The methods pursued by the company are similar to those of similar organizations kept up by other roads. The lands are large, practically lands in the northern part of the state. The land is being advertised, and immigrants are being brought west and located on the land, which is sold to the settlers on easy terms for from $5 to $10 an acre.

MILWAUKEE, SEPT. 11-13, LOW RATE.

Across the lake by steamship—excellent opportunity to visit Ar. The northwest will be afforded on this excursion, as will be good to return until Sept. 22d. Train will leave Charlevoix at 3:30 p. m. and arrive at Luddington at 9:45, connecting with a Pere Marquette steamer, arriving at Milwaukee at 6:30 next morning. Rate from Charlevoix will be $5.00. —The new passenger boat for the Charlevoix-St. James route, the Oval Agitator, Capt. McKinley, was here last week. He expects to take in Harbor Springs port. If Commodore of Harbor Springs headquarters, and will move here. It is proposed to take in Harbor Springs both ways, and the enterprise is said to have been urged by Harbor Springs in order to capture the Beaver Island trade. The Oval Agitator is a good boat.

—The Charlevoix County Agricultural Society will hold its seventeenth annual fair at East Jordan next week Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The conditions are favorable for a greater display of farm products than ever before, and the racing program is the best in the history of the association, and covers the three days of the fair. Besides all manner of races with prizes from $25 to $100, East Jordan and Petoskey will contest in a game of foot ball. We hope the fair will be well attended.

—Charlevoix can at last claim the metropolitan distinction of having had a genuine "hold-up." One evening last week a party of Chicago Club people had been having an evening beach party south of the water works. A conveyance came after them, but could not hold the crowd so John Stuart and Stanley Keith footed on foot. On their way up to Main street they were confronted by two men who demanded their money. One had a little over a dollar and handed it over. The other extended his arms and said, "Well, you are not come on as the money I have with me." The robbers allowed him to pass, although he had quite a lot of money on his person, and both had fine gold watches. The young men could not describe the robbers.

—A Traverse City paper prints the following patronizing of the dressing of Capt. Thorwald Hansen. Capt. Thorwald Hansen, of the schooner J. V. Jones, of Kenosha, Wis., was drowned at Northern Bay Tuesday morning, though the fact was not known nor suspected till the body was found in the bay under the lady dock yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. Captain Hansen was unloading the Jones with a cargo of lumber and had spent Monday evening on shore. He was accompanied part way by the boat about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, who left him there to proceed to the land alone. It is evident he had fell between the boat and the dock while seeking to insure the boat in the darkness. He had stated that he would go to Northport Tuesday, and his absence was not considered strange until he failed to return Tuesday evening. When yesterday morning came and he had not returned a search was instituted, and his body was found under the dock, where the boat was moored Monday night. A coroner's jury was summoned, which decided death was caused by accidental drowning. Capt Hansen's home was in Milwaukee, where he leaves a wife and family. He was 35 years of age, and a brother of Capt Ole Hansen of the schooner Allie, well known here. Both are well known in Michigan ports, and together they owned two other fine schooners besides the Allie and the Jones.

—Detroit Journal: Any effort to remove the Hon. Charles Hampton will be met by stern and unrelenting opposition by the republicans of Michigan. The Hon. Charles Hampton is a source of never-ending gloom and republican votes.

—When Governor Roosevelt finished up his stock of speechmaking in Michigan, he is reported to have said that he was "very tired but happy." Many of his hearers may have felt the same way—Traverse City Eagle. Yes, but they are mostly democrats.

—Volney Kinsella, M. A., of Yale university will lecture at the Congregational church next Sunday evening on the "Success of Christianity in Japan." Mr. Kinsella will appear in Japanese costume and exhibit an illustrative of the resources and customs of his people. This is a rare opportunity to hear a Christian Japanese gentleman tell the story of the rising greatness of that wonderful nation of "the rising sun."

—A very pleasant musical event was the recital given last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. A. L. Conklin by Mr. Geo. Newell's juvenile class. The occasion demonstrated the fact that Charlevoix will soon have a number of accomplished violin—not fiddlers mind you. The pupils gave a very creditable concert and Mr. Newell has reason to be proud of his musical work here.

—One of the most notable political changes in northern Michigan is that of Archibald Cameron, of Trout Lake. He has been a lifelong democrat, but now announces his intention of voting the republican ticket this fall. His express reasons for this change is that the protective tariff policy of the republican party brings greater present business prosperity than would the tariff policy of the democratic party, and wants no big money-grinds about future results of prosperity resulting from such measures. Mr. Cameron is a man of private conservatism and votes for what he considers the best business interests of the general population. Mr. Cameron, a brother of Archie and a member of the Cameron Lumber Company in Charlevoix recently, announced his desertion of democracy and his intention to vote and work for McKinley.

—Traverse City Record: The peach crop in this section will be the largest in its history. Several orchards comprising 15th year, totaling about 15 thousand of early Crawfords, the fruit of that variety to be shipped locally. Value remains brought $2 a bushel on the street today, and local producers are finding considerable comfort in the fact that peaches at Chicago 25 cents a bushel in Grand Rapids on Wednesday. Note that and big crop they do not look for any great downward tendency in prices. "Peachers are overcoming the millionaire" said Dr. Kneeland this morning. "Of the champion varieties upon my farm I estimated about 75 bushels. Yesterday we picked 60 bushels and there are as many more left. Of the Alexanders I have seven trees and from them we have picked 100 one-fifth bushel baskets. The early Crawfords will be ripe next week, and shipments will be at their height. I sell peaches will sell at north, the northern markets being fully occupied by the St. Joe belt.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. S. CHEW, COMM'R.

The teachers who attended the recent examinations at Charlevoix saw a note attached to the list of questions on "Honesty and art of teaching" stating the fact that hereafter this subject would be omitted chiefly to the reading circle work.

Teachers who are preparing for examination should be cognizant of this fact and prepare themselves accordingly.

Horace Mann and the Common School Revival in the United States," by Dr Hinsdale of Michigan university is an excellent pedagogical work. From an important point of view the history of good education is a history of education itself. The purpose of this book is to set before the reader Horace Mann as an educator in his historical position and relations.

We do not wish to dictate to the teacher what to shall read, but he cannot fail to be benefitted by keeping in touch with our State Reading Circle work.

While professional reading by all teachers is of great importance, the reading and study of a systematic course is to be commended. Such work always adds interest to the meetings of teachers and becomes a means of mental improvement.

The law requires that all children between the ages of 8 and 14 years shall attend school at least four months in each year, beginning the first of this school year. This law is obligatory and must be enforced. All persons between said ages who are not in school at the beginning of next week will be interviewed by the truant officer.

President Garfield, of the state forestry commission, believes he has solved the forestry problem. There are hundreds of thousands of acres of timber lands in the northern part of the lower peninsula which are practically worthless for agricultural purposes, and from which the timber has been cut. President Garfield says that if the owners of some of these lands, instead of allowing them to revert to the state for unpaid taxes would deed them to the University of Michigan for the support of a school of forestry, they would furnish the nucleus of what might develop into a magnificent endowment. Since the university is a state institution, the lands would be exempt from taxation. He thinks that in 10 years by the natural growth of the trees, the lands could be made self-supporting.

He says: "My lungs were so low with malarial fever and pneumonia, I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, and continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood, aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints, gives perfect health. A Night of Terror.

"Last night Mrs. Lady was left for the widow of the attack from Burnham of Machine Mr. when the doctors said they would die from pneumonia but morning," writes Mrs. S. H. After taking she slept all night. Further she entirely cured her. This wonderfull medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at F. G. Heroes That Grow in the Arctic.

The flinty stubble leave other things than snowballs and icebergs to eat. Things grow very fast in the arctic zone. As soon as the snow melts off in many places the ground is covered with a vine which bears a small berry something like a black berry, pursuing it is endless, as it and has a pungent taste, and so indians leave off work and go pursuing hunting, crawling immensurs with the berries. It is a lucky year, if they find the summer is so short, or there would be an epidemic of colics.

School Discipline in Madrid.

A judicial decision which has just been rendered at the Court of Madrid gives the teacher the right to be regarded in Germany as an infallible factor of education. A school teacher says the Belgo, has the right to inflict corporal punishment, as well on the pupils of his own class as on those in other classes. In cases of stubbornness, he may call on any other teacher for assistance, and the latter may be justified in punishing the pupil.

I have not told you of the better one in the garden at Mr. Potter's. It was planted and carefully protected. It was a little rubber tree, and I thought it would never grow. EVERY PLEDGE FULFILLED.

Achievements of the Republican Administration Are Without Parallel.

AMERICAN INDUSTRIES ARE PROTECTED.

National Honor and Public Credit Alike Upheld by President McKinley—Commercial Treaties Forced by Our Foreign Affairs—Discussion Auspicious of Valuable Statistical Territory.

The change—mentioned in the concerning the general prosperity of the people under the administration of President McKinley—is so great as to be almost phenomenal. Let us consider some of the grand achievements which have brought so marvelous a change in the short period of three years and a half. On the 4th of March last, the country departed from Lincoln and the Stalwarts of a republican president, and for the first time in many years, found the Democrats with the field and been frustrated. Not a single one of the promises made with the accession of a republican administration, and which had caused such alarm among our neighbors across the sea, has been broken. On the contrary, the promises of the party in power have been fulfilled to the letter, and in many instances, more than the party in power, comes with the happy harmony of a unanimous Congress, brings honor and fame among in the Platte authority, bring the honors, and the 55th Congress, which is the progeny of Kate McKinley, which was the first Congress to meet in session.

The reputation of some nations power grouped in the union of protection to American enterprise, and it was upon that pledge was written on the banner of the Republican party, and after of the Dingley tariff law which put into operation the union of protection to American industry, and the financial bill guaranteeing and protecting the union and protection of American industry.

Upon the operation of the new tariff law the labor force abundant employed, the factories and mills of the country running, prices returned and we are in a position to compete with our competitors in the manufacture of goods, and we are now exporting to the great markets of the world, and we are now exporting to the great markets of the world, and we are now exporting to the great markets of the world

ALABAMA IS A WONDER.

Makes Fast Time on Her Trial Trip—In a Tempest, Too.

Lieut. Andrew Sumner Hemingway, on Alabama, made a wonderful showing of her first speed trial off Boston. In one hour she bested everything down on home river in the Atlantic service. In a four-hour record it fell up to their mark in the lower-Mobile River, and in a two-hour run it bettered the record of Sampson's cruiser Brooklyn. It is true the record of 22 knots is three knots in the lower-Mobile River, and the Brooklyn's record was made in the Atlantic under the most favorable conditions. Yet the Alabama's record is a wonderful one, and shows a speed in an ocean steamer known to no other vessel afloat. Her speed is 22 knots, and she is a wonder. Her trial trip was a tempest, and she came through it like a duck. Her speed was not the only wonder. Her steering was wonderful. Her speed was wonderful. Her steering was wonderful. Her speed was wonderful. Her steering was wonderful. Her speed was wonderful

"The Devil Turned Preacher."

We note the call of a democratic caucus in this village which believe occurred last Tuesday evening, in which all those are invited "who sympathize with the democratic party in maintaining the constitution, the flag and the declaration of independence, and who wish to see honest and economical administration in the state and county."

Following rapidly and impressively upon the gush of democratic patriotism causes the call of Chairman Crump for a democratic county convention and the call is not only for delegates to "all voters who prize the liberty for which our fathers gave their lives, and who hold that the old flag should wave only over free men and who wish for honest administration in county, state and nation, etc. etc."

These are grandiloquent words—words of those who draw their inspiration from the fountain head of Jeffersonian democracy. Democrats are very apt to appeal to the "constitution and the declaration of independence" just as the big end of their party did in justifying secession. They are best answered by the words of President McKinley in his letter of acceptance that "the republican party does not have to assert its devotion to the declaration of independence."

The democratic party about rebellion forty years ago and it is acting rebellion now. It prated about the constitution and the declaration of independence then just as it does now.

But that portion of these calls which will especially draw attention is the implication of dishonest and extravagant administration of county affairs. Very few charges can be received by these Bourbon champions of "honest government." If they will take the pains to look up the official history of the county during their term they will be found never in the history of the county has a republican official been charged with dishonesty or dishonesty when that charge could be sustained by the evidence.

On the other hand they will find that the only democrat sheriff the county ever had was a gambler and a blackleg. They will also find that a democrat nominee for prosecuting attorney, once upon a time not very long ago, left the county immediately after an indignant mob had furnished him with a generous coat of tar and feathers, in company with a notorious and woefully filthy plaintiff.

These two precious Charlevoix reformers who seem to be guiding the destinies of the Charlevoix county democrats make the people laugh when they talk about "honest administration of county affairs."

The nominees on the Charlevoix county republican ticket have, most of them, been tried and not found wanting. They are honest men and honored and capable officials, and no man dare say aught.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Elk Rapids has finally made a move to incorporate as a village.

Traverse City issues bonds to the amount of $25,000 to improve waterworks.

Central Lake Torch: The Bellaire Sentinel credits Clarence Rood as a delegate to the recent democratic convention held down there. Clarence does not rank in that crowd, but happened to be in the county seat on that day and offered to help the demo's out if they needed him. For there were so few delegates there that Clarence was afraid they would be unable to make up a ticket.

Traverse City Record: At a meeting held yesterday in O. F. Carver's office it was decided to have a good trade congress here the first week in October. The meeting and resulting purpose to have the congress was the outcome of a telegram received by ex-Mayor Hamilton late the day before, by which the services of the government men who were at Saginaw were offered for the time set. Mr. Hamilton hustled around and had the meeting called for yesterday with the result that from present plans and indications the congress will be brought here for ten days at the time specified.

Traverse City Record: At East Jordan the team of the Traverse City Iroquois Club again distinguished itself to day by winning the East Jordan trophy cup, a valuable silver pitcher offered by the local gun club. The weather was ideal for the contest and excellent scores were made in all the events. Traverse City's marksmen especially distinguished themselves by good shooting. This is the third cup won away from the Charlevoix and East Jordan teams by Traverse City, and while both the latter teams have good marksmen the Queen City team always goes there one better, and the time they raised the score above the previous margin which has heretofore characterized the cup contests.

East Jordan Enterprise: President W. L. French, of the County Agricultural Society, is having the fair grounds put in excellent condition for the coming county fair. The outside roof is being repaired, and a new exhaust fan is being put in the upper floor for ventilating the stock. The officers of the Association propose to spare no effort to again make our county fair the best in Northern Michigan. Now let the people do their part, and this will be accomplished. The committees having in charge the races at the coming county fair have arranged a program for three days racing; have bills up posted as there that they will surely have the finest strings of racers in the northern part of the state.

Petoskey Democrat: Mr. E. D. Whitney, of Lansing, and Mr. A. M. Coburn, of Petoskey, have purchased a beautiful 200 acre tract of land, lying on the Lake Michigan shore, four miles south west of Northport. Gilt Edge is included in the tract, which is in plain view of the Manitou and Fox islands. A neat, large house, cottages, stock, a pier at which large lake steamers touch, and other improvements are included. The beach, 1½ miles long, from 20 to 100 feet wide and is made up of white "sing log" sand. From the beach the land rises in a height of 20 to 50 feet above the lake, and is absolutely level, so the south side of the plat can be used as a golf links, or as a beautiful terrace. A remarkable feature about this tract is that springs of clear water come every three feet along the terrace, making it possible for every lot to have a spring of its own. Evergreens, maples and white birches appear in profusion, and three creeks cut their way through the tract and enter the lake. A small lake of about one acre, filled with brook trout and located in the center of the plat is enough to fill with trout and fisherman.

WISDOM FROM DIXIE.

A Southern Journal's Opinion of Proper Industrial Conditions.

Reflects the Trend of Sentiment in the Former Democratic Strongholds Toward Independent Thought.

"The south is going into the manufacturing business. She is no longer to be a house of wood or drawer of water. We must have pluck, progress, courage, faith in our grand country, and its destiny, and we must induce the peaky politicians to cease their hatchet ethics and jeremiads."—Memphis Commercial Appeal, Aug. 29.

With the above lines, written in the heart of the solid south, where everything political has gone democratic for the last half-century, a text can be made out to show that trade and money matters all heretofore divide the parties, so that in the next decade it may not be impossible, as at present, to elect a republican governor in such states as Tennessee and Georgia. The desperadoes prejudice that antedates the war of the rebellion, is not economic, but rather personal, among its people, and has been kept up by its leaders for political reasons, for pure unadulterated Americanism the south, undoubtedly holds its own, as foreign emigration plays a very small part in its population.

The white natives are largely of Scotch-Irish extraction and retain the old time sturdy characteristics, virtues and pugnacity of their ancestors, with their rugged faith in principles old as the hills, which accounts for their sticking to ideals which are considered out of date in the rest of the country. Of course, I am not including, for the most part, the cities of the south, which are fairly as progressive as the rest of the country, but this is instance, and only incidental to this article, to show the "rift in the lute" that is gradually opening up the eyes of the voters and their forefathers even in the interior, showing with the ease in point of their unique position. Slade and Dunlap will gradually leave the immense remnant of the monotonous and farming district, spreading the propaganda of progress and enlightenment, so that the people will vote according to their conscience, and not as their leaders dictate.

If one then expect from one of the leading newspapers of the south rightly reflecting the trend of sentiment which there is no reason to doubt, as there has been any number of "straws" showing the same which way the wind is blowing in the last four years, confidence will be restored, and capital will flow in from all parts of the country, and the south will take the place destined for it in both the commercial and social world, and state and national issues will be fought out with even chances to both parties and its own people will see the folly of standing in their own light. The south resents answers, hinters the day.

A SHOWING IN SHEEP.

Revival of a Great Industry Almost Ruined Under the Democratic Wilson Bill.

The statistical advisers of the United States, an official document, gives the following figures on the number and value of sheep on farms in the United States for every year from 1870 to January 1, 1900. The following extract from that table gives the figures for the year 1893, the last year of the Harrison administration and the year of the end of the McKinley bill. They comes the democratic years of free-trade under the Wilson bill, with free trade in wool, and the annual, entire ruin, of one of the greatest industries of the United States farmer. The figures are start. Here:

SHEEP ON FARMS IN UNITED STATES ON JANUARY 1.

Year	Number	Value
1870	25,168,000	$30,000,000
1880	35,000,000	35,000,000
1890	44,000,000	44,000,000
1893	47,000,000	47,000,000
1894	45,000,000	45,000,000
1895	42,000,000	42,000,000
1896	38,000,000	38,000,000
1897	36,000,000	36,000,000
1898	37,000,000	37,000,000
1899	42,000,000	42,000,000

An increase in the flock for the year ending January 1, 1900 over the last year of democratic rule and Wilson bill in the name of adequate to the farmers of this country is truly and "important" showing and the kind of "importation" the republican party believes in, and the farmers know it.

Killing Rats with Microbes.

A bacteriological method of exterminating rats proposed by M. J. Danysz, of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, is described in the British Medical Journal. M. Danysz has found a microbe which if introduced into a population of rats may be trusted to breed a pestilence among them that will wipe them out, or at least make them a negligible quantity. Flourish, mice suffering from a spontaneous epidemic of disease he isolated a coccobacillus presenting the general characters of B. coli, and then cultivating Loeffler's B. typhi murium. By an elaborate process of repeated cultures of this micro-organism passed through series of mice, and afterwards through rats, he succeeded in intensifying its virulence so as to make it when eaten certainly pathogenic for the latter rodents. Having satisfied himself of the fatal effect of the culture in the laboratory, he had then tried in a large number of farms, warehouses and other places infested by rats. From the reports of these experiments, summarizing several hundred, it appears that in 50 per cent of cases the method resulted in a complete disappearance of the rats, while in 30 per cent their number notably diminished; in 20 per cent the result failed.—Nature.

The large membership of these two great orders is the best evidence of their firm foundation and permanent stability, as popular institutions of human protection. Please let me know if the above is true, as he is anxious to know. Respectfully yours,

A Night of Terror.

"A awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave train dispatcher of Alamo, Mo., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia brought on by hemorrhage," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, wife of the brave train dispatcher, "but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her. This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

Marine Notes.

The U. S. revenue cutter Morrill was in port last Friday. She anchored in Pine lake and only remained a short time.

The schooner John Schuette discharged a cargo of coal at the city plant this week.

The bad weather of the past week has disturbed steamboat schedules greatly.

The Mauthes is on her last trip, but the good old Illinois and Charlevoix keeps right on "sawing wood," as it were.

With three loads running to Beaver Island from this shore, the islanders are particularly fortunate this fall—but can it last?

The schooner Naiad had a contretemps with a Chicago hodge on her last trip, and came home minus her foresprit, which was replaced here this week.

The tug Taylor went to Leiding's late Friday to bring here the schooner Magee, which was driven into that port minus all her canvas. The tug and tow arrived yesterday.

The schooner Maxwell, which left this port with the season's last lying for the big gale of the 11th, lost her foremast on the Fox. A bulletin was posted, giving a special warning of danger.

The little hooker Nellie, with her canvas badly tattered, went into Elk Rapids and anchored for repairs. A squall struck her, parted her anchor chains and she was driven on beach. She had on a load of fruit from Pentwater.

Following closely upon the drowning of Capt. Theobald Ruiman of Milwaukee's fine, comes the death, under similar circumstances, at East Jordan, of Capt. Theodore Lange of the schooner L. E. Hanover. He was crushed from his vessel Sunday morning, and after a lapse of two days it was decided that he had fallen into the lake. The mate took the vessel back to Milwaukee.

School Notes.

The soldiers gave our ice cream social the evening of the 15th, which was well patronized.

The chemistry class is progressing nicely with the aid of the new apparatus. They have been able to make about twenty experiments in the past week.

The physics class is the largest in the school, being composed of both the senior and junior grades.

The school now has the largest attendance on record.

CHARLES CARPENTER'S VISIT TO MIRIAM

TALMAGE'S SERMON

THE coronation of King Edward VII. is a matter of interest to the whole world. Coronations are not of every day occurrence. The last one was in 1838, when Queen Victoria was crowned. The ceremonies on that occasion were very imposing. The Queen was anointed with the oil of consecration, and then there was a long procession to the Abbey, the Queen being borne in a gilded chariot, drawn by eight cream colored horses, and the procession was a mile and a quarter long. The Queen herself was dressed in a robe of state of purple velvet, lined with ermine, and she had on her head a crown of diamonds, and in her hand she held a golden scepter and a golden orb. The Queen's train was borne by eight young women of the highest nobility, who had been selected for the occasion, and they had to walk with the train on their arms for a mile and a half. The Queen herself was in a state of great fatigue when the ceremonies were over, and she had to be helped from the Abbey to her carriage by her husband, the Prince Albert, who was himself in a state of great fatigue because of the long ceremonies. The Queen's coronation robe was made of purple velvet, lined with ermine, and it cost $10,000. The train alone cost $1,500, and it was so heavy that it was with difficulty she could walk with it. The Queen's crown was made of gold, and it was set with 1,500 diamonds, 1,000 pearls, 5 rubies, 4 emeralds, and 11 sapphires. The Queen's scepter was set with 1,400 diamonds, 1,000 pearls, 4 rubies, 4 emeralds, and 2 sapphires. The Queen's orb was set with 365 diamonds, 1,000 pearls, 1 ruby, 1 emerald, and 1 sapphire. The Queen's ring was set with 1 ruby, 1 emerald, and 1 sapphire. The Queen's bracelets were set with 1,000 diamonds, 1,000 pearls, 2 rubies, 2 emeralds, and 2 sapphires. The Queen's spurs were set with 1,000 diamonds, 1,000 pearls, 2 rubies, 2 emeralds, and 2 sapphires. The Queen's armlets were set with 1,000 diamonds, 1,000 pearls, 2 rubies, 2 emeralds, and 2 sapphires. The Queen's robe was made of purple velvet, lined with ermine, and it cost $10,000. BUSINESS FACTS.

Commercial Prosperity Results from a Protective Tariff.

Official Figures Show United States Now Second in the World's Foreign Trade.

Calamity Cries of Bryan and His Followers Are Set at Naught.

Markets of the World Being Captured—Gold Standard Old Protection Triumphant.

Mr. Bryan is an advocate of free trade and free silver, but he and his followers have always maintained that a protective tariff would "open up all of the markets of the world," while the gold standard by maintaining sound credit is our absolute equivalent from them and our competitors.

What are the facts? We give below a table made from the official figures issued by the Treasury Department at the national capital showing the exports of domestic products, foreign products and gold and standard silver to the world for the year 1896. The figures for 1896 are taken from the income in our prosperity, it is contended by protectists, will put us at the head of the list or only excelled by Great Britain. Great Britain, we admit, is a business, commercial Great Britain in the volume of export trade.

Country	Total exports.
United Kingdom	$1,293,000,000
United States	1,205,000,000
Germany	1,000,000,000
France	1,000,000,000
Netherlands	1,000,000,000
Belgium	1,000,000,000

In 1896 our commerce exceeded that of Germany by $97,347,000, making us that year the second nation in the world in foreign commerce, which doubtless will toward "exploring the markets of the world" is shown by the following table taken also from the official reports of the United States Treasury department:

MOVE PLAN WE HOLD.

Year Ending	Domestic Exports.	Foreign Exports.
1892	$827,402,462	$ 47,814,651
1893	847,665,194	41,789,094
1894	892,476,862	39,592,516
1895	793,592,097	41,672,030
1896	863,448,458	34,823,026

This looks as though we were "exploring the markets of the world" under a protective tariff and not under a standard tariff than any other nation in the world ever explored them and when the figures for the coming fiscal year are in we will be the greatest commercial nation of the world. The truth of this is shown by the fact that for the year ending June 30, 1896 the total commerce of the year amounts to the sum of $1,857,000,000 greater than at any preceding year and, we are still exporting, the world to take our, they that will an unlimited free trade and free silver policy at one step paralyze the magnificent progress we are now making and we will answer well over half the voters in November.

IN SPLENDID SHAPE.

Evidence That Labor Is Prosperous, Given by American Farmers' Labor Leader.

The home consumption in 1891 and 1896 was about equal, and yet the farmers' Congress, the land of the farmers' Protection of Labor Mr. Chappell, exact words, are quoted in parallel columns. He said:

1891	1896
Quote Chappell. "The farmers of America are in splendid shape, and are prosperous, as a rule, and are independent and free from the mortgage business, generally speaking, and the farmers are in splendid shape."	Quote Chappell. "The farmers of America are in splendid shape, and are prosperous, as a rule, and are independent and free from the mortgage business, generally speaking, and the farmers are in splendid shape."

Thus we see that the farmers are in the same condition in 1896 and 1891 when the protective tariff was in force, and

CROKER'S PLAIN TALK

Former Views of the Tammany Leader on Expansion.

When No Election Was Pending He Talked in Terms of Meeting What We Have Stated 10 or 1 Were Said.

When politicians are talking such article publicists as Richard Croker, the Tammany leader, will sometimes give expressions to their real views on public questions. Mr Croker, under date of January 4, 1899, contributed a signed communication to the New York Herald, which, by the way, is saying nothing against expansion in this campaign.

Mr. Croker's claim, in part follows:

"I believe in expansion. I believe in taking whatever territory we have gained by annexation, purchase or war.

"This country has come to stay, and if it is the only safe one to pursue. Any other course would place us in the position of a ship without a rudder in the face of complications. This must be avoided, and at any rate we must be supreme.

"Every patriotic American and every democrat in particular should view expansion.

"Expansion was an experiment, otherwise he would not have favored the acquisition of Louisiana, with its foreign population, which in Jefferson's time was worse in remote to the Philippines. In this case we have no alternative, but to go on as we have, against expansion.

"I am for it, and I am for it in that form in which it is now before us, namely, the Philippines, with its foreign population, which is Jefferson's time was quite as

CHAPTER IX.

Questions were never more anxious than Mrs. Hope entered on her responsibility. She was not unacquainted with the world, but she had never had to think for herself before. Her husband, in his generosity, had left her all his property, and she was now the sole mistress of a large income. Consequently she felt that her personal comfort ought to be the most important consideration. Her husband had left her a large number of valuable pictures, which she had purchased at different times, and she was fully aware that the mantelpiece in her drawing-room was not the proper place for a Rembrandt, or the walls of her dining-room for a Rubens. Her plate was all of the latest pattern, and her cellar was well stocked with the choicest wines. Her carriages were of the latest fashion, and her horses were the finest in the city. Her wardrobe was the most fashionable that could be procured, and her jewelry was of the rarest and most costly kind. Some more or less distinguished people, who had been invited to her husband's funeral, had promised to call upon her, and she was anxious to be in a position to return their visits. She was a lady who had always been very fond of her friends, and she was anxious to see them as much as possible. She was not a little proud of her husband's position, and she was anxious to show her friends that she was the wife of a man who was a leader in society. She was not a little proud of her own

FARMERS DOING WELL

Secretary Wilson Shows How the Good Times Came.

Under the McKinley Administration the Agricultural Wealth of the Nation Increased Enormously

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, 27 President McKinley's cabinet, addressed the crowd at the Pan-American late on Thursday September 5, and outlined at length the prosperity which accompanies farming. He stated emphatically that the farmers are doing well, and that the schools and colleges and school boards, which are supported by farmers, are well and prosperous. He said farmers were not complaining of the burdens or a share of the taxation, but were proud of the fact that they were able to bear their share of the burdens of government. He said the farmers were not complaining of the tariff, but were glad that they furnished a little more than their share of the revenue of the government, because they were able to do it. He said:

The farmer and laborer in fact all the producers of the country have had their full share in the good times which have come to this country during the last three years. They have had their share in the increased demand for their products, and have had a fair share in the increased prices which have come to them as a result of the operation of the law of supply and demand. The farmer has had his share in the general prosperity which has come to the country during the last three years, and he has had his share in the increased prosperity which has come to the country during the last three years because he has been able to sell his products at much better prices than he was able to sell them for in the years immediately preceding the year 1896.

The farmer has had his share in the general prosperity which has come to the country during the last three years because the farmer has been able to buy more than he was able to buy in the years immediately preceding the year 1896. The farmer has had his share in the general prosperity which has come to the country during the last three years because the farmer has been able to pay his debts more easily than he was able to pay them in the years immediately preceding the year 1896. The farmer has had his share in the general prosperity which has come to the country during the last three years because the farmer has been able to put more money in the savings bank than he was able to put in the years immediately preceding the year 1896.

The farmer has had his share in the general prosperity which has come to the country during the last three years because the farmer has been able to put more money in his stocking than he was able to put in the years immediately preceding the year 1896.

DON'T EAT THE STEAK

A WARNING WHICH PROBABLY SAVED MANY LIVES

Meat Poisoned by Blood Blast for Marauding Dogs is Stolen by a Lunatic Engaged Their Contents Shoot an Alarm Section Foreman.

"Don't eat the steak," was the warning which echoed the streets of Roberts, Iowa, early the morning of last week. The sounds of warning were given by a section foreman who had taken charge of the section gang the day before, and who had the true ear and other opportunities which had taken Germans from Russia and other parts of Europe to hunt their meat, if meat it could be called, and to search for the choicest of the carcasses of animals that died of disease, or were killed by other causes than butchering. He had brought with him a dog, which he had taken from the section house, and which followed at his heels.

Early in the morning the section foreman, who had gone out to his work, heard the dog howling in a manner which he had never before heard a dog howl. He went to the door of the section house and called to the dog, but the animal did not come. He went out to call the animal in, but it did not come. He went out and called the animal again, but it did not come. He went out and called the animal again, but it did not come. He went out and called the animal again

THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY TICKET.

Since the creation of the world, there probably has never been a nominating convention held that left so rankling or sorrowing a disappointment as is one of the weaknesses that flesh is heir to, and until the millennium brings a human character a little more manlinkness, those things will always be.

But the fundamental and chief principle of government is that a majority shall rule. The caucus is the unit of government, and from this beginning up to the highest political or legislative bodies, this democratic principle obtains. Sometimes the caucus is prostituted to the base designs of unscrupulous and scheming men, and the mind thus sown in virgin soil yields noxious growth, which multiplies itself to the damage of the medium which it has crept.

Charlevoix county Republicans are not easily coddled into quiet submission to the schemes of the gold-bugs, or driven as dumb sheep to the shambles. There is not a township in the county that is the property of any one or set of men, and political crookedness cannot succeed in the primary of the least populous precinct.

We apply these observations to the conference of the present situation in Charlevoix county, and implement it with the statement that there is no reason why the Charlevoix county Republican should not receive the full vote of every republican in Charlevoix county.

The republican county nominating convention was composed of full delegations from every township in the county. There was not a caucus held that was not harmonious, and not one that has been charged with illegal procedure. There were no credentiating delegations in Charlevoix, in a township of unusual large attendance, herded, cold-decided, down to the convention. The convention itself was regular and harmonious.

The county ticket that is now before the people was the choice of the republicans of Charlevoix county as expressed through their legally qualified representatives in that convention.

A better ticket was never nominated in this county by any party. It is made up of men of ability.

Again we say, there is no reason why it should not receive the vote of every republican in Charlevoix county.

E. H. Mendell, a lawyer of Hennepin, Texas, once located a grave digger. He says "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, and continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy is a sure antidote for malaria, dispels colds and prevents the blood, aids digestion, regulates liver kidneys and bowels, strengthens the entire constitution, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints, give perfect health. Only 50c at F. G. Hines & Co's.

The annual reunion of the Soldiers and Sailors of Antrim county held at Central Lake last week was not as well attended as usual. Daniel Bleker, 19 was drowned at Central Lake. The next reunion will be held at Bellaire some time in August 1901.

Marine Notes.

The steamer City of Charlevoix went into dry dock last week and skipped a trip.

The tug Newell Avery, lying at Washburn's yard, spring a leak last Friday night and sank. She is almost entirely submerged.

Capt. John Stewart of the steamer City of Milwaukee, while laying off Chicago, disabled, last week, turned off on the waters to keep down the seas.

The schooner Maize, of this port, is now on her way from Toledo, O., to St. Ignace with coal, and will take back a cargo of lumber from that place.

The steam yacht Navarch, of Boston, was in port two or three days this week waiting for weather to get to Chicago. She has been bought by a Chicago man who is bringing her up from the ocean.

The steamer Coal Agitator has evidently abandoned the Beaver Island route, as she has not touched at St. James for the past five days. We understand she will run between Charlevoix and Sturgeon Bay, via Harbor Springs.

The steamhauge Pine Lake came in last Thursday with a wrecked pilot house and texas, caused by coming in contact with a Chicago bridge. As men could not be secured here to make the necessary repairs, she was patched up temporarily, and will have the work done in Chicago this trip.

Last Jordan Enterprise: Strong northwest winds of the 17th drove a large boom of logs belonging to Bush & Co. over against the bridge and dock on this side. The steamer Pilgrim was tied up at Jepson's dock and the logs, working against her sides, opened her seams, and caused her to sink at her moorings. The full extent of damage to the steamer is not known.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The state tax commission finished its work at Alpena county, the commission will go from there to Chippewa county, where it is believed there will be a big advance, and thence to Mackinac Island, where the boxes of wealthy resorters, which have been assessed at one-tenth their value, will come in for attention.

The citizens of Torch Lake township are again after more territory, and have a petition published in the Kalkaska Sentinel asking the board of supervisors to detach certain territory from the northern part of Milton and attach it to Torch Lake township. Another petition asks for a portion of the western part of Central Lake township, being the west fractional half of sections six and seven.

Several farmers near Traverse City, are having all kinds of trouble because they preferred transacting business with a stranger, rather than with their local merchants. There was the usual result—a signed note turns up somewhere and the victims must either pay or take the losing end of a long drawn out litigation. Why people will insist on trusting strangers, when local merchants can supply their needs at lower prices still remains a mystery.

The last porcupine in Wexford county was recently killed and the Indians drew forth a large crowd to witness the ceremonies. Although the game industry of lower Michigan has been practically for five some years, there are clumps of pines still standing and occasional tracts of considerable extent, as in Kalkaska county. The descendants of stood in Cadaver & Diggins camp, northwest of Cadillac, and was left standing for several days in order that photographs of it might be taken. It was on the original holding of D. A. Blodgett of Grand Rapids.

A travel Rapids special says: The Plankers Hotel company has decided to accept the option in half the property of the Grand which was given it by the Mackinac Island Hotel company last spring. The transaction will be completed shortly so that half of the stock of the Mackinac Island Hotel company will become the property of the Plankers company. A new company will continue to operate it with new officers, probably with Mr. Weaver at the head. The remaining half of the stock will still be controlled by the Grand Rapids & Indiana and the Michigan Central railroads and the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation company. An even $100,000 will be put into the Grand hotel property up to the end of next season by the Plankers people with the idea of making the place up to the highest standard of your around here.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful misery was felt for the welfare of the brave Gen. Bomham of Meshkin, Mc., when the doctors said he would die here, pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. GRAND RAPIDS, Sept. 19, 1900.

EDITOR SENTINEL:—

On leaving "The Beautiful," so many of the good neighbors requested me to write I thought that if you would allow me space in your valuable paper I would pen a few lines as a sort of general epistle to them all.

It is quite a task for me to write on account of the disabled condition of my right hand.

At the depot quite a crowd was in waiting for the train, which, on arrival, was jammed from the platform of the rear car to the baggage car. Several of the Charlevoix crowd found seats in the "smoker"—not that they were smokers or enjoyed the fumes of tobacco, but because it was a sort of Hobson's choice. I was one of the lucky ones, and found a seat among the ladies. At every station the crowd increased.

At Ellsworth, big drops of water, the forerunners of an approaching storm, began to fall, and when the train reached Central Lake it was raining quite briskly. At Bellaire, Prof. Nichols, Judge Mayne and others left the train.

Along the route we noticed that the potatoes, beans and ditches were all well filled, the effect of recent rains. Crops look well. Corn, as a general thing promises a good yield, and judging from the whitened husks, is out of the way of frosts. Potatoes look green and late some fields being yet in blossom, promising a front rate crop and good prices for the tubers on the market. Many fields of oats were gathered into stacks, which looked black and weather beaten.

The orchards along the route had either been stripped by the recent heavy blows or the crop is very light.

When we reached Traverse City she was fairly crowed full, and the day was clear. Both the crowd moved out and Indian were sandwiched into the smoker until the ratio of the six were about 10 to 1. It was a good natured democratic crowd. Democratic in the sense that all were here on an equality. From the appearance of the button worn on the lapels of the gentlemen's coats and on some of the ladies' dainty made taffy jackets, it was politically a different kind of a crowd. I heard no politics discussed for the reason, it seemed, that the crowd was a one-sided one. Perhaps it was McKinley day on the road. I was told that such days had at for been the rule.

I see by the Independent and democratic papers here that they think they have a good thing on William Alden Smith. They think he is taking himself into the good graces of too many of the different classes of people. At the banquet of the negro Odd Fellows recently the toastmaster fined him five dollars for talking politics. He was drawn to the occasion, he handed out the greenback and had to consider it worth the money.

While in "The Beautiful" I heard the board made out the Republican of west Michigan were all going democratic this fall. On mentioning the fact to a good old Holland original, who called in to see me, he, with a very benignant smile, replied "Here it not, I, being a Hollander myself, calls to know something about the Holland people, and I know them to be a people of good common sense and they will never vote to lump the constitution of closed factories and size men of five years apprentice. Besides, as further proof, here in this city Dutch Schram, editor of the Holland democratic paper, has come out against the McKinley, and I receive his paper regularly as a republican paper."

Now, Mr. Editor, I hope my friends the great majority of whom are McKinleyites will forgive me for wrecking to mix a little politics with my news. Before closing I need mention another peculiar mixture that has within the last few days been brought home to the people. It is nothing more nor less than politics and peach. It appears that rich eastern firms have invaded the market and forced the price of peaches away up as compared with other years, to the great benefit of the growers, but to the great damage of the consumers. Now, in this state, any consideration for the purpose of reducing and controlling the price of commodities is a misdemeanor. I think it will be difficult to prove the existence of a combination in this case, but it would seem that here is a good chance for our democratic statesmen, to show are wonderfully alive to the interests of the laboring classes, to denounce the eastern plutocrats for raising the price of the poor man's peaches and cream. Combination or no, I am in favor of peaches and cream—the best the market affords. ROBERT MILLER.

The primary apportionment for November will be $1.05 per capita, a total of $1,170,000 to be distributed throughout the state. The increased amount comes from the decrease of specific taxes paid by railroads, telegraph companies, etc., and the payment of taxes of July, by the corporations instead of January as heretofore.

The first teachers' tally for the school year will be held at East Jordan on Saturday, Oct. 13th, commencing at 10 a. m. The following topics will be discussed: "Games of a good school," J. M. He glowingly assures the Democrats and the fusionists that the democratic state, legislative, congressional and national tickets are certain of success. Who are the "allies?" Why the prohibitionists, of course.

—It is a very satisfactory condition of affairs when the state tax is decreased and the appurtenances of public school money increased, and that is the case this year. The state tax levied on Charlevoix county this year is $7,286.12—21 per cent less than that of 1899. Death of D. S. Woodward.

George S. Woodward died at his home in this village at eight o'clock last Monday evening, after a protracted illness of dropsy of the stomach.

Deceased was born in Wyoming, Ontario, sixty-three years ago last June. While yet a child he removed with his parents to Wisconsin. In Wisconsin of that state, in 1868, he was married to Margaret L. Smith, who survives him. The same year of their marriage Mr and Mrs Woodward removed to Grand Haven where for many years Mr Woodward was head sawyer and superintendent of the Easterly mill, now the Duckworth Lumber Co.

About twenty years ago deceased formed a copartnership with John M Gibson in the machine and foundry business, a few years ago succeeding to the sole ownership of the business. Besides a wife, deceased leaves a daughter, Mrs Fred Gibson, of Wolverine, Antrim and Otsego counties.

Mr Woodward was an honest, industrious man and good citizen. In consequence Charlevoix loses one more of its pioneers—and a citizen of the highest integrity.

Mr. Woodward was a participator of Charlevoix lodge, No. 292, F. & A. M., under the auspices of which he is to be buried with Masonic honors, and deceased received paternal attentions at the M. E. church.

Why the prohibitionists, of course.

Again we assume speak too far farther than our own native land when we find states whose electoral vote to sure for Bryan, and we find there six franchising thousands of native citizens who they declare are not their equals. Has Bryan, has our own democratic Mayland, or our once just Judge Hamlett or any of the lesser lights uttered one word in condemnation of this wholesale disfranchisement, forcing their fellow citizens to yield to be governed without their consent? They have not. They dare not rebuke their brethren for fear of starting a sentiment that might loose the electoral vote of some of these states. The burden of their song seems to be:

Great statesmen we, for be it understood,
We favor anything that's for our own good.

Will some of some children for the "consent of the governed" please condescend to tell the plain people to whom interest they claim to be paid—Holden interested at what position—or present at the time of the government of Abraham Lincoln, when the democrats of to-day hypocritically pretend to be present.

All things indicate that in 1900 as in 1860, a majority of the people will not gravely release them.

EVERYBODY PROSPEROUS.

All Classes of Men Find the Silver of Republican Manufacture.

"The increase in the amount of money in circulation due to the coinage of our silver bullion is shown by the figures of the Treasury Department. It has been less in actual numbers than we expected to be, but it is the character of the increase that we anticipated. It comes largely in the form of silver dollars, and it is the people who need and will use the greatest amount of circulating medium who are benefited most by the coinage of silver. The demand for silver certificates has been so great that we could not fulfill its promises to you if good has been given them. The Treasury Department is doing its best.

"Trade has never been so active in the history of our country. Manufacturers are busy on goods of every description. The trade has increased 40 per cent in the last seven months. Better grades of goods are called for, indicating greater ease in money matters and consequently much more abundant prosperity throughout the country.

"Business with us has averaged remarkably in the last two years, and allow me to remind you that it is made up of aggregates of individual checks." Mr. Harry Bennett, the well-known merchant tailor of Jackson, in times of commission, is staying at the Grand Pacific, with Mr. Hewitt, enjoying the waters of Shawnee's daily, enjoying the sunshine, and Mr. King added: "Wheat never supplies more and a little more, otherwise less expensive. Higher wages are paid the help, and a feeling of confidence seems general.

"Passenger traffic on the railroads in the west has been heavy during the last two years, and particularly so for a few months past, due the suspension of the P. & Duluth, of the Burlington, Route." "Passenger travel has not shown marked increases from month to month for corresponding periods in previous years. This year there seems to be a disposition to travel more than usual, and other indications draw not large crowds, while regular business is in no disorder is very satisfactory." "It is conservative and to the point." "Wheat farmers realize the high prices and the particularly good crops of fine cattle and hogs which have prevailed."

ROAST FOR BRYAN.

A New York Democratic Paper Takes a Shy at the Home-Free Candidate.

When the reality of the things that are to glower in contrast with the shallow trappings of republican promises, as taken from Secretary McKinnon, will, which this problem is ripe, it will be the government influences of the Indianapolis Sentinel. It exhibited to view. Why, this notorious and accomplished orator, who has shouted himself to the Jeffersons, to the Lincolns, to the Clays, to the Webster and to the Franklins from whose lips Burrows wrested eloquence than Mansfield and Allison calculations of the stage, ranked to the imaginary rules, the stereotyped frigid and the unpolished gesture, since and is accustomed speech.

When setting in motion, Mr. Bryan will be an orator. When not actuated by the spirit of the occasion, he is a great orator; in spite of himself, he is an orator. When excited and not cool and fearless, he is an orator of the first rank; when calm and cool, he is an orator of the second rank; when thoughtful and this thunder the sun in the sky, and the elemental forces of the atoms, then will propelling, he is an orator, and then will be the government of the atoms through the hands of presidents that should be intelligently restrained and other powers that should meet in nations for the good of mankind. Very truly, Yours,

WILL WE HAVE HARD TIMES?

Answer All Depends on How the Voters Cast Their Ballots in November.

Whether we shall have hard times this fall and for four years to come depends on the voters. We are entitled to publicity, business men or citizens of any class, to know if we are back down for the fall of 1896. Will there come times of prosperity or will we have a repetition of the past? Whether we prefer to be in good or poor, Moreover we prefer to know what we are to have, and we do anything, no matter how little, to bring about the one or the other. Business men are supposed to be the most enterprising and energetic of all classes of people, and yet they are the most timid and cowardly when it comes to the question of publicity. The power of an idea cannot not because it is not in the form of a dollar, or in the form of a bond, and where there is an idea, there is a power, and in spite of the efforts of interested, selfish, or blind people, it will be felt and exert its influence.

To understand how a amount of hard times or prosperity is in store in the future, a person or persons, perhaps, large, or perhaps small, have to be in a period of extraordinary or of exaggerated business or amount to, or, upon them and feel the consequences, as a matter of self protection, more than any other consideration whatever know. Perhaps they know that they are in a period of hard times, they cannot get their pay. That feel, or, and or, or, or,

Estimates of the Harvest Indicate that This Season Will Classify Great Last Year's Unparalleled Record—Yield Is to Be the Leader.

Over Seventeen hundred million pounds, 850,000,000 bushels of oats and fully 2,000,000,000 bushels of corn will be the result of the actual harvesting of these cereal products in the United States. In this report last year it was predicted that the yield would be the most phenomenal ever known. The Agricultural Department now reports figures from its agents more all over the country and will be able to give the exact figures next December. The Agricultural Department now reports a Washington correspondent, Corn and oats 11 of October made an advance in various parts of the country.

The oats crop is larger than the corn of most importance in this case. The high prices of last year induced farmers to sow every foot they could spare with oats, and the yield is the most phenomenal ever known. Hon. Phillip I. Odgersen, of Hastings, will speak at the opera house in this village on Monday evening, Oct. 29th.

Mr. Odgersen is one of the best campaign speakers in the state.

It is expected that Hon. W. A. Newton, of St. Johns, will deliver three or more speeches in this county, one of which will be in Charlevoix.

Hardwood Lumber.

The advance of the hardwood interest during the past twenty-five years has been as phenomenal as that of the pine industry which preceded it. There was a time when men with capital thought only of securing pine lands. Now that pine is practically gone they have turned their attention to hardwood, and the steady progress which it has made attests its value.

It was in the years 1882 when, as manager for a lumbering concern, I first acquainted myself with the manufacture of Michigan hardwoods. At that time maple, gray elm and basswood were the three leading kinds on the market, basswood being frequently used as, in maple and elm, only sign grades were salable, the balance of the stock being left to dispose of as best one could, the profits being small. At nobody cared maple except school desk people and some for bowls and handles, the customers were few, and the quality they demanded is shown to the stipulation in the contract for white rock maple timber. There was only one flooring plant then, that was making maple flooring T. Wills & Co., of Chicago, and they were then experimenting plus with their maple. Such were some of the difficulties to gather with rigid inspections, which beset the hardwood industry here as its beginning.

In 1881 I began manufacturing at Hague (Ch.) on my own account and in 1885, with great care in the selection of logs and the manner of sawing them, managed to dispose of one 100 feet by coming out a little better but not, however, discouraged with the prospect. A little later orders which I considered very good at that time came in from chair factories, in the order received from a chair company for gray elm, and good stock, netted me only $9 c. b. tal or veneer timber only, which bought last year for $18. But the last two years has made a great change in the lumber business. Gray elm has rocketed into prominence, now being used exclusively for interior mahogany, piano backs and upholstery furniture. These and various other uses have so enlarged the demand for this product that the price has increased from $9 to $20, the present value.

Maple has also increased in favor, although not in proportion to gray elm. The variety of the grain of number that can be cut from one log makes it adaptable for both cheap and expensive articles, so it is used now by nearly all furniture and chair factories, many men and manufacturers of school furniture, who in bowling always and for footing. Anything requiring a hard finish can be made of maple.

Look at hemlock. When I started in here, we could scarcely get the expense of logging and manufacturing out of it. The only profit we realized was from the bark, and that was selling at about so much per ton or fifteen years ago at is to-day. True, we are getting a little more money for it, per cord at this time, but the average wages are enough higher to more than offset that, and you could get a much better day's work from the hands at that time than you can now. Not more than ten years ago we sold hemlock street plank f. o. b. rail or vessel here for $4.75 and up to $5.25, while to-day we are getting $7 per 1,000 feet for short merchantable hemlock and $10 for 16x30s. Of course, with the increase of stumpage and advance in labor in the last two years it would be impossible for us to market hemlock at the price we did ten or twelve years ago, but owing to the advance in the product, even if wages and timber stumpage have advanced, it makes hemlock lumber fairly profitable to manufacture and handle at the present.

While cedar shingles are also growing in favor. During the last four or five years we have been making several million of them, together with cedar ties and telegraph poles, which are quite profitable. Ten years ago we put no value on cedar stumpage in estimating timber lands for purchase, while at present it compares in value with other timber.

The hardwood holdings in this country are going to be very profitable and are going to circulate as much money as pine ever did, for the pine was all controlled by a few, and there was not the general circulation of money from pine timber that there will be from hardwood. True, hardwood is drifting a good deal that way, but not as much so as pine, because where hardwood timber grows there is good land, very suitable for farming. Any amount of land has been purchased by farmers intending to make a home where they have only cut the timber off what land they wanted to clear, thus leaving standing timber which is coming on the market every year and furnishing the farmer something for improvement on his farm after paying the expense of clearing.

It will give a little idea as to the increased use of hardwood products in this locality when I tell you it was much harder work to dispose of 500,000 feet in 1885 than it is to dispose of 3,000,000 feet at the present, and consider with this the increased numbers of hardwood manufacturers today as compared with the number ten or fifteen years ago. Of course, in the last two years hardwood holdings have doubled in value, but wages have increased as much in proportion that we cannot put the lumber on the market so cheaply as we could previous to this time, however, this makes a general adjustment in financial matters and circulates more money than it would if the increased value of timber went into the profits.—Wm. H. White in Michigan Tradesman.

The data bulletin contains a suggestion to teachers that is worth trying in the school room.

Act 145, laws of 1895, requires that there shall be taught in every grade in every public school in Michigan the principal modes by which each of the dangerous communicable diseases is spread and the best methods of the prevention and prevention of such such diseases."

Observation moves that there are various ways of doing what the law requires. At least one teacher has pursued the plan of reading to her pupils from the leaflet supplied by the board of health, explaining what might not be readily understood, then she would require her pupils to place in writing what they had learned.

The secretary of the State board of health has received a sample of what a seventh grade pupil did in such composition exercise.

If every teacher in Michigan would pursue a similar course of instruction it would not be long before every child attending the public schools could tell which diseases are contagious, most dangerous to the public, in what ways each of the dangerous diseases are spread, and how each such disease can be avoided.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Traverse City is soon to have a cigar box factory, a partnership has been entered into by Geo. E. Pray, recently of Williamsburg, and F. P. Stiles, of Port Huron, N. Y., for that purpose.

Central Lake Frank Everett Whitney, book-keeper for the Cameron Lumber Co., at Torch Lake, was the victim of a vicious assault at the hands of Charles Randall, hotel keeper at the same place one day last week. We understand that steps are being taken to teach the assailter a lesson.

The survey of the proposed Levinson railroad is finished up to two and one-half miles of Suttons Bay and it is announced that it will be completed to that village soon. The projectors are spending money every day, from which fact it would look as if they meant business.

Boyne Falls Herald: One day recently while a party were out in a boat fishing at the foot of Deer lake a big black coon swimming calmly across. Their boat got quite close to him, but when he struck the bar they gave him a wide berth. They said they didn't know what he might do with his horns and none of them had a gun.

Petoskey special: A floating body discovered yesterday near the Wixon dock by Henry Bollins, harbor master, has been identified as Christopher Snyder, of Hortons Bay, who disappeared last Friday after collecting a considerable sum of money from farmers for whom he had been engaged in threshing. Justice Fassner empanelled a jury, but so far no evidence of foul play has been secured. He was last seen by Petoskey citizens on the Pere Marquette train coming from Charlevoix to Petoskey, and he was then displaying a roll of bills. Only a few quarters were found on his body, and it seems certain either that he was murdered for his money or that he was accidentally drowned and was robbed by ghouls before he was discovered. Deceased was 50 years of age and had a large family.

Traverse City Record: The officials of the Northern Michigan Transportation Co. are figuring upon the construction of a new steamer, a sister ship of the Illinois. While nothing definite has yet been determined upon the greatly increased business of the line demands immediate provision for greater carrying capacity, both for freight and passengers. The business of the company this season has been the largest in its history, and notwithstanding the increased facilities by the addition of the Illinois, the company is still hamstrapped. If a new steamer is decided upon, which is quite probable, the Illinois will be put on the run now made by the Charlevoix and make the lay points. The latter has not been near adequate enough this season for the business from Grand Traverse bay with other points.

What's Your Face Worth?

Victoria Urban Dispo.

Of all kinds of animals there have never been any so favored by Queen Victoria as the dog. Wherever she stays she is surrounded by her pets and her favorites are always moved from place to place with her. She has unequivocable aversion to cats. She does not care especially for horses or birds, but devotes herself to her canine friends. At Windsor the kennels contain upward of 100 dogs.

Nuggs Foot-Rules.

Referring to the recent disaster in New York harbor, Lord Archibald Campbell writes to the editor of a Glasgow paper, asking why the law does not compel ship-owners to have life-preservers or their equivalent in sufficient number to allow a person to escape in cases of fire or when the doors are blocked up.

Noted Professor of Farming.

J. Wesley Hoffman, assistant professor of agricultural biology in the State College of Pennsylvania, recently went to Paris, where he had been invited to address the International Society for the Advancement of Science. Professor Hoffman has made a specialty of the study of horticulture and the art of scientific farming.

Discovering Gems in Africa.

Complaints continue to come from Africa of the systematic and profitable destruction of great gems. A correspondent writing to London from Beira, in Portuguese East Africa, to say that unless some prompt action is taken the district through which the Umtali railroad passes will soon be denuded of the animal life which abounded upon it a little while ago.

The Chinese Army.

The regular army of China is said to consist of 225,000 men. Besides this, the emperor's army, there is a national army of 600,000 men, who are paid about 50 a month. The cavalry receive about the 1 a month, feed their own horses, and if they are lost or killed are required to replace them out of their pay.

Mushrooms in France.

The annual crop of mushrooms in France is valued at $5,000,000, and it is said that there are already whole farms in Paris dealing exclusively in them. In the department of the Seine there are some 2,000 farms in which mushrooms are grown. About 300 persons are employed in their culture, and they rarely leave the cellars.

Largest Orchard in North Dakota.

The largest orchard in North Dakota is owned by Mrs. Lydia A. Alderman. It is near Hurdsfield, Cavalier county, and has 150 acres, in which are 4,000 trees, two acres being given over to plums. Besides these there are 1,000 currant bushes, 2,000 gooseberry bushes, 500 grape vines and three acres of strawberries.

Vanderbilt System of Roads.

The Vanderbilt system of railways is now the largest in the world, controlling 10,640 miles, against 10,392 of the Pennsylvania and 10,313 of the Canadian Pacific.

Cape Colony's Claims.

The prime minister of Cape Colony has notified that he will introduce a bill in parliament to authorize expenditure necessary for taking the census of the Colony in 1901. The Cape will thus come into line with the rest of the empire in the "counting or heads."

England's Administration.

The present conservative government of Great Britain celebrated its fifth birthday on July 4. England has had a total of twenty-eight administrations in this century, eight of which were longer than the present one. The longest was that of lord Liverpool, which lasted from 1812 to 1827, a period of fifteen years and 319 days.

Uncle Sam's Youngest Employee.

Miss Jane Ward, a young Denver girl of 16, is probably the youngest person in the employ of the United States at the Paris exposition, where she is official interpreter to her father, William B. Ward, assistant director of works and auxiliary to the United States commission at the exposition.

Science of Housekeeping.

Atlanta, Georgia, has provided a model house for instruction in the science of housekeeping. It has bedrooms for eighteen students, with kitchen, dining, reception and sewing-rooms. The students will carry on the work of the house under good teachers and mistresses, laundry work and sewing will be included in the curriculum.

No Time Like Home.

In explaining his reason for spending his vacation at his home in Missouri, Senator Vest, a few days ago said: "I've visited vacations from Florida to Alaska, but I find that there is no place like home for a good rest."

Chinese-American Farmer.

Willie Ching, an Americanized Chinaman of Bristol, Conn., has an acre and a half of land, on which he raises Chinese vegetables. The bonds of nature he raises weigh almost ten pounds and are worth ten cents apiece. The leaves are more tender. He also raises a variety of beans, the pods of which measure ten inches in length. Willie cultivates a clinging vine, supposed on Indian, the leaves of which are shaped like summer squashes, and a vegetable which looks like American gourds. These furnish the basis of Chinese soup, and bring a good price in the market. He raises onions, ginger roots and numerous other Chinese market vegetables, for which he finds a ready market in the cities of Connecticut.

Geographical Superstition.

Anti, still values the highest mountain and the deepest valley, the basin of the Dead Sea being several hundred feet below the level of the Mediterranean, and Africa maintains her supremacy in the matter of deserts, but America can boast the highest mountain range, the greatest caverns and the greatest waterfall, the largest river, the largest rivers and the largest inland lake.

After all there is nothing more relatively valuable than a good big mule.

—Wednesday morning, Oct. 17, at 9 o'clock, the Rt. Rev. H. J. Richter, D. D., bishop, of Grand Rapids, will be at the Catholic church in this village. He will deliver a brief sermon on "The Sacrament of Confirmation," and then administer it to a class of fifteen. Rev. J. Alexander, the local pastor, will all the services in assisted by the reverend fathers from Petoskey.

—A. B. Nicholas, the republican candidate for prosecuting attorney, is one of the most competent lawyers in northern Michigan. His practice is of the best class and his standing in court is high as an advocate. There is no attorney in this region that began the study of law with a broader foundation of general knowledge than A. B. Nicholas. Before reading law he was a most successful educator, and, therefore, as a lawyer, he is equipped and will continue to grow. A. B. Nicholas is a credit to his profession.

—Rev. Geo. Killeen, the democratic nominee for congressman for this district, spoke at the opera house last Monday evening. Two thirds of the audience were republicans, and the verdict among them is that it was a decidedly chilly event. Occasionally Mr. Harmon or an old partisanship with big whiskers would start a little quorum of applause, but it was not enough to warm up the house. Mr. Killeen was fortunate enough to say that low cottonseed oil was a boon to the farmer, and that the consumer of cottonseed oil was enjoying a great benefit from it, and that the cheapness of cotton was due to cottonseed oil. He also said that the cheapness of cotton was not all absorbed by his goods—he, too, was proud and happy to have the opportunity to attest his appreciation of his Masonic affiliation by thus entertaining his Brother.

At about eleven o'clock, the guests departed, each receiving a badge charm and a good night from an genial and jovial Mason as ever wore an apron. Every guest voted the event in the lodge room unanimous a big feather in Master Fisher's cap.

—At F. Meech, the republican candidate for county clerk, is at present supervisor of Charlevoix. Mr. Meech is well equipped for the office of county clerk, and is a worthy representative of the "young man" element of Charlevoix county. He is a young man of the strictest integrity, and his county may entitled to the support of republicans.

—When you see a republican going around the county wearing against the republican county ticket, inform gane as to the motive and you will find it to be personal in every case. As a rule they are men who, in past years, have been foundations of the publican votes. Don't be deceived, republicans, there is no good, valid reason why you should vote against any candidate on the republican county ticket.

—There will be a harvest home festival at the Congregational church Sunday, next. The church will be decorated with fruits and flowers, anthems, hymns and an home will all be appropriate to the occasion. The subjects of the sermons will be: Morning, "A Basket of summer Fruit;" evening, "The Jews Harvest home;" The evening services will be in the form of a Sunday school concert, to be held under the auspices of the ladies auxiliary to the church.

—Jesse S. Weldon of Hayes was a McKinley pin as big as an overcoat button. This would not seem strange where so many are seen, but it was for the fact that Mr Weldon has not for before been a republican, at least to our certain knowledge, for more than thirty years. He disclaims ever having been a democrat, but avows himself very emphatically a free silver greenbacker. He will vote for McKinley this fall, however, because he believes that McKinley's election will be best for the country.

—The Chicago Banker of Sept. 25 contains a lengthy article on the elegant new storage plant being erected by A. Booth & Co. at Chicago. It is to be fifteen stories high. The boilers and engines are located on the top floor, thus protecting the building from getting any effects of the plant from the boilers, and a fire in the plant would not be dangerous to the building. This building is being built by the same company as that in the Charlevoix business, and is intended to be the most complete and modern building of its kind in the world. The Booth Packing and Provision Co. is a Michigan concern, and its Charlevoix business is in charge of Mr. Wm. Booth, who is a son of the president of the company.

N Gallagher of the Joe made the tows comfortable and took them to Beaver island, where Neil Gallagher took charge of them.

Foley and the Masons at Elsers.

By far the most notable and altogether successful and enjoyable Masonic social event in the history of Charlevoix lodge was the banquet last Friday evening, given by Brother H. J. Foley at the Belvedere hotel, to the Masons of Charlevoix.

While Brother Foley is no spring chicken, by any means, he is less than a year old as a Mason. This presumptuous infant, the past year, having had summer and winter hotels on his hands divided up the months that times with Masonic birth between Lone lodge—Charlevoix and Alma. Lone lodge, first first sign along the rocky road were taken in Charlevoix, and thereafter he fell like leaving the country, which he did, returning to the house of his new birth last spring with his Masonic cherubic wings feathered out to full size, determined to get even with the gang that first took him in out of the harsh atmosphere of a cold and cruel world.

And hence the banquet of which we speak. It was a bonanza! Fifty of "Nature's noblemen" and their kings under Brother Foley's table, which formed a letter—Y.

Along the top of this letter sat Worshipful Master Hiner and four particulars, white down the "leg" sat a mob that spent the hour in singing reverently and praying those at the top of the table who friend to be dignified and decent.

The feast? Well, it was as elegant a spread as ever was served at Elsers' or sat down to. The enjoyment of it by the guests was only equalled by the masterful pride of the host in the striking success of the event. Jovality and repartee accompanied every course from the commencement to the last, and then Worshipful Master Hiner called for order. After a graceful tribute to the masonic hospitality of Brother Foley, he called out, Hon. E. H. Gibson, the first master of 292, who responded in a happy vein of the lodge and jovality of the event in which he was participating. Dad Gaston Green was followed by others of his rank, and then the infant of which we have spoken—Brother Foley—was ordered to his feet by the worshipful of the "east." The genial manager of the festivities responded in a short talk, and so happy was he and the others of the occasion was not all absorbed by his guests—he, too, was proud and happy to have the opportunity to attest his appreciation of his Masonic affiliation by thus entertaining his Brethren.

At about eleven o'clock, the guests departed, each receiving a badge charm and a good night from an genial and jovial Mason as ever wore an apron. Every guest voted the event in the lodge room unanimous a big feather in Master Fisher's cap.

Teachers' Examination.

The next regular semi-annual examination for Charlevoix county, for second and third grade certificates, will be held at the court house in Charlevoix, on the 29th and 30th, 1896. Examinations will commence at 9:30 a. m. sharp, standard time. Paper furnished free to applicants.

Rash and False Statements of Bryan Regarding These Matters.

Actual Figures Disprove Arguments of the Democratic Leader in His Speeches.

Mr. Bryan in his speech accepting the Democratic nomination for president made on August 12 at Topeka, Kan., reported from the press followed in his footsteps of his speech at Indianapolis in announcing and discussing the issues presented by the platform by raking up these questions he made a rash and false statement in regard to certain conditions which he declared to exist in his speech to the farmers in and capital classes and charged that these were brought about by the republican prosperity and the operations of combinations and trusts which affect upon the farmers he said:

"Looking at questions from the standpoint of the producer of wealth, rather than from the standpoint of the consumer, the question of trusts is a serious one and increasing menace. The average farmer is interested in trusts only in so far as they enable him to buy goods at a less price than he can without the trust and which cannot job from every step he takes, from the time he buys the seed to plant in the spring until he sells the product of his farm, the fruits of those who combine to control the market. The farmer is not to be benefited by the tariff, for the tariff does not protect him. He is a producer and he is a producer of a product which is not protected by the tariff. He is a producer of a product which is not controlled by the trust. He is a producer of a product which is not controlled by those who, by reason of wealth or influence, are able to secure legislation."

This statement, especially as to the farmer not being affected by the tariff, is not far from the truth, and it is easily disproved. This is another conclusion. In the first place Mr. Bryan said: "The tariff provides that all army supplies shall be purchased in the bids opened before they are awarded, and that a special clause is added requiring them quality."

Figures showing the expenditures for the quartermaster's department from April, 1896, to April, 1896, inclusive, show that the army, which has been reduced in the interest, he thinks Mr. Bryan says that the Farmer will "be pay more than his share of the expenses of the army, has to part with his money to a trust operating companies, in fact, what is annual.

Official figures of expenditures in the subsistence department of the war department show that in the purchase of army supplies during the years 1895, 1896 and to June 30, 1896, the subsistence department purchased various manufactured products of the farm, such as beef, bacon, flour, cornmeal, beans, potatoes, canned tomatoes, molasses, soap, pickles, hard bread, jam, tomatoes, catsup, sugar, vinegar, soap, pickles, and canning and curing purchased by the subsistence department amounted approximately for these rations. So much for the subsistence department.

The quartermaster's department shows, on account of purchase of forage, fuel, stationery, cavalry and artillery horses, wagons and means of transportation (other than railroads), tents, etc., harness, clothing and equipage, materials and manufactures of iron and steel, and of wood, that in 1895 the total expenditure was $3,000,000.

Of this forage only has crops, etc., come direct from the farmer. Horses and mules are sold as the business of the country. Most American products which are used in the United States. Internal and foreign forage as dangerous as seems to a large standing army as is the army now stands. Of these the war department buys chiefly what has been grown and sold and bought by the army and has had a market for his product.

Let us see exactly the amount of money expended by the quartermaster department and subsistence department of the war department the following of field forage, etc., and of other articles of the farmer and the farmer, but has been a consumer.

The quartermaster department, during the two and a half years, has expended for American farm products, for forage for the army, $11,000,000.

The quartermaster's department has expended during the same period on account of purchases of forage, fuel, stationery, etc.:

Forage and straw, wood,	$1,000,000
Fuel, coal, coke, charcoal,	1,000,000
Cavalry and artillery horses,	1,000,000
Wagons and means of transportation,	1,000,000
Harness,	1,000,000
Materials of clothing and equipage,	1,000,000
Materials of iron and steel,	1,000,000
Materials of wood,	1,000,000
Total,	$11,000,000

This statement, especially as to the farmer and his relation to the crop, is not far from the truth, and is to easily disproved. This is another conclusion. RESULTS OF BRYAN'S LETTER.

First Fruits of the Democratic Candidate's Letter of Acceptance.

The response to Australia to prompt and to the point. Report better rains and only a few days ago and even March reports are reaching.

Considerable activity throughout Illinois. Fighting reported. . . . in districts heretofore quiet. In Hancock . . . . Democrat qualified. . . . Counties north of Paris . . . very much disturbed. . . . South of Paris some confidence." It was a mere matter of money and had been "anticipated and reported upon" as long ago as August 25 as likely to occur about this time.

Twenty-one Americans killed and 19 wounded.

It is well to keep Lawson's prophecy which is stated: "If I should say a Pinkerton fatality it might as well come from one of my own men because I know from observation, confirmed by surprised prisoners, that the commander of the fighting is chiefly due to reports that are sent from Chicago."

Expansion in Trade.

The rapid growth of our business with Japan in rails and machinery during the past four years is a fair indication of what may be accomplished in that quarter in the future under proper encouragement. Five years ago American rails were unknown in Japan but at the present time more than double as quantity the rails which come from England, which up to 1896 constituted the chief source of supply. It is believed that American have it in their power to practically control the supply of rails and rail material generally with Japan during the next decade. As an indication, it is stated that the Carnegie company signed a contract at Kobe for 5000 tons of rails at a price of $18 per ton under the lowest English ten. The men who unselfishness these rails continues to the well being of the farmers whose supplies feed and clothe them.—Hardware.

Who Owns the Factories?

Massachusetts is one of the leading manufacturing states in the union. In 1895 there were 4,267 factories, of which 1,441 were owned by individuals, 1,108 by copartnerships, 1,718 by corporations and 1 by industrial combination. The individual proprietorship is the largest element by long odds in the state's industrial enterprises.

Arizona, Wide of Algeria.

The efficient work of Arizona's have reconciled tribes whose military territories ruled to justify. The first appearance of the new drill machinery recently provoked those hostile, but when utilizing fountains of cold water burst forth and filled tanks and refrigeration cools their fires turned to pleasure and finally to arrows of approval. Now they are breaking the tents of the government engineers, begging them to use their hole here and there and promising their political support as soon as upon tenure. Arizona should endorse the productiveness of their parched-out fields.

Large Sugar Mill Plant.

The Empire State Sugar Company, which is building a large beet sugar plant at Lyons, N. Y., has ordered ten autoclaves of five tons capacity. These are to be used to cart sugar beets from farms to the refinery. The company has 5,000 acres of land contracted for.

UNIQUE SHOE INDUSTRY.

Rise of the Jewish Scrap and "Bootoff" Buyer.

The "ghetto" the home of a mixed case of humanity, presents a remarkable and unique phase of New York shoe selling, says the New York Tribune. Petty shoemakers visit the enormous city shoe factories daily and buy up scraps and "seconds" of all kinds of leather, which they take to their homes, and, after being inspected and assorted by the entire family, it is finally made into pieced backs and wedge heels in black, tan, patent leather and numerous odd combinations, every inch of leather being utilized. A steady worker turns out at least twenty-four pairs of these shoes, working from 7 a. m. until late in the night. In the meantime the thrifty wife puts the finished product into a clothes basket and, taking a stool, station herself at the prominent corner of Hester and Ludlow streets, right in the heart of the "ghetto." Here activity reigns, thousands upon thousands of wage-earners swarm through the streets, the vendors loudly cry their wares to attract the attention of bargain seekers. Affecting day of bantering and talking the women has disposed of her shoes and goes home with an empty basket and a pocketful of small change. After many weeks of this routine the occasional shoemaker has saved enough to realize an ambition and he buys a push cart—a two-wheeled affair much like the familiar fruitman's cart—and with shoes bought at five cents he peddles leather into some crowded thoroughfare and goes up against the curb. A demand, the price, loudly proclaimed, serves to dispose of the stock as often as he can replenish the same. Under these circumstances the meager capital has increased sufficiently to enable him to open a small shoe store in Hester Street and to engage an assistant. He searches wholesale shoe houses for second and slow, damaged and misshapen shoes, and picks up numerous lots for a fraction of their value. He has now assumed the dignity of a merchant, and has gained the confidence of his customers. Encouraged by his success and confident of his ability, he buys in larger lots and begins to supply other push cart dealers. The demand eventually assumes greater proportions; he attends auction sales, which are very frequent in New York, and scours the country from every vehicle. In the course of a few years his establishment becomes too small. Disposes of his push cart and owns a handsome store in Bowery street, among the east side shoe jobbers.

MARTIN HERMANN'S WILL

OR

Would "talk the matter over" with Mr. Mulvey, and then arrange for an interview with the latter, seemed to be the "I'll-repay-you" way out of the difficulty. Mr. Mulvey was a man who, if he was in the right, would stand by his word, and, if he was in the wrong, would own up like a man. Which was the reason why he was so popular with a lot of people who knew him.

Mr. Mulvey was a bachelor, and lived with his sister, who was a widow, in a small house in a small village, which was actually within the city limits, but was so far from the city that it was a long journey to it, and, as Mr. Mulvey was accustomed, unless he was in a hurry, to take the street car, he was generally two hours and a half on the road when he went to his office in the morning, and the same time when he came home at night. He was a man who was fond of his ease, and was not in the habit of doing anything he could avoid doing, if he could help it. He was a man who was fond of his pipe, and was not in the habit of doing without it when he could help it. He was a man who was fond of his glass, and was not in the habit of doing without it when he could help it. He was a man who was fond of his bed, and was not in the habit of getting out of it when he could help it

Mayme took the chair from about her mother and sat in it herself, leaning her elbows on the table and looking at the girl.

"It's time I was up and doing," she said. "I've been a long time about this, but I've been thinking it over, and I've made up my mind what I'm going to do. I'm not a young woman, and I haven't much time to lose. I'm going to Europe, and I'm going to take you with me. I've been thinking it over, and I've made up my mind to do it. I've money enough, and I'm not afraid of anything. We'll be back in time for Christmas."

"Why, Mrs. Hermann!" cried Hannah, astonished at the sudden change in her mistress's manner.

"Why, Mrs. Hermann!" echoed Mrs. Hoffman, who had come in at the door at the last sentence.

"Why, Mrs. Hermann!" she repeated, as she saw her friend's face as she turned to her.

"Why, Mrs. Hermann!" Mrs. Hoffman's husband had come in behind her and was standing in the doorway.

"Why, Mrs. Hermann!" he repeated, as his wife had done.

"Why, Mrs. Hermann!" Mary Hoffman had come in behind her father and was looking at her mother with a face in which a dozen different emotions were struggling for mastery.

An Extra Session.

Gov. Pingree has called an extra session of the legislature to meet next Tuesday to act on tax laws that he has mapped out. There is every indication that the legislature will pass both of Governor Pingree's measures—submit to the vote of the people the amendment to tax and tether corporate property by the advalorem system, the same as other property is taxed, and repeal the special railroad charters now existant, whereby the Michigan Central, Grand Trunk and Lake Shore roads are enjoying special privileges in methods of taxation and in charging passenger and freight rates, and then grant the Legislature

A Charlevoix Veteran.

Charlevoix has many veterans—men who were the blue from 1861 to 1865, but we have but one Lincoln of the Mexican war, and he is not only one of the comparatively few of the army that invaded the land of the cactus away back in the '40s, but he is the only surviving member of his company—Co. H, 16th U. S. Infantry.

Capt. John Beattie, who, up at his pleasant home on the "county road," is close to the sunset of an eventful life, enlisted in the 16th at Cleveland in March, 1847. He was in the army of Gen. Winfield Scott in the battles of Cerro Gordo, City of Mexico, Chapultepec, Cherubusco and Mollie Gordon, and was mustered out at Chattanooga in August, 1848.

He has lately received from a Mexican war widow a roster of his company which shows him to be the only surviving member, and it is gratifying if there are many of his regiment yet alive. Or it went to Mexico with 30 men, it returned with 31.

Capt. Beattie, before going to Mexico, was a master of lake vessels, when large and lumberman were in fashion, as early as 1843, making the quarter mile to Ireland. In later years he returned to the lakes and lumber trade, and many scenes that were in those days he observed the last. For about five years he navigated fresh water and then went to New Orleans and entered the vocation of stevedore.

For about 40 years Capt. Beattie packed cotton bales in ocean going ships—some of them giants of the sea. It was thirty years ago that, having attained prominence in his line, he came back to his beloved old lakes to spend his summers, and for many summers the captain and his wife sojourned in Charlevoix.

About ten years ago, Mr. Beattie having died in New Orleans, the captain broke up his business there, coming to Charlevoix to spend his declining years. His second wife, who was Frances Stone, was Mrs. Mary Sweetman, the eldest daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Mason. The captain is upwards of 75 years of age, and few have had more eventful lives.

Death of Miss Ida Gray, of Hayes.

Died, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cupping, September 30, Miss Ida Gray, eldest daughter of William and Hannah Gray of Hayes township. She had just returned from college and was preparing to teach, when she was taken with a malignant typhoid fever which terminated her life. Mrs. Gray was visiting her sister, in Grand Rapids at the time, so Ida was taken to the home of Mr. Cupping, where all was done that a competent physician and kind friends could do.

Finding the case serious, Mrs. Gray was sent for and hastened home to the bedside of her daughter, who gradually grew worse until the fever reached 108.

Her sister Ellen and other near relatives, who were in Grand Rapids, were telegraphed for, the sister arriving just in time to be recognized by Ida before she died.

She was patient and bore her suffering with a Christian fortitude and quietly breathed her last at 10:30 a. m. The funeral was from the residence, where a very large number of mourners and sympathetic friends were gathered. The floral offerings were in profusion, and roadside and pinks were placed by loving hands about the casket and in her hair, reflecting the sadness of the occasion somewhat, and in her hand were placed the bridal roses of a dear friend who was married the day before.

We hold her away with the assurance that we shall meet her again when the Lord comes to call the sleeping saints from their dusty beds, for she also had lately given her heart to Jesus and was baptized.

Words of sympathy and comfort by the writer, from Rev. 42:26—last clause.

For Probate Judge.

J. W. HARRIS.

John M. Harris, republican candidate for judge of probate of Charlevoix county this year, was born in Ontario, Canada, Sept. 10, 1861, and is therefore now 39 years old.

He spent the early years of his life in the public schools there, and after reaching the age of twelve years supported himself until he was 20 years old by working for farmers in the neighborhood of his birthplace.

In September, 1881, he came to Charlevoix county to seek his fortune and alone that time has been a continuous resident of the county. The same fall after arriving here he began teaching and for three years taught in district schools in different township in the county. He afterwards was principal of the ironton schools for four years, and from there removed to this village to accept the position of principal of the schools here, which position he held for five successive years. During this time Mr. Harris speedily arose from the position of an unknown country school teacher to one where he was known and recognized as one of the best educators in the county. He held the position of president and secretary of the County Teachers' Association and member of the county board of school examiners whilst engaged in his school work. While principal of the Boyne City high school a large number of young people finished their common school education, and many secured certificates to teach in the schools of the county, as many as twelve securing certificates at one public examination—who had wholly or in part taken their advanced work in our schools under Mr. Harris.

At the annual school meeting in 1894 he was elected school trustee, which position he has held continuously since that time, and also secretary of the board of education for the past three years—a position he has filled with ability and success. During this time our public schools have grown from a capacity of three rooms with three teachers, to six rooms with seven teachers.

In April, 1895, Mr. Harris was admitted to the bar, and the following July opened a law office in Boyne City, where he has continuously been engaged in practice. Since taking up law he has had to combat with the difficulties and hardships incident to picking up a professional practice in a new country, but has had the satisfaction of seeing his practice grow from nothing to a wide and extensive law business. Not only in this county, but he has become well and favorably known as a lawyer in neighboring counties and continually has business in the courts of adjoining counties.

In politics, Mr. Harris has always been, since he cast his first vote, a consistent and unswerving republican and claims he became a republican solely from a study of the history of his adopted country. Since 1888 he has been an active and aggressive worker in politics, and there are few school houses in the county in which he has not defended the principles of the republican party in the different campaigns.

In 1896 he was nominated by his party and elected to the office of prosecuting attorney for the county, and renominated and elected with practically no opposition in 1898. He has discharged the duties of that office with such signal ability and success that his record as prosecuting attorney has attracted the attention of the people familiar with affairs in neighboring counties. In the campaign of 1898, during a warm contest for prosecutor in Emmet county, one of the leading papers there, in supporting a young man for that office, pointed to our county and to Mr. Harris as an example of a successful young man in the discharge of the public duties of prosecutor.

Mr. Harris is now nominated for judge of probate, receiving the almost unanimous support of the republican county convention, and his successful administration as prosecuting attorney has made him strong for the office to which he now aspires.

In disposition, Mr. Harris is known by his friends and acquaintances as being conservative and painstaking in the discharge of his professional and official business, unswerving in his adhesion to duty and well adapted in disposition, habits and training to discharge the duties of probate judge.

Central Lake Torch: The second story of the new Lythgrow block is being plastered and finished. It will be occupied by the same Masonic lodge that is being organized here.

Grand Traverse Herald: The department of the new Masonic hall at Northport was conducted by Grand Master Lucius E. Wood on the evening of Oct 5th, a large number of Masons going from this city on the Columbus to attend the ceremony.

Bellaire Masons are very confident that a chapter (R. A. M.) will soon be instituted at that place. Several of the local members have been very active in the matter and are meeting with every encouragement from the Traverse City chapter.—Bellaire Independent.

Simon Harwood, a 30-year-old girl, committed suicide at Elk Rapids last week at the residence of a friend. She had been working for Charles Burke, but had quit the place the day previous. She claimed to have had a headache and took what was supposed to be a headache powder, but which really was strychnine. She soon began to scream, went into convulsions and expired, the efforts of a physician proving of no avail.

Traverse City Record: Some gentlemen have been looking over the field here with the idea of locating a large brewery in this vicinity. They are from Milwaukee and have decided to locate somewhere on this side of the lake, signing that the saving in freight to the resort region would be a considerable addition to the profits of the business. They have secured options on lands in Elmwood township. Leelanau county, owned by Antoine Gretten and the Gordon estate, and are very favorably impressed with the location. If the brewery is located here it will mean the investment of about $120,000.

Boyne Citizen: The owners of the Boyne City and Southeastern railroad are making a vast number of improvements on their property in the village and all along the line. Very Wall of Cadillac has been engaged as traffic manager, and under his supervision the company's expenses are increasing a more presentable appearance and of a kind that will be appreciated by all concerned. Lately over 100 new employes have been added to the company. A large portion of them are engaged in raising the roadbed about the yards, straightening tracks, etc. Another gang is busily engaged tossing large timbers for a new railroad bridge near the big mill, while yet still more are at work leveling down the old car shop. In its stead will be erected a roundhouse and car shop combined, 40x50 feet. The former compartment will have a capacity for eight engines. A new water tank will be erected and will be here in a few days. Three hundred tons of steel and rails are ordered, a part already having arrived. These will be used on the main line between here and Boyne Falls. The old rail will be used for extensions through the woods, for spurs and side tracks. The roadbed on the whole system will be thoroughly overhauled, insuring the company a great saving both in time and labor in the future.

4. She always wanted me to be a thoroughbred.
5. Her actions helped me to do better.
6. If you did not get your lessons she was so sorry that it made you feel ashamed.
7. She took a good deal of interest in us.
8. Put us on our honor.
9. Her manner seemed to give me so inspiration to work.
10. She never punished the pupils publicly for fear they would feel good.
12. Never flew off the handle.
13. Does not scold at one time and then be awful good for a while.
14. Always meant what she said.
15. She always thought before she spoke.
16. Always got our attention.
17. She doesn't feel satisfied when her pupils don't have a good lesson.

—Considerable excitement exists in the north of over the presence of a small pox at Petoskey and Levering, small towns on the G. T. R. & I. R. north of Petoskey. There are 35 cases there, and the places are thoroughly quarantined, no trains stopping there. The man who brought it to that section first came to Petoskey with what he supposed was measles, but a doctor discovered the nature of the disease. As a consequence, there is considerable uneasiness in Petoskey.

—Once in a while a narrow-minded Democrat obtains hold of a place from his pulpit slanders the President of the United States. As a rule these bigots are democrats in disguise. One of this sort of preachers recently told the writer of this that he believed that "President McKinley was murdered by the liquor interests." Bishop Mc-Cabe is a pretty good Methodist, and this is what he said at the Central New York conference lately: "I believe in President McKinley's conscience. I believe that the president tries to do what is right. He is one of the best men of the present and one of the bravest of men that I ever knew, and I hope we will refrain from any unkind or unfriendly remarks." One of the ministers said that the conference was enjoying a political speech from the bishop. "I was sorry before I was a bishop," thunder-ed Bishop McCabe, "and I will cease to be a bishop before I cease to be a man!" The bishop's remark was greeted by an outburst of prolonged cheering.

Marion Notes.

The machine Hackney was hauled out at Wanhatora's yard Saturday to repair a broken shoe. She was floated again Monday.

Chicago Evening Post: The steam yacht Lady Jane has been sold by the Marion Iron Works to the Hood Lumber Company of Pensaw, Ala., and will have to traverse by way of the Illinois and Michigan Canal and Illinois and Mississippi rivers by the new name. D. D. Hood and his brother, W. T. Hood, arrived here to take charge of the boat. The Hood company owns about thirteen acres of timber land in Alabama, and the Lady Jane will be used in towing the timber down the Tombigbee and Alabama rivers to their saw mills near Mobile. When not engaged in this business she will be used by her new owners as towing and hauling tips around Mobile Bay and inland waters. The Lady Jane was built in Charlevoix in 1895, and registers 21 tons gross, 15 tons net, is 54 feet long and 12 feet 6 in. beam. The consideration of the sale is not given.

The Marion Columbian, of so large, stirred here Saturday to lay Otto is loaded out at Wanhatora's yard.

The Extra Session.

The Michigan legislature, in extra session last week, promptly did the business mapped out for it and adjourned.

Both houses passed the submitting a constitutional amendment to the people in the tax question at the coming election, and repealing the charters of the Michigan Central, Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee and Michigan Southern railroad companies and adjourned.

A bill was also passed providing for the institution of proceedings in court to recover damages from the state for such repeal. This bill provides that the railroad companies may have until December 1, 1901, to recognize.

The legislature adjourned with good feelings and Governor Pingree says he is pleased with the work of both houses. The house passed the constitutional amendment with only two opposing votes, Scully and Burnham being the only members to vote against it. The repeal bills were passed by both houses without a dissenting vote.

The proposals to submit constitutional amendments providing for intermediate courts for the state was killed in the house.

Board of Supervisors.

The board of supervisors met in annual session last week. Richard Lewis of Wilson was elected chairman. Every moved along in a harmonious manner. The board vetoed the poor farm in a body and found it in excellent condition. An appropriation of $2,000 was voted for improvements, which will include a new pump house with modern conveniences, to be under the supervision of the superintendent of the poor.

Orville L. Lord of Melrose was elected county drain commissioner. A. M. Tiffany of Charlevoix was elected member of the board of school examiners. D. F. Clements of East Jordan, Frank Blair of Boyne City and Wm. Vliet of Boyne Falls were elected a board of election canvassers.

The assessments of the various townships were adjusted as follows: Bay, $1,011,141, lowered $10,000; Boyne Valley, $1,016,185; Chandler, $752,565; Charlevoix, $841,265; Eveline, $981,[illegible]; Hayes, $1,000,[illegible]; Evangeline, $[illegible]206, raised $14,437; Hayes, $170,[illegible]; Marion, $[illegible]; Melrose, $[illegible]; raised $17,265; Norwood, $157,[illegible]; raised $15,139; Peaine, $[illegible]; raised $[illegible]; St. James $[illegible]; South Arm $[illegible]; Wilson $[illegible]; raised $9,367.

The valuation as equalized is $4,[illegible]. Charlevoix's portion of state tax is $1,[illegible]; county tax, $[illegible].

The Empire Leader is to be moved to Northport.

Dr. Hoffman, one of the first white settlers in Leelanau county, died at his home at Glen Arbor recently, at the advanced age of eighty-two years.

The $25,000 water works bonds issued by Traverse City were sold last Tuesday to N. W. Harris & Co. at a premium of $600. The bonds draw three per cent and run for 20 and 30 years.

E. S. Turner, formerly a banker at Bellaire, has joined with Francis Libby, a well known lumberman, and has undertaken a big lumbering job in Arkansas. They expect to take out about 20,000,000 feet of hardwood for the Baker Lumber Co.

Traverse City Record: The Michigan Manufacturing Co. has received an order for a carload of curtain poles subject to recall in the event of the Sheldon McGinley be elected then the goods are to be shipped, but should Bryan be elected the order is to be cancelled. This is but one instance of the view taken by business men regarding the results of the coming election.

A. M. Coleson of this city and E. D. Wheaton of Ironton, says the Record, passed through here last week on their way to Gills Pier where they have purchased the property formerly occupied and owned by Wilbur P. Gill, etc. He located on the Bearss. East will remain a busy docking lumber and cleaning the site formerly occupied by the mill, and it is expected that one million feet of wood and another of hemlock will completely clear that housing of suggestions that a busy summer and lumber yard once covered the only industry. It is said that a new house will be given the place since the last summer will create that locality into a pretty summer resort. A large hotel and several cottages will be erected there next spring.

By MAJ. ALFRED ROCHEFORT

Copyright, 1900, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XV.

Lawyer Cheatham owned a watch. It he kept on night and day, so that he could answer anxious inquiries as to how it had gone, and consequently the lawyer concerned in the matter was kept in a state of nervous excitement.

The story ended by Lord Ashford's being found guilty of the murder of the Honorable Jonathan, on the evidence of a watch which had been stolen from the dead man's pocket, and which was found in the possession of the prisoner. The watch was identified by the lawyer, who had given it to his client as a souvenir of the occasion.

CHAPTER XVI.

Lone Dodd was at the depot waiting for Pete Newman. He stood in shadow for fear that the man might see him and hook it for another town, and he never once took his eyes off the door of the waiting room for fear Pete might be passed in Mrs. Malone's shoes and sneak out the back way. Lone had heard that Mr. Newby hadn't come home yet.

"I'm sure I don't know what it means," he kept on saying to himself, as he stood in the shadow.

Wasn't he in jail?

Lone had seen Mary Malone and had a talk in the Hermann yard. He was feeling pretty confident that he had recognized the super wonder-worker in the man who had been in the back bedroom the night before. Hands he recognized as Mrs. Malone's, hair and whiskers he could not be certain of, because they were all covered with common kitchen flour. Mary had told him that the super was "a little man," and Lone was certain that the man he had seen was a little man. Mary had also said that the super was "a little man." Lone was certain of it. Mary had also said that the super was "a little man." Lone was certain of it. Mary had also said that the super was "a little man." Lone was certain of it

CAVES CONTAIN ICE.

Huge Quantities of It in Subterranean Caverns.

Comparatively few freezing caves are known as yet west of the Mississippi, but there is no doubt that many will be discovered in time, as freezing caverns are not an uncommon phenomenon. Some of these freezing caverns are noteworthy for their extent, as well as their size. In the one at Dobbins, Hungary, there is a mass of ice about 110 yards long, 65 yards wide and at least 18 yards deep. The formation and retention of subterranean ice always seems mysterious at first, but it is in reality a simple matter. In freezing caves the entrance is always above the body of the hollow and the cold air of winter sinks down into the hollow, and on account of its weight is not easily displaced by the lighter warm air of spring or summer. The cold of winter thus permeates the hollow, and when thawing snows or spring rains supply drip water to the cave the cold within freezes the drip into a mass of ice, to some extent large enough to last through the following summer. There are at least four other theories in regard to the formation of underground ice, but they do not stand the test of observations.

Nature Has Provided Man.

Almost all of man's inventions have been foreshadowed by nature. The hypodermic syringe with which the physician injects morphine into a patient's arm has its counterpart in the sting of the bee. The tunnel-boring is an adaptation of the work of the terrier or groundhog. The principle of the balloon is found in certain fabics. The paper-making industry is paralleled in the building of the wasp's nest. In the mechanism of man's body there are joints and levers similar to those used in engines. The automatic oiling of machinery which rub together is an analog in on the same plan as the lubrication of the joints in our body. Man's nervous system resembles the telegraph in its mode of working. The ball bearings in a bicycle or automobile are not so very dissimilar to the ball joints in the human body and abundant. The principle of the lever was foreshadowed in the long bones of the human body.

Large Sugar Beet Plant.

The Empire State Sugar Company, which is building a large beet sugar plant at Lyons, N. Y., has received ten contracts of five tons' capacity, which are to be used to cart sugar beets from farms to the refinery. The company has 5,500 acres of land contracted for.

Strange Uses of the Flag.

A notable feature of the American celebrations, and of the United States at the exposition itself, and in general of the American tourist in Europe during the recent years, is the inordinate use of our flag. Young women are dressed in it, young men wear it around their necks for a cravat, it is twined round the head of the colored cook at the corn fritter.

BUSINESS OPINION.

Solid Southern Men Hope for McKinley's Reelection.

Seeming Awakened to the Necessity of Retaining the Republican Tariff Policies of Protection and Expansion.

COAL FOR THE NAVY.

UNITED STATES HAS FUEL AT MANY PORTS

Largest Amount Is at Manila Much Also at Honolulu and Numerous Mexican Ports—Over Three Thousand Tons Are Used Daily.

The United States now owns about 50,000 tons of coal distributed at various points in various parts of the world for the use of its warships, and this enough will be increased by additions to the supply as expeditiously as possible. The Department of Navigation has been making a careful study of the subject of the supply of coal at the various coaling stations in the Pacific and in Cuba, and has reached the conclusion that the supply now on hand is not large enough to meet the requirements of the navy in case of a war with a country possessing a large navy. It is estimated that the United States will need about 3,000 tons of coal a day for its warships in the Pacific and in Cuban waters if there should be a war with a country possessing a navy of any considerable size. The supply now on hand at the various coaling stations in the Pacific and Cuba is not more than a few days' supply for the vessels now in those waters.

The largest supply now on hand is at Manila, where there are about 20,000 tons. There are 15,000 tons at Honolulu, 10,000 tons at Mare Island, 10,000 tons at Port Royal, S. C., and 10,000 tons at Pensacola. There are smaller supplies at Guantanamo, Cuba, Port Royal, Jamaica, Acapulco, Mexico, Mazatlan, Mexico, and Panama. The supply at Port Royal is the largest on the Atlantic coast south of the Chesapeake capes. The supply at Pensacola is the largest on the Gulf of Mexico. The supply at Guantanamo is the largest in Cuban waters. The supply at Honolulu is the largest in the Pacific. The supply at Manila is the largest in the Orient.

The Navy Department has been making a study of the question of the supply of coal at the various coaling stations with a view to the adoption of a policy which will insure the possession of a supply of coal at the various points in the Pacific and in Cuban waters which will be sufficient to meet the requirements of the navy in case of a war with a country possessing a navy of any considerable size. The Department has been considering the question of the establishment of a coaling station at Samoa, which is the most important point in the Pacific south of the Hawaiian Islands, and it is understood that the Department has been considering the question of the purchase of a coaling station in the Philippine Islands, in case the islands should be ceded to the United States by Spain. The Department has been considering the question of the purchase of a coaling station in the Philippine Islands, in case the islands should be ceded to the United States by Spain. AGREEMENT IS LIKELY ON CHINESE QUESTION.

Germany's Change of Policy Indicates a Desire to Come Into Line with the Other Powers—A Permanent Settlement Seems Possible.

It appears that Lord [illegible] is about to be an understanding among the powers in regard to the Chinese question. Today brought unofficial information, and it seems not too extravagant to say that the agreement upon the basis of peace and a permanent settlement is in the early. In begin with, the German government has withdrawn the demand for the surrender of the Tsungli Yamen, the abolition of the ministry of the interior, and the other demands of a similar character. It has also withdrawn the demand for the dismissal of Prince Tuan, the Boxer leader, and the demand for the degradation of the officials who were responsible for the murder of Baron Von Ketteler, the German minister, and the other officials who were responsible for the murder of the Japanese minister. The withdrawal of these demands is taken to mean that Germany has concluded that she was unjust in her demands, and that she is now willing to meet the other powers in a spirit of fairness. CHANGED CIRCUMSTANCES.

A Man Once a Millionaire Now Lives to a Date.

Robert A Johnston, sole survivor of a firm of famous Broadway dry goods merchants, has lived for years a lonely life in what remains of his beautiful home at Riverside on the Hudson. The Johnston clan, who twelve years ago made up one of the most notable families in this country, lived in a home as lavish and costly as any in the world. Robert Johnston came to New York from County Armagh, Ireland, many years ago. He opened a small dry goods business, which soon grew to a great income. He brought his brothers Charles and Robert from Ireland and made them his partners under the name of J. & C. Johnston. Their store at Broadway Twenty second street and Fifth avenue was one of the finest in New York. Charles died in 1856 and John in 1887. Robert, the surviving brother inherited all the property. His wealth was estimated at more than $2,000,000. The magnificence of the old house was shown off in 1885. The millions accumulated in half a century began to vanish as if by magic. No one knows how Robert A. Johnston had his money. Within twelve years his great fortune has melted away. Soon after John's death Robert paid $60,000 for a dozen acres of land along Cobble hill and there built a magnificent stone mansion. There he lived in stately seclusion. The house was filled with beautiful furniture, exquisite paintings, statuary and bric-a-brac. But the former splendor was growing poorer day by day. He could not keep his servants. Elegant horses, which once belonged to kings, were destroyed by fire in 1896. It caused out of his possession months before. Attention filed a petition in bankruptcy on Feb. 6, 1896, showing no assets and liabilities of $50,000, of which $40,000 were definite judgments and the rest chiefly for carpets, clothing, servants' wages, etc.

From The Philippines.

Just those words written concerning Aguinaldo and his followers

Tarmac, P. I., July 31, 1900.

DEAR FATHER—I have just received from an attack of malarial fever, but I took the required amount of quinine and starvation and am feeling fine now.

The rainy season is in full blast here at present and it rains with a vengence when it does rain, but it makes everything green, and adds considerable to the general aspect of the country. This is a fine country to look upon. Palms with great dangling tops that look like gigantic plumes of a distinctly tropical form and flowers of every conceivable variety and color.

I saw by the papers that a great many people in the States and the democrats especially, are kicking on retaining the islands. They certainly do not understand the conditions as they exist here, or they would not be willing to turn the islands over to the tender mercies of Aguinaldo and his gang of thieves and cut-throats.

Aguinaldo and his party do not represent the wealth and of all these people by any means. There are 21 different tribes on the island of Luzon alone, and over 60 tribes on all the islands, so you see that Aguinaldo and his followers only represent a so all per cent of the people. Against them and his principal officers are half breed Chinese and Tagalocs, the most treacherous and scheming class of people on the islands, because they are naturally smart and educated and thoroughly understand how to deal with their more ignorant country cousins. There is nothing they would stop at to further their ends. Aguinaldo even had his fellow statesman, Luna, assassinated because he was popular with the people, and he feared his power.

Under the name of liberty they have collected thousands of dollars from the natives for war purposes and have pocketed the most of it. All the officers are rich. General Mallar, whom we have been chasing all over the provinces of Batangas, Laguna and Tayabas, and whose band we have annihilated on two occasions, is worth thousands of dollars. He and the rest of them know when they have a good thing and they are doing their best to hold it down. It is simply robbery on a grand scale.

What kind of a government would such a people be apt to put up, do you think? I do not think they are fit to control 8,000,000 people. What do you suppose would be the fate of the natives who have held office under the United States government, and were aided in quelling the insurrection, if Aguinaldo came into power? They would all be killed without a doubt. That is their way of doing business. This outfit have killed hundreds of natives because they were friendly to the Americans, and a number of times we have had to go to our outlying villages or garrisons, as they are called, to protect the mayors from running bands of insurgents, who were coming to kill them for holding even such a small office as mayor.

The majority of our best citizens, and I have talked with a number of them in different parts of the island, say that they want a local government under American protection. They realize that they cannot govern themselves properly, and say so. They know what has been going on in the so called Filipino congress and are disgusted with it, and are willing to aid in secrecy in every way. They are afraid to come out openly and declare themselves for American government for fear of being assassinated. If there are spies for Aguinaldo in every town. The inhabitants and non-combatants are afraid to give any information against the insurgents on this account.

Our army was not the aggressor in this conflict to commence with, and did everything in its power to avoid bloodshed. Our soldiers were insulted in every possible manner, the insurgents even spitting in their faces—I am told by men who were there. All of these personal insults were submitted to by our men, as they were under orders not to fire on them.

This was in January and February, 1898. On the evening of Feb. 4th, '98, the insurgents undertook to place an outpost within the American lines around Manila at San Juan bridge. The American sentry at the bridge ordered the insurgent lieutenant and squad three times to halt, as he was advancing with his party. The lieutenant refused to do so and the sentry shot him, which was right and proper. He would not have been much of a soldier if he had not. That opened up the ball, and now it is all over. We have broken them up entirely and I cannot help thinking that we have saved the Filipino people from a worse fate even than Spanish rule. I helped do it and am proud of it, and would do it again under similar circumstances. What I do not want to see is Hyan and his party turn around and undo all the good we have done.

These people have a great future before them as soon as Americans commence developing the natural resources of the Islands. There are millions of dollars worth of timber of the most valuable kinds, iron, gold and copper in paying quantities, and all such as the sun ever shone on. There, with such a government as we will give them (I know from what I have seen and heard) will make them proud and happy in years to come that they have found peace and plenty under the lead of all dear, old glory.

I wish that all we boys on the Islands had a vote this fall. If McKinley did not get there it would not be our fault. We are all of the same opinion—that the present administration should be upheld by all means, and that we ought to keep the Islands for humanity's sake as well as financial and political reasons.

Well, I must close, hoping that you will get a vote as big as the Milwaukee Journal for McKinley.

H. S. Rosenmeyer,
Co. I, 20th Inf. U. S. V.

—We repeat, with emphasis, what we have already said in these columns, there is no good reason why the republican county ticket should not receive the vote of every republican.

—Prosperity is everywhere manifest at the Beavers. McCann's new store at the "Harbor" will be completed and stocked up this fall, and work has been commenced on Gill's new saw mill. The schools with the Catholic sisters as teachers are doing well, and the people are well prepared for the coming winter's isolation.

—Local democratic campaigners are calling around the town, insinuating that Charlevoix will vote nearly solid for the democratic county ticket. Don't believe it, fellow republicans. The only opposition is from a few sore heads and constitutional kickers. Charlevoix will give its usual majority for the republican county ticket.

—John Kirby fell off the dock near the schooner Sea Gem just west of William's dock Tuesday night. His cries called John Hatton to the scene, where he was found clinging to a pile. —Some of the citizens of Charlevoix, desiring a lecture course to be for the best interests of the village, have organized the Charlevoix Lecture Association, and are endeavoring to put before the people of this village a series of entertainments of a truly high order. It is contemplated to give Fred Ashley, of Albion College, P. Kelly, Gaylord, Herbert Springer and a musical, the Boston Nues. In order to make the undertaking a success, it will be necessary to secure subscribers for 225 season tickets at $1.00 each. The village is being canvassed by different persons, who are good cause the needed encouragement.

—The pressure here last Monday night of Phillip T. Colgrove was made the occasion for a K. T. demonstration in his honor. Mr. Colgrove is a past supreme chancellor of the world, and the visit here of so distinguished a Dythian could not be allowed to pass unnoticed. So a banquet was tendered the gentleman by local Dythians at the Hotel Elston after the political event at the opera house. About fifty of the boys were present. Mr. Thompson was toastmaster, and the glad peaceful jollification of the event was confined to an address by Mr. Colgrove, who equaled his previous masterly effort in a talk appropriate to the occasion. Several outside the order attended the banquet, including Hon. A. A. Darragh, Hon. A. S. Dougherty and his trusty friend Van Brunsvelt. The menu fully sustained the excellent reputation of the Elston for elegant repasts. The collation and K. T. quartette sang several fine selections. It was a most enjoyable social event.

—There will be a meeting in the parlors of the Hotel Elston on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a whist club. All those interested are invited to attend.

—Capt. Gardner, of the Ferry sand warehouse, reports that he has bought 60,000 bushels of sand pears this fall. The "picking" season began Monday and will continue until April 1st. Twenty-five people are employed.

—Hon. A. A. Dougherty, a pioneer of Charlevoix, whom our people are always glad to see, was here Monday and Tuesday, accompanied by his brother, W. S. Dougherty, who is in the customs service of St. Johns, N. B.

—On Wednesday last, at the Catholic church a class of 12 was confirmed by Rt. Rev Bishop Richter. There were present, Rev. Fr. Abra, Detroit, the pastor, and Rev. Fathers Cyrin Shaupel, Bruno Yorke, and Ubert, all of Petoskey. Bishop Richter preached the sermon, and Rev. Father Shaupel sang high mass.

—Beaver Islanders have found in the session laws of 1899, an act authorizing the building of a road from "Trow" to the head of the island, to be called the Troy and Southport state road. "Troy" was the ancient name of the town at Beaver. Barber, Gunsaulus to the road has never been built, the islanders are looking the matter up with the view of having the law repealed.

—Republicans do not be led away by rumbacks and false reports. The more we approach election day the more certain are we to hear of some one of jarns concerning the republican county nominees. There is not a man on the ticket that is not worthy and competent, and every one of them is well known throughout the county. Do not aid in building up democracy in Charlevoix county by scratching your ticket.

—Hon. John Nicholls and wife arrived home from England last week, having spent the summer in the "high little island." Mr. Nicholls seems home-feeling well, and just as enthusiastic for McKinley as he was four years ago. Mr. Nicholls went across the channel and took in the Paris exposition, and everywhere imbibed the influence of American prestige.

—Mr. Bryan, in his speech in New York city last week, used these words: "Street is Tammany, and Croker is the people." Croker made his citizenship by blackmailing houses of prostitution and gambling dens. How do you like it, democrats? If Bryan is elected, it will be by the electoral vote of New York, and if New York goes for Bryan it will be Tammany that carries it. Who for a moment doubts that Croker will be rewarded, in that event.

—The second teachers' rally will be held in the high school building in this city on Saturday, Nov. 3, 1900, beginning at 9:00 a. m. Mr. J. M. Not coming home in the evening, search was made, and his body found on the bottom of the lake, near the dock. The funeral was from the residence Monday afternoon. The U. S. lighthouse tender Hollyhock, with Commander symonds, inspector and wife on board, was in port Tuesday.

The steamboiler Normandie came into port Saturday evening, and her owner, Wm. Ingalls, spent the night as the guest of his uncle, Capt. P. D. Campbell.

The schooner Sea Gem went to the north shore yesterday with a full load of supplies for the lumbering camp of Crane & Whitney, Sons and Pearson & Son. Maurice Crane and L. S. Seward along with the outfit.

The steamer Joe spent a lively session for short pipe at St. James on her arrival there last Thursday, and the tug Ryan came over alongside of her "sans" keeping her company with the pickups. She was hauled out here Monday.

Andrew Henrickson, cook of the schooner Bert Barnes, arriving here Saturday, is missing. He left the schooner Saturday night, and the last seen of him was on the bridge. His clothes and other personal effects are still on the vessel. The captain says Henrickson was "off" mentally, and was brooding over family troubles.

Capt. S. Stevens A. Hess, of Chicago, manufacturer of ladies suits, cloaks, furs, waists and skirts, have established a permanent agency in Charlevoix, and Mrs. F. H. —Chicago special: The schooner Oneida, with a cargo of lumber from Pine lake to this city, arrived behind the break water the other morning looking badly and with the crew in a worn out condition by 36 hours work at the pumps. The schooner was bound down the east shore Monday and was struck by the gale off Muskegon. She was carried far out of her course by the wind, and it was with great difficulty that the crew could keep her afloat until she reached port.

A Practician.

In announcing the object of the popular sunday evening services at the Congregational church, the pastor is apparently misunderstood by a few. He has heard it said that the object of these services was to draw from the other churches. He sought from the pulpit, to correct such false impression, but his frank and honest statement was by one or two, interpreted as meaning that they were not wanted under any circumstances. The pastor says that these services are cordially free as all the services of the church are, and that all visitors and strangers will be heartily welcomed at any time to anything of good in these evening services, but he does wish it understood that neither he nor the Men's Auxiliary wish to attract from the other churches. Even if this were possible, he would consider it unworthy and insane and it would be simply a case of wedding Peter to pay Paul. Mr. Hymap has felt keenly for some time that in a few people considering the population of the village, attend divine services regularly, and the popular Sunday evening service is simply a fair attempt to meet what he calls a want in Charlevoix. He is in any new thing with Mr. Hymap, too being the eighth season he has held psa such meetings.

FATHER SHOOTS SON.

PATHETIC INCIDENT OF WAR IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Young Man Was Stolen to Influence his Chinese Father and Had Become an Officer in Aguinaldo's Army—Was Charged Associated with a Dacoit.

Mr. Charles A. Gaskill, who was killed in the battle of Paoay, on the morning of 1899 with the Nebraska regiment, is the son of Mr. Charles A. Gaskill, of Lincoln, Neb., and a nephew of the late Senator Charles F. Manderson. The young man was a boy when his father died, and was adopted by his uncle, Senator Manderson, who gave him the name of his father. The young man was educated in the Lincoln schools and at Nebraska University, from which institution he graduated in the class of 1896. Soon after his graduation he left his home in Lincoln, and his whereabouts was unknown to his relatives for the space of three years. Inquiries made at the Chinese legation in Washington elicited the information that the young man had been stolen from his home by a Chinaman who had a grudge against his father. The Chinaman had taken the young man to the Philippines, where he had become an officer in the army of Aguinaldo, and was charged with being associated with a dacoit band. The young man was found in the Philippines by his father, who had gone there in the service of the United States army, and upon his return to his home in Lincoln he related the story of his adventures. The young man was with Aguinaldo's army when the Nebraska regiment came to the Philippines, and was in the battle of Paoay when he was killed by the fire of his father's regiment. The young man was a great favorite with his father's regiment, and when the news of his death was received there it caused the deepest sorrow among the officers and men who had known him as a comrade. The young man was a fine shot, and was a great favorite among the men of his company on account of his skill with the rifle. The young man was a good horseman, and was a fine athlete, being a member of the university athletic team while he was a student here. The young man was a nephew of Mrs. Charles F. Manderson, of Omaha, and a cousin of Miss Lucile Gaskill, who was married last fall to Lieutenant Hugh L. Scott, of the Seventh cavalry, who is now in the Philippines. Mrs. Manderson received a cablegram from her husband in the Philippines a few days after the young man's death, in which the General said that he had found the young man in the service of Aguinaldo, and had taken him from his command and brought him home with him. The young man had been in the service of Aguinaldo for more than two years, and was in the battle of Paoay when he was killed. The young man had been stolen from his home when he was a boy of 12 years of age by a Chinaman who had a grudge against his father, who was then in the service of the United States army in the Philippines. The young man was taken to the Philippines by the Chinaman, and was there educated in the Chinese language, and was made a member of the family of Aguinaldo. The young man was a favorite with the family of Aguinaldo, and was treated as a member of the family. The young man was a fine linguist, speaking the native language of the Philippines as well as he did his own language. The young man was a fine athlete, being a member of the university athletic team while he was a student here. The young man was a great favorite among his fellow students here, and his death was a great shock to them when they heard of it. The young man was a great favorite among his comrades in the army

GREAT INCREASE.

Farm Values Have Been Improved to a Marvelous Extent.

Gain of Over a Billion Dollars for Farmers So Far This Year.

Prices They Received as Compared with Those of Former Democratic Times.

Convincing Argument in Favor of the Election of McKinley and Roosevelt.

The farmers are enjoying a remarkable era of prosperity under the regime of protection at home and equal protection abroad, which brings to the producing classes the best set of markets at home and in foreign across the sea.

Farm products in the United States in 1899 are worth $2,912,000,000 against $2,312,000,000 in 1896.

These figures are official, and are from the United States department of agriculture.

The increase comes in more crops and in the aggregate value of products on the farms. The gain in farm wealth is shown in the following table:

Increase in nine crops.....$ 749,776,617
Increase in live stock.....$ 150,000,000
Total gain to farmers.....$1,213,107,000

The value on the farm of the nine principal crops raised in the United States was $1,663,000,000 larger this year than in 1896.

The figures are supplied by the department of agriculture, those for 1896 having been carefully revised. The details by crops follow:

FARM VALUES.

Crops.	1896.	1899.	Gain.
Corn	$251,000,000	$400,000,000	$149,000,000
Wheat	225,000,000	300,000,000	75,000,000
Oats	115,000,000	150,000,000	35,000,000
Barley	15,000,000	25,000,000	10,000,000
Rye	10,000,000	15,000,000	5,000,000
Buckwheat	6,000,000	8,000,000	2,000,000
Potatoes	68,000,000	125,000,000	57,000,000

Notwithstanding increased crops farmers received more money for them in 1899 than they did in 1896, under Republican rule. This year the farmer has had offered to buy farm products in his neighborhood at prices more than they did in 1896, under Democratic rule, and yet he is better off. This year the farmer has had his crops sold at prices which have enabled him to pay his debts and still have money left for himself and family.

The farmers have also gained over $600,000,000 this year in the value of their live stock as compared with 1896, according to the department of agriculture's figures. Thus we have, for this year, $398,000,000 in crops more than in 1896, and $150,000,000 in live stock.

Total gain.....$1,213,107,000

This is the gain to farmers under protection.

The farmers will not throw away the substance for the shadow. They will vote for a continuance of republican prosperity as against a return of Democratic adversity. They will vote for McKinley and Roosevelt. They will not vote for Bryan or Stevenson.

FOR THE ENTERPRISING.

Good Prospects for Profitable Investment in the Philippine Islands.

A most promising field of enterprise is being investigated by agents of United States department of agriculture in the Philippine islands. It is the opinion of the former that can be successfully grown by the southern plantations and the archipelago. If the experiments now undertaken prove satisfactory, the opportunities for enterprise in opening the country's domestic industry will be greatly widening, the imports in fiber being $18,000,000, while time the year ended June 30, 1897, there were twelve ships, of 21,000 tons, in the trade, and it is growing at a still greater ratio.

Commercial Expansion.

A union of 40 years looked with 1,000 miles of iron rails with transportation on the five roads. The rails are ready for the Sandwich and will be transhipped at New York.

The train bears a signal. The Transcontinental Pacific, Prosperity and Protection, Prosperity and Protection.

The train will over the Lake Shore and, as a walking reply to the Bryan chatterbox, will carry the news of the prosperity of a nation and that welcome to the shrick.

Destroying Germs in Africa.

Complicate continue to come from Africa of the systematic and prodigal destruction of great game. A correspondent writing to London from Delhi, in Portuguese East Africa, to say that unless some prompt action is taken the district through which the Urbal railroad passes will soon be denuded of all animal life, which abounded upon it a little while ago.

BRYAN'S GREENBACK IDEA.

It Is Similar to the National Debt Paying Scheme Among Hack to 1865.

The Bryan financial scheme is apparently the grand old idea that carried the Democracy of 1865 off their feet in 1868, and that was simply to print enough greenbacks to pay of the national debt and have done with it. This beautiful thought had a sensibly in the convention that nominated Seymour and Blair. The national convention referred to was this:

Energetic Greenbacker opened the talk to saying: "Hello, you here; don't you think you want some greenbacks? Don't you think we all ought to have some more money?"

Second Citizen (speaking mildly)—Well, yes, I think I'd like to have some more money, sure.

Energetic Citizen and Leading Democrat—Well, then, why don't you help us have it? What are you standing around for? Why don't you come and go with us? You want more money, and I want more money. If we all stay we can have it, can't we? And the people going to vote this country any more? If we can print the money then it prints it, won't they? You believe that, don't you?

Second Citizen—But how about redeeming it? How about paying it up?

Leading Democrat (spoke)—Redeem it! What the devil do you want to redeem it for? Let it remain out and print more of it!

Now that was the grand old way of paying the national debt in '68. It doesn't look unlikely that Mr Bryan will have to make that the paramount issue in this campaign after all, for there will be wildfire in the woods about the greenbacks in the Democratic press and the Mouse Outcries in Ada.—Muse Blanket.

CORN CONSUMPTION.

What Business Activity Means to Farmers Who Feed Millions of Wage Workers.

The corn crop of the United States will future to the farmers more money in 1899 than ever before. The department of agriculture reports the price of corn during the first week of September to more than double what it was in 1896 and much higher than at any corresponding date since that time. This increased price is due both to the increased consumption at home and the efforts made by Sec. say Wilson, the present head of the department of agriculture, for an enlarged market of American markets abroad.

With business activity and people in work, the home market is by far the best for the American farmer, while with business depression, factories closed, mines running on half time, railroads with light earnings and a reduction of employes, the consumption and prices in the home market are correspondingly reduced. This is illustrated by the fact that the home consumption of corn fell off tremendously in 1896 under the Democratic tariff, so that the price of corn in October of the close of the Cleveland administration, the last full year under Democratic rule, was less than one half what it is today.

DENSMORE TYPE-WRITER

Charlevoix Sentinel.
WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

A Remarkable Letter.

In the columns of the local populist organ, Mr. Harrison Herdan, ex sheriff and ex postmaster, addresses a letter to the editor of this paper. He apologizes for using the aforesaid populist paper, on the ground that the Sentinel refused to publish it. This is about the only true statement made by Mr. Herdan in his letter. In fact we have to apology to offer. Knowing Mr. Herdan as we do, we could not consistently publish anything to which his name is attached.

The distinguished and scholarly roughnecks who prepared the letter for Mr. Herdan's signature did his work well, as usual, and when Mr. Herdan took his pencil in hand to sign it, he attached his name to as brilliant a collection of campaign lies as ever appeared in the aforesaid populist organ and that is saying a good deal.

The letter is intended to impeach the republican county ticket, and charges it nominees with all manner of political corruption in securing their several nominations. The fair solution is only the whine of the defeated, and to the discerning political mind suggests that with Bert Weiland as sheriff and Harrison Herdan as ex doe sheriff, Herdan's relief would be at peace for the next two years.

Now as to the several counts in Herdan's indictment. He charges that "Votes in the Township are bought, delivered in blocks, themselves in advance, calling a map convention, find their successors field cap in advance." Now that this some town in caucuses were held at all the delegates simply appointing themselves.

Every word of this charge is false in every township caucuses were legally held, and delegates elected. In only one township has a question been raised as to regularity, and that is Boyne Valley. In that township there was a mix-up as to dates, but the opposition to the "ring" Mr. Herdan speaks of were out. We know nothing to challenge the delegates, and voting against the "combination" from start to finish. Mr. Herdan lays much stress upon his defeat for the office of sheriff, and charges treachery against Pearson and the Republican county committee. He states that in that campaign a meeting of the committee was held in the office of the chairman, and that he (Herdan), the first was phoney, that Wm. Harris was present with bogus ballots printed for that purpose.

The chairman of the county committee at that time was Fred W. Magnus, now circuit judge. Judge Magnus personally authorizes this page to say that the statement is absolutely false; that he and the committee were loyal to Herdan throughout the campaign. Indeed, this we personally know to be true.

Wm. Harris, who is charged with using or having bogus tickets, this telephone at this writing that the statement is not true, that he did not have, nor encourage the use of such ballots, and did not conspire to defeat Herdan.

Harrison Herdan was not defeated by W. J. Pearson, he was defeated by himself because of his attitude toward organized labor, and because of his disloyalty to others on the ticket. He courted defeat and he suffered it. We believe now that he deserved it. Although he was defeated by a gambler, that gambler was never known to betray a friend or trade a man in his place. Knowing both men, we would to-day prefer Sam Jesse to Harrison Herdan, and would trust him further.

The tack asset a "soap convention" is the slimest nonsense. No convention was ever held in this county with a favor representation, and we challenge Mr. Herdan to produce the evidence that there was any delegate in that convention that was not legally entitled to be seat.

Mr. Herdan says the editor of this paper "will many nice things at him when he was a candidate for sheriff." This is one of the lies he attempts to say that we forget to credit him with in the cause. Yes we did say many nice things of him, and if Mr. Herdan meant what he said, he has some time given us credit for first bringing him to the front as a candidate for sheriff. But the people of Charlevoix are familiar with the true treachery and ingratitude with which Mr. Herdan repaid these services and subsequent magnanimous generosity. Mr. Herdan should not talk of treachery, for Harrison Herdan and treachery mean the same thing. He is incapable of loyalty or generosity, and knows his treats against W. J. Pearson, an honest man, will fall of its object.

Mr. Herdan addressed his letter to the editor of this paper. He has his answer.

What's Your Face Worth?

Scarcely a day passes but news, it is to have a valuable complexion, a pure fresh look, with pleasing clear color on the skin—all signs of Liver Trouble. But by King's New Life Pills you give clear skin, bright clear, rich complexion. Only 25 cents at Hines' drug store.

It Was a Runner.

Charlevoix county republicans have reason to be proud of the rally at Lewis Opera House last Monday night. The event was one that demonstrated emphatically that there is no republican apathy here, and that republicans are in dead earnest.

Phillip T. Colgrove, of Hastings, was the speaker. Maple Green introduced the speaker, and for more than an hour Mr. Colgrove punctured the populistic doctrines of Democracy and fortifying his arguments by facts of record. The speaker had his audience in full sympathy with him from the start, and manifestations of approval were frequent and generous.

Hon. A. B. Darrah, of St. Louis, republican candidate for congressman, was on the stage, and was introduced by the chairman. Mr. Darrah spoke but briefly, but impressed the audience as a level headed, candid and well tempered man.

Three quartets furnished excellent campaign music—the "Charlevoix McKinley Carnation Quartet," the Boyne City Ladies Quartette, and the Boyne City McKinley Male Quartet. A good delegation was present from Boyne City, and East Jordan came down 150 strong, with a band and a good sized uniformed contingent was included in the crowd.

Don't suffer with Coughs, Colds, or any Throat, Chest or Lung trouble when you can be cured so easily. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. E. Hines & Co's drug store.

From The Philippines.

Lucban, P. I., Feb. 2, 1900.

Dear Hines: My Hoss. Was pleased and somewhat surprised to get a letter from home yesterday. It came on a regular mail steamer via Hong Kong and as no transport was known to have come in we were not expecting mail.

You may set your mind at rest about the heat over here. The weather was all over six weeks ago. Of course it is warm out in the sun all any time, but the sun doesn't bother much to-day, although for some reason the rainy season has been postponed and we have had but one rain that really amounted to anything about five days; the summer quinos I guess. We get more or less of a shower every day, but nothing worth kicking about.

An good job are having at least a degree of success with your seeds. Lots of water won't hurt anything except perhaps the crazy cucumber plant, with a stiff knee for the rest of his life.

On Thursday morning it was found that the corporal who was company clerk, and under where I worked, had gone through the "regt" sergeant's trousers, taken $160 which he was keeping for the civilian treasurer at this post, and shipped for Manila, where he was captured later the same day in all the glory of a snowy civilian suit, en route for Hong Kong. He is now in durance vile, while I go on doing all the work in the office as before. Seems to me there were two or three other mishaps that week, but they have slipped my mind.

Last week was quite week, and I had lots of work to keep me busy, but this week I am quite at leisure. Last night one of our sergeants was taken sick and we had to send the mounted men to Mayamayan for medicine, a trip of about four and a half miles, which they made in jig time. Except such little things, life here has been pretty dull for a few weeks past. Not much rain yet, and not much hope of China unless something more turns up. The hops all think that the men over here should be given a chance and if they send new troops from the states they should be sent here and let us go to China.

You folks don't want to retain the idea that this climate is not healthy. We have only four per cent of our men prostrate in the Philippines about sick, and other companies are in about as good condition. Now that we are all acclimated, I don't think we could be in a much more healthy climate. Some of the ideas in the states are like old maps, where unknown regions are marked up necus birds, snarls and reptiles.

I hear that "Ol" company, at Balacan, had a little scrap last night. Dewime they went out in the swamps to get it, and did most of the scrapping at that, as it is known that detachments of "B" and "M" companies were out somewhere in the region of Balacan. "B" company had an attack at Polo, where their second platoon is a few nights ago. A cossack outpost was attacked and when "a garrison got out in the trenches, the Dagos ran round pronto."

Got a letter from you about the time of the Maccabee celebration, a day or two ago. Am waiting anxiously for those photos to come; and if a tin cracker box of oatmeal cookies should come, would go into "complications" I expect.

Had a rather unpleasant drug to perform the other day. One of our best boys—a quiet, good natured chap, who never interfered with anyone, was with us on the last scouting trip and was one of the squad which searched the native village. The detail for relics got the better of his discretion, and he took some gold or silver ornaments off the altars (probably the latter ornaments I should imagine, to decorate an image of the Virgin Mary. The native reported the fact to the officer in charge and identified them. He was tried and sentenced to dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and one year confinement. I made out the papers and yesterday corporal Coyle took him to San Fernando to be transported to San Isidro, where a military prison has been established. Corporal Coyle brought back from headquarters a number of different rumors about the DMM morning, how much truth there is in them only time will tell.

Sept. 6.—The aforesaid rumors haven't panned out exactly as yet, and here is another month gone by and another pay day almost in sight. And the price has not been finished yet. Monday afternoon Sergt. Young quit and myself by Corp. (who used to wear Frazer, a company clerk, to Binbid, Manila, where he will make his home for the next five years, a plain civilian prisoner. I made out papers in the forenoon. Yesterday I got back from Manila a short time before dinner and did nothing much the rest of the day, but this morning I started in to clean up unfinished business, for I have a clothing schedule to balance and put on the books, and another for the next quarter to make out, which I want to get finished by the 15th of the month. We have to make our own schedule by gluing together legal cap and ruling it by hand, which makes some thing of a job of it.

Captain Dwyer of this company, has been appointed Internal Revenue Collector for this district (5th of Dept. of New Luzon) and is up at headquarters, so the company is in charge of Lieut. Stogsdill, who has made a number of changes and stirred things up generally for the past couple of weeks.

Well, so long regards to all inquiring friends.

Yours As Ever,
GEORGE A. MCCARTNEY.

A Flourish Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. P. Collier, of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly ended his career. "I was troubled with a flourish attack, his back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, for all in a chair except he keeped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes it feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50 cents at F. E. Hines & Co's drug store.

Stopped Into Live Coals.

"When a child I burned my foot frightfully," writes W. H. Rach, of Jonesville, Va., "which pained horribly for years, but one box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured me. Other everything else fails." Infallible for Burns, Scalds, Cuts, Sores, Bruises and Piles. Sold by F. E. Hines & Co., 25 cents.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

A Remarkable Letter.

In the columns of the local populist organ, Mr. Harrison Berdan, ex-sheriff and ex-postmaster, addresses a letter to the editor of this paper. He apologizes for using the aforesaid populist paper, on the ground that the Sentinel refused to publish it. True to about the only true statement made by Mr. Berdan in his letter the editor of this paper will have no apology to offer. Knowing Mr. Berdan as we do, we could not consistently publish any thing to which his name is attached.

The distinguished and scholarly sangwump who prepared the screed for Mr. Berdan's signature did his work well, as usual, and when Mr. Berdan took his pencil in hand to sign it, he attached his name to as brilliant a collection of campaign lies as ever appeared in the aforesaid populist organ and that is saying a good deal.

The letter is intended to impeach the republican county ticket, and charges it nominees with all manner of political corruption in securing their several nominations. The final intimation is only the whine of the sore head, one in the discerning political mind suggests that with Jeff Weston as sheriff and Harrison Berdan as under sheriff, Berdan's mind would be at peace for the next two years.

Now as to the several counts in Berdan's indictment. He charges that "Gangs in the Democratic and Republican ranks showing themselves in advance, calling a snap convention, had their successes lined up in advance," and that "in some towns no caucuses were held at all, the delegates simply appointing themselves" etc.

Every word of this charge is false in every township caucuses were legally held, and delegates chosen. In only one township has a question been raised as to regularity, and that is Boyne Valley, in that township there was a mix-up as to dates, but the opposition to the "ring" Mr. Berdan speaks of, won out. Wm. Harris acting as chairman of the delegation, and voting against the "combination" from start to finish. Mr. Berdan represents Harris as a delegate from the office of sheriff, and charges treachery against Pearson and the Republican county committee. He states that at that campaign a meeting of the committee was held in the office of the chairman, and that his (Berdan's) defeat was planned, that Wm. Harris was present with Angus Gillies primed for that purpose.

The chairman of the county committee at that time was Fred W. Mayne, now circuit judge. Judge Mayne personally authorizes this purpose to say that the statement is absolutely false; that he and the committee were loyal to Berdan through out the campaign. Indeed this was personally known to be true.

Wm. Harris, who is charged with being a party to having begun ticket in telephone at this writing that the statement is not true; that he did not know, nor encourage the use of such ballots, and did not conspire to defeat Berdan.

Harrison Berdan was not defeated by W. J. Pearson, he was defeated by himself because of his attitude toward organized labor, and because of his disloyalty to others on the ticket. He counted defeat and he suffered it. We believe now that he deserved it. Although he was defeated by a gentleman and gentleman was never known to be an enemy to a friend or what a man is he knows. Knowing both men, we would today prefer Dan Jerue to Harrison Berdan; and would from time to time.

The talk about a "snap convention" is the blossom of nonsense. No convention was ever held in this county with a fairer representation, and we challenge Mr. Berdan to produce the evidence that there was one delegate in that convention that was not legally entitled to his seat.

Mr. Berdan says the editor of this paper "said many nice things of him when he was a candidate for sheriff." This is one of the few things he says that we forget to credit him with in the extract. Yes, we did say many nice things of him, and if Mr. Berdan cannot what he said, he has many times given us credit for first bringing him to the front as a candidate for sheriff. But the people of Charlevoix are familiar with the long Tomahawk and it gratitude with which Mr. Berdan repaid these services and subsequent magnanimous generosity. Mr. Berdan should not talk of treachery, for Harrison Berdan and treachery sound the same thing. He is incapable of loyalty or generosity, neither is his grade against W. J. Pearson, an honest man, will fall of its object.

Mr. Berdan addressed his letter to the editor of this paper. He has his answer.

Lawrence, Ind., Aug. 1, 1900.

DEAR UNCLE AT HOME—Was pleased and somewhat surprised to get a letter from home yesterday. It came on a regular mail steamer via Hong Kong and as no transport was known to have come in we were not expecting mail.

We may set your mind at rest about the heat over here. The hot weather was all over six weeks ago. Of course it is warm out in the sun at any time, but the sun doesn't bother much nowadays, although for some reason the rainy season has been postponed and we have had but one rain that really amounted to anything—about five days ago. Am glad you are having at least a degree of success with your seeds. Lots of water won't hurt anything except perhaps the crazy cucumber, though that's all bosom and seed in the early part of the dry season before the sun gets too hot and while the ground is yet moist and the dews are heavy, cold nights, etc.

August 7.—I have neglected finishing this letter and am not sure I shall finish it now, but will add a few lines just for luck, anyway.

A couple of weeks ago we had a week you might call and unlikely one in the first place, our cavalry, or rather of one belonging to a chino who was hired here to hunt away refugees and do such like jobs, but who had gone away on pass, was stolen from a lot near the convent, where he was pastured. It was quite a bold but not a very difficult think to do, and as the chino, whose title to the bull was more or less shadowy, has never made up, and as the gentleman who committed little and carts noting the talking days of the present unpleasantness, was known to be on the search for certain of his bulls and cents, which had not been turned in when the contract was cancelled, and furthermore, as six chinos were seen taking eight stolen bulls into Manila, it is strongly suspected that our friend got himself safely away and then sneaked back after his theft. This was on Sunday night.

On Tuesday morning an engine ran off the track near Marikina and our men and rations did not get into us till the afternoon. Then two of our mounted men, taking meat to Bocave bridge, galloped around a corner in the road and ran into a carromata, which driver was not thoughtful enough to turn to the right side (wrong side here) of the road. The shaft struck one of the horses in the rump and killed it both men were thrown, and private Stone, a Michigan man, who was wounded at San Mateo, split his knee cap, and will be up for a disability discharge as soon as well enough to leave the hospital, with a stiff knee for the rest of his life.

On Thursday morning it was found that the corporal who was company clerk, and under whom I worked, had gone through the "top" sergeant's trousers, taken $100 which he was keeping for the civilian teamster at this post, and skipped for Manila, where he was captured later the same day in all the glory of a snowy civilian suit, en route for Hong Kong. He is now in durance vile, while I go on doing all the work in the office as before. Seems to me there were two or three other mishaps that week, but they have slipped my mind.

The boys all think that the men over here should be given a choice and if they send new troops from the states they should be sent here and let us go to China.

You folks don't want to retain the idea that the climate is not beastly. We have only four per cent of our men present in the Philippines, almost sick, and other companies are in about as good condition. Now that we are all acclimated here, I don't think we could be in a much more happy climate. Some of the "boys" in the states are like old mags, where unknown regions are marked by hill, sand birds, beasts and pirates.

I hear that "M" company, at Balacan, had a little scrap last night. Presume they went out in the season to get it, and did most of the scrapping at that, as it is known that detachments of "E" and "M" companies were out somewhere in the region of Balacan. "E" company had an attack at Pilar, where their second platoon is a few nights ago. A cossack outpost was attacked and when the garrison got out in the trenches, the Dagos "vamoosed pronto."

Got a letter from you write at the time of the Manilas celebration, a day or two ago. Am waiting anxiously for those photos to come, and if a tin cracker box of oatmeal cookies should come, would go into "conniptions" I expect.

MR. BRYAN TOLD YOU.

Prophetic Predictions of the Wonderful Democratic Free Trade Wave in Force.

Mr. Bryan told you in 1896, didn't he, that if Mr. McKinley was elected there would be less and less money in circulation every year? We contend Mr. Bryan. He was absolutely wrong about the circulation. Here are the official figures of the Treasurer, Department:

Circulation per capita	1896.	1897.	1898.	1899.	1900.	1901.	1902.
Gold	$23.12	$23.19	$23.19	$23.71	$23.80	$24.61	$25.12
Silver	3.57	3.57	3.57	3.57	3.57	3.57	3.57
Paper	18.88	18.88	18.88	18.88	18.88	18.88	18.88
Total	$45.57	$45.64	$45.64	$46.16	$46.25	$47.06	$47.57

Not only is there more money in the United States in proportion to the population than there was four years ago but there is more money actually passing from hand to hand among the people than ever before.

It is now in process of Bonanza Silver coined.

REFUSES TO BE COMFORTED.

A Calamity Howler Who Was Put to a Desperate Resort for Complaint.

The following excerpt from the Kansas correspondence of the Northwestern Miller is a humorous description of a Democratic calamity howler:

"With granaries full to bursting and general prosperity abound in the land there is still a few gloomy members left. One from Kansas whose name unknown was called to the big wheat city, assured that your responsibility was great, for he was the only one left who had not sold his wheat. Not three big crops in bumper harvests on the land.

Business and Prosperity.

The Daily Stockholder of New York has published a statement which shows that dividends to the amount of $21,000,000 were paid by different corporations and manufacturing concerns on January 1 1903, the entire condition pro and contra in the Keystone State. This means that more men were employed, more wages paid and that the farmers had more supplies to furnish to the army of employees. It is a case of prosperity all around.

Friends of Money Colonel.

The friends of the man in the rear ended June 16 1896, was:

Friends of Money Colonel	$27,000,000
Friends of Bryan Free Silver	15,000,000
Total value	$42,000,000

This does not look like a shortage of money, and it does not look like the business of the country was in crisis.

Business Men and the Farmers.

The railroad company in the Dakotas, Montana and Idaho, are prosperous. Four years ago the average earnings per mile were $1,000 per month. The average is now $2,000. In every county in these states and adjacent to them the farmers and other producers are prosperous.

STRIKING AT PROSPERITY.

What the Government Lost When Democratic Free Trade Was in Force.

A business firm that would not learn its association of contracting business year after year at a loss, paying out more money each year than it had taken in, would certainly not engage in transacting business with other people. Yet money in circulation in business would be limited on the amount of the reserve capital or a material change in the methods of business. To our change the business methods only time conditions in wonderfun finding, it is to demand good goods and in the shelf change the doors and selling them out, or the capitalists that have been making good the losses planting other managers in charge before bankruptcy put an end to their career.

The same business methods should apply in government affairs that is applicable to private business. A government that is so short-sighted as to wish to continue in at loss business in control of government finances.

In income of the United States in the year of 1892 the receipts were less than the expenditures of the government and that is clear of peace.

In 1893 we came to more than we paid—$3,241,274—but our public debt increased $1,721.

In 1894 our expenditures exceeded our income $66,000,000, and our public debt increased $64,000,000; in other words we ran behind that year $66,000,000.

In 1895 we paid out more than we had $25,000,000 and our public debt increased $61,000,000 and ran in hole that year $125,000,000.

In 1896 the year Mr. McKinley was elected, we paid out in excess of our income $16,000,000. Within Wilson law, the law of the current business, we paid out $9,000,000 and our public debt increased $6,000,000, and we ran behind $25,000,000.

In 1897 we were paying out more than we were earning, we had to borrow some getting finance and money, and we borrowed money and paid out the money each year, while the mechanics and men working in European workshops were working night and day supplying the American market which our Democratic free trade Wilson law had opened.

If we pay up the business too we can see more plainly the bad effect of free trade.

Suppose it was a private firm or trust that was spending each year more than they were earning and each year piling up its indebtedness, and when that firm came to the creditors of the person who sold them raw material and who bought their goods on credit, conditions would vary much from those in the case of the credit of the indebted firm and the payer would be blacklisted and its credit gone.

And yet here we find the Democratic platform advocate the establishment of the free list. It is a blow at prosperity, and on a par with the other provisions of the disastrous party.

Experience does not teach them anything, and they cannot be trusted.

ANOTHER EVIDENCE.

Good Times Among Railroad Men Shown by Official Figures.

One of the chief points and sinews trunk railroad lines of the country is the Illinois Central, which has recently issued a remarkable statement showing the Illinois Pennsylvania Railway company to be the enormous increase in the amount of money paid employees in 1903 as compared with year. The statement was:

	1903.	1902.	Increase.
Miscellaneous	1,040	2,040	770
Total	$400,213	$400,213	$2,000,000
Total	$400,213	$400,213	$2,000,000

Other roads in the south and northwest make a similar showing.

The northwestern roads had gross earnings of $6,000,000 in August 1903, and the same roads showed gross earnings of $6,000,000. Yet the average rate of freight was less per ton mile (the cost of carrying one ton of freight one mile) and passenger rates were less. The increased business of these roads clearly demonstrates the difference between the Republican and Democratic principles.

INTEREST RATES LOWER.

Proof That There Is an Abundance of Money Seeking Investment.

To show our increased credit N. W. Harris & Co., of Chicago and New York, have figured out the net rates per annum that will be received from an investment in government and other bonds in 1896 and 1903:

	1896.	1903.
3 % government (or 1897)	3.3	2.9
Boston Mass. 4s	3.9	3.3
Chicago 4s	4.1	3.4

Minneapolis 5s	4.3	3.4
Omaha 4s	4.3	3.4

Our credit is better than that of any other nation on the earth. Our credit is better than it was four years ago. Our credit is better than it was in 1896. Our credit is better than it was in 1897. Our credit is better than it was in 1898. Our credit is better than it was in 1899. Our credit is better than it was in

DEFENDER IS SLAIN.

A CHICAGO MAN'S CHIVALRY COSTS HIM HIS LIFE.

Attempts a Hold Up While in Company with Friends and in Their Sight—Pleasure Excursion Turns Home as a Funeral.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Because he refused to allow a woman to be robbed in his company, Frank Hendricks, a young man of this city, was shot and instantly killed.

Hendricks had been out with a party of friends on a pleasure excursion. He was accompanied by his sister, who was his companion. As the party was returning to their homes they were passing through a lonely district when they were accosted by a highwayman who demanded their money. Hendricks refused to allow his companion to be robbed and was shot through the heart. The highwayman then ran and succeeded in escaping. The pleasure party turned their pleasure excursion into a funeral one and returned to their homes with the body of their companion.

The following is an extract from Harrison Benham's communication that was printed in the Courier last week:

"Mr. A. H. Strothers of Bayou was a member of the republican county committee at that time, and he recently told me how he dropped into the office of the chairman of the republican county committee one day during that campaign and found several members of the committee in consultation. Mr. William Harris had a bundle of bogus tickets in his hands with Dan Jerome's name printed thereon in place of the regular republican nominee. They told Mr. Strothers that they intended to beat Benham, and they did, using bogus tickets to accomplish it. This was done by connivance of the chairman and members of the republican county committee. Now mark me, this could not have been done if republicans who love fair play and adhere to honest ballot methods, come out squarely and vote and show up things."

Now, Mr. Editor, this happened many years ago and is rather ancient history. I merely remember nothing of the meeting held at the office of the chairman of the county committee in the November election, but I remember distinctly about the republican ticket, adhere and feel certain nothing of the kind took place in the manner charged. But waiving all that, and allowing it all to be true, there is no parallel between the case and the present one.

Everyone knows that at that time and for years before and after, we were classed in a blue money state, night that was raging heavily between Thomas Jordan and Royce City. The standing of a short time considered of important force in the situation. Dairy lines were unfettered and counties were established, more or less, for years. Dan Jerome was a democrat and lived at East Jordan. Harrison Benham was a republican and lived at Charlevoix. The sentiment at Charlevoix was almost evenly divided between Jordan and Royce City. Dan Jordan was known to be in favor of Royce City. The result was that nearly every republican who favored East Jordan voted for Dan Jerome, and most of the democrats who favored Royce City voted for Benham. They did not vote in this way from any personal feeling toward either of the candidates. It was purely a county seat fight.

My town was four or five to one in favor of East Jordan. I, as a citizen, looked up the records, but presume very many of the republicans voted for Jerome. I am sure I did, but it was not because I thought Jerome the best man or that I had anything against friend Benham, only he was on the wrong side of the line in the fight, and I have never supposed that he thought anything done on that side was anything personal to himself or that it was so I was concerned in it.

One word as to the bogus tickets in issue. There were no bogus tickets in those days; everything went that; there were no official ballots; the candidates furnished and voters for their own, and they were printed in all manner of forms. So there is not much doubt that tickets were used with Dan Jerome's name on the republican one for sheriff, and the chances are that Benham's name, by a similar process, got on the democratic ticket, for our friends in the east needed no polaters from us on that question.

It has been my fortune, whether good or bad, to have always, from start to finish, been connected more than anyone other, personally, with the county seat fight. I did all I could in the matter for Charlevoix and Dan Jordan against Boyne City, and my friends in the east expected me to and did not blame me for it. As to the fairness of the last republican county convention, no fairer one was ever held by either party in this county. All the time was given in the call for a county convention that could have been given under the state call.

This much I will say, however. I was opposed to having the county offices and the delegates to the several conventions elected at the same time, and think the county committee ought not to have made the change, and if I had been present I would have voted against it. But the candidates were were all fairly nominated and I know of no reason why they should not all receive the hearty support of every republican in the county. This is not a county seat fight, but a square fight on party lines. The men are all well known on both tickets, all good men, and I see no good reason for either side to scratch.

I am not writing this in defense of anyone in particular. All of the candidates are abundantly able to defend themselves. Of course, friend Smith of THE SENTINEL needs no help from me, as he is about the only consistent, or, I may say, sane consistent, one of us. He was on the Boyne City side and a warm supporter of Jordan. He said hard things against Jerome then and is not taking anything back now. Friend Smith was so much of a partisan for Boyne City it was near treason that he wrote the publish an article favorable to the county seat removing of Dan Jordan, and I had to have it published in the Democrat and Enterprise, and I was his regular correspondent from Norwood and had been for years. But the editor of the SENTINEL knows the difference between a vote on county seat matters, where no political lines are drawn, and one as at present, where it is a square party fight, and no local issues involved. Just as the presidential year in which every good and loyal republican and democrat is expected to step up smiling to the polls and deposit a straight ticket from top to bottom. There is much more that might be said on this question, but this article is already too long.

In conclusion I wish only to reiterate the statement made at the beginning, that the present case is in no sense similar to Benham's fight for county seat against Jerome during the county seat trouble.

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Hare, a leading druggist of Belleville, Ill., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in twenty years. You know why? Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tone up the stomach, regulate liver, kidneys and bowels, purify the blood, strengthen the nerves. Insure more happiness of mankind." It builds up the entire system. From The Philippines.

Jaluanday Cocoson, Barrio of Lolomboy, Pueblo of Bocaue, Province of Bulacan, Island of Luzon P. I.

MR. HINES HINES—The stove date line may appear rather prolix, but it is just what we are entitled to put at the head of our letters. Let Lolomboy Cocoson stand for the street and number, as it might do in the states; Barrio of Lolomboy, connect from the cocoanuts, "Lo" not "Lo," which by rights is not a cocoanut, but a nomenclatory. "Lo" being nonsense and "la" feminine, and "Lomboy" meaning an institution of learning, something like our seminary. This was a quite well known school, since several of the Filipino leaders received the foundation of their education, which was at times surprised in Spain, of course being conducted by the religious orders as are all Spanish educational institutions equals college of Lolomboy; in the township of Pueblo of Bocaue. The nomination of a justice of the peace, alias and may be large or small, depending quite a number of barrios or villages, of any old size at all, the main barrio, if of the same name as the pueblo, as in this case, or other wise, called barrio of "Poblacion," or as English it would mean the village of population, from which other papers were issued and legal notices published, and where the municipal business was transacted. I guess you all understand, is some thing less than a state and more than a county, and yet bears a relation to the central government more like that of a colony to a state, than of one of our states to the U. S. government. The balance of the address will explain itself.

Everything is as quiet here as Sunday in a graveyard. One day is as much like another that I have to mark my calendar every morning, and then I am not sure that I did not forget it yesterday or the day before, until Saturday inspection comes around. I have found one place where politics don't penetrate. Once in a while just after a mail from the states, some of the fellows will discuss political news as they get it from papers from 35 to 40 days old, but it doesn't last long.

Last night we had a little excitement. I went to bed at 8:30, taps, but had not yet gotten to sleep, when I heard some one hurry down the hall and a moment later "Call to Arms" sounded. I grabbed rest for my shoes, and when I didn't find them within two inches of where I thought they should be, I had to get my inspection shoes down from the nail at the head of my bed. These I got into, shoved the strings inside without tacing, reached for my trousers and got hold of a canteen or a shirt, or something that didn't feel like trousers, which I threw down in disgust; next I grabbed my cartridge belt and clapped it on over my drawers, when the idea struck me that perhaps we might have to stay out in the rice paddies 'till morning, in which case drawers might not be very comforting, so I made a second search and got into the pants all right, hooked 100 rounds cal. 30 ammunition, and was down stairs in time to fall in next the guard on the right of the company, over that men failed to be out promptly—one was old Dad Harris who ought to be on the sick list both if he isn't, and is on it most of the time, one was a recruit who, because we have to stand all calls in full khaki uniform, didn't dare come down 'till he had his leggings on, and another recruit slept all through the racket. Of course it was only a drill, but it might have meant an attack at one of the outposts. If the attack had been here, Mauser volleys rattling through the quarters would have had the fellows out and scrapping before the bugle call could have been sounded, as flashing the bugle was never thought of until next morning when reveille was blown, after the fellows wished the wind jammers anywhere else, as was only natural after three or four hours in wet trenches. We got back to our bunks about 11:00 p. m. You should have heard the "bugs" growl. "Been over here scrapping for two years, and now they want to drill us like a lot of recruits in the states." The Lieut. said that it wouldn't happen again unless it meant business, so I suppose we won't hear it again, unless by some freak or crook, we get another raid. Lieut. from the states. When it comes to an actual scrap over here the bugles are about as useful as the officers' swords which are packed away in Manila, though usual does sound pretty good after you have waded through about three miles of rice paddies at double time, and never seen a chance for a shot.

We running pretty steady just about now, though so far, we have had a pretty nice rainy season, and a couple more months will probably finish it up. Am in hopes we will come in a new post as soon as the Volunteers begin to move.

In Manila a week ago, the transport California, with two battalions of cavalry, were given up for lost; but Monday she was sighted up at the north end of the island going at a rate which would seem to indicate that she was crippled, but anyway the rebel was great.

Sept. 17.—Last Tuesday night our Two Lieuts. and 35 men, (guess they included) left for a little scouting on our own account. Reports have been coming in pretty regularly of insurgents massing between the railroad and the mountains, and Lt. Stagdall said we would have to show them that we were not asleep; so after call to quarters (7:00) a detail was made out and at 9 p. m. we started. We marched through Pretas, a small barrio about the size of your town, and a pretty good place to expect an attack—not large enough to demand a garrison, yet a regular gathering and hiding place for insurgents and insurgents. The next barrio, Lasan, in time was reached and searched, and just as we had finished our search rockets went up from several places in the vicinity, and as we were a small force in an early teasing country, we were ordered to start back. We went through the town on our return and just as we reached a clearing on the edge of the town, natives were seen to cross the road on the opposite side of the clearing, and it appeared very much like a line forming on the edge of the brush, to catch us on our way back. We halted and formed a skirmish line and gave one volley that sounded like one shot, re-formed on the road and went along about our business. We got home about 3 a. m., after a march of a long sixteen miles through all kinds of mud and over rocks, through creeks and through places where a dozen men could have wiped out one half of us at one volley, and taken their time to fick up the other half, we had shown them that we were alive if nothing more, and got back without any trouble. The next day the most of us slept the sleep of the exhausted; but at 1 a. m. on the 19th two lieutenants and 60 men left in Santa Cruz and repeated the trip we made in August to Calauan under Capt. McRae. I did not go, as I had too much office work to do. They brought back a lieutenant and one soldier of the insurgents, but they could not even a shot out of the bunch of Aetagis surrounds that were in the barrio.

On the 14th and 15th it was given out that the Americanos were to be wiped off the earth, and the insurgent was the point to attack. Several places along the line were attacked, but with no results from a gun point of view. Several dead insurgents were found, with indications of numerous dead or wounded carried away. Two American slightly wounded in all the excursions I have heard of on our side. At Bulacan they drove in the outpost on the new bridge, which principally have been all summer building, and burned it. However prisoners are easy to get and eligibles for positions under a guard are very numerous, so Capt. Day would have much trouble to replace it so far as the labor is concerned. The bridge have been renewed the last two nights, and the men in the quarters have been ready to turn out at the drop of the hat. Nothing has happened on our side, so far, though the natives have left the towns where there are strong so as to be out of the range of fire, which is the strongest indication we have of an intended attack.

He is a tasty bird, and is the chief plan cock of the walk at this writing. He crowed for Stafford, Hayes, Harrison and McKinley, and the time he sells Billy Pearson and Mac Harris to the line.

McKinley will have a majority in Congress to back him.

Lame-ducks give the republican majority in the house as 51. The present majority is 12.

Gov. Pingree's majority in Michigan is about 75,000.

Michigan has a solid republican congressional delegation, and the legislature is almost exclusively republican.

Kansas and Nebraska are yet claimed by both parties.

Bryan and Stevenson's respective voting precincts both went against them.

MARTIN HERMANN'S WILL

By MAJ. ALFRED ROCHEFORT.

(Copyright, 1896, by Robert Bonner's Sons.)

Meanwhile Mary and Mrs. Gray had left the hall and fled, as the music began, expressed enough to the consciousness of the amount she was feeling that they could.

Mabel, who seemed very nervous, went off after supper, she explained to Lady Gray, to her room to write letters.

Lady Gray was sorry, she said, that Mabel had to write letters, as she had hoped to have had her all to herself for a long evening. Starting on the morrow, she was sorry to leave her, and they had hardly had a long enough talk from time to time. Mabel was a dear, she was sure, and she was so glad that Mary was her friend.

"And he did not let me see anything through his surprise to do so even nearly as well as I should have done it myself," said Mary, with a little sigh.

"He was so kind and determined all the while, as I knew he would be. But I say, Mrs. Chandler agreed, it is all up now between us."

He is in the library, replied Chandler, but I do not think you have time for more than a few minutes, if you are to be dressed and downstairs by half past eight."

"Oh, I am quite ready, I have been dressed ever since tea," said Mary, as she flew upstairs, leaving the servant and the footman to put the lights out and follow at their leisure.

Mary was in her own room, and Chandler was just coming to her assistance, when she was stopped by the sound of her mistress's voice, and she had to go to her room instead. Mrs. Chandler was very sorry, but she was nothing, when her mistress was in such a state, accustomed to her as she was, to be of any use to her. Mrs. Chandler was very sorry, she was sure, but she was quite sure that Mr. Hermann would not wait, and she had promised Miss Mary to be ready.

Mrs. Chandler was in a state of nervous excitement, and was quite unable to see that her mistress was in any state of nervous excitement herself. Mrs. Chandler was very sorry, she was sure, but she was quite sure that Mr. Hermann would not wait, and she had promised Miss Mary to be ready.

"Oh, I am ready enough," said Mrs. Gray, at last, in a tone of exasperation, and Mrs. Chandler was free to go to her young charge.

"Mr. Hermann is waiting in the library, Miss Mary," said Mrs. Chandler, as she entered her room, and she was quite right, for he was.

Mary was in no hurry to leave her room, and she was not in any hurry to see Hermann, for she was very nervous and very shy, and she was very much ashamed of the scene that had taken place between them in the morning, and of the way in which she had behaved to him afterward. She was very much ashamed of herself, and very much afraid that he was ashamed of her, too, and that he would be very shy and cold to her, and that he would be very glad to be rid of her, and to go back to his own life, and to forget all about her and her folly.

She was very much afraid that he would be very glad to be rid of her, and to go back to his own life, and to forget all about her and her folly, and that he would be very shy and cold to her, and

THE COUNTY TICKET.

Every Man On The Republican County Ticket Elected.

Charlevoix county gave some 1,100 republican majority on National, State, Congressional, Senatorial and Representative.

Every man on the county ticket was elected by majorities ranging from 600 to 1,100. And this was in spite of a dense overhead mugwump combination against it that stopped at nothing in its work. Slanders, and outlandish in the shape of newspapers lies of the endless chain variety, and most unscrupulous campaign methods were used, and yet the republicans went through with flying colors. Hyzer and his choice in New York, and Brooks and his Weikel and Bartlett in Charlevoix

W. H. Miller, our Herald,[1] car cried Charlevoix over Mr. Hayes in spite of the dirty work of his colleague, but Heretiel Miller is an honest man.

There were some surprises Hayes, however, among our republican line, and in certain other towns the republican guns are emphasized.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the figures by townships.

The Great Result.

The democrats were aided in their fight against the republican county ticket by a so-called republican clique that has its fountain head in Charlevoix, and the campaign of the party of the republican was conducted with a venom unprecedented in the political history of the county.

The chief charge made was that the convention that nominated the ticket and the caucuses that preceded it were managed by a "ring" that corruption and trickery governed all.

Now that election has passed we have to say in all candor that never was a charge more groundless. Every township was legally represented, and the convention itself was regular and legal. No question was raised in the convention, and no delegate's right to sit there challenged. We even now challenge a refutation of this statement.

But there is one cold fact in politics upon which the lovers of "ring" go up and down and always those who, in the party fend, wield it, and pass it along. It is like the pebble thrown into the pool, it causes a ripple to the edge. Of course the democrats, the chief management of which in Charlevoix county is a most absolute ring, will gather in these "patriotic" and "highly moral" republicans. It was this class of republicans who, crying "ring rule" ran consistently into the arms of this precious Charlevoix county Center democracy. They heard the cry "ring" from the hardware store and take the pool the pebble was thrown.

Many, very many republicans throughout the county voted against their republican county ticket with any kind of a ring, but they just found the bay of the lizards and joined in the chase.

Lies virtual and the printed were scattered broadcast over the county in one of the latter being most vicious and unusually, but without avail.

Now the innocent republican voters who have been decoyed away from their party will have time to reflect and investigate. And then let them ask themselves why they should have Wentzel their ballots.

Spread Like Wildfire.

When things are "the best" they spread "like best selling." Thousands have a leading druggist of Bellevile, Mich., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in twenty years. You know why? A Good Game of Foot Ball.

The Charlevoix foot ball team covered itself with glory saturday, by winning the first game of foot ball from East Jordan by a score of 5 to 0. It was a good, fast, clean game throughout, both teams playing nothing but straight foot ball. Although the odds were 3 to 1 against Charlevoix, the outcome of the game was never in doubt after the first play. The East Jordan team played a pouty game and worked hard until the end. The Charlevoix line was like a stone wall in defense, while the backs repeatedly plowed up the East Jordan line. The tackling of Levinson was fierce and effective, his work several times keeping East Jordan from scoring.

Charlevoix won the toss, choosing the south goal. East Jordan kicked off to Charlevoix's 30 yard line. Covert brought the ball back 10 yards before he was tackled. Charlevoix advanced the ball 5 yards and then lost it on fumble. East Jordan gained ten yards and was given ten more on a foul, and then lost the ball on downs. The ball was carried back and fourth in Charlevoix's territory to the end of the half, neither side scoring.

The beginning of the second half Charlevoix kicked to East Jordan's 15 yard line and the ball was downed by a beautiful tackle by Engleden. East Jordan advanced the ball 15 yards and Charlevoix's side then held firm and the ball went over. Heath made a splendid run around end for 25 yds and by fine tackling, the ball was carried to East Jordan's 1 yard line where it was lost on downs. East Jordan gained 5 yards and was then held for downs, the ball going over. Burke then went through the line for 3 more yards and again for 1. Small to Hines & Co's.

School Commissioner's Column.
A. W. CHOW, COMM'R.

In one of the recent issues of an educational journal, the teachers attention was called to the fact that the primary school interest fund could not be used for any other purpose than the payment of teachers' wages, and the teacher should see to it that she received her full pro-rata. School boards always make provisions for paying the teacher. We have never known a loss to occur to the teacher through neglect of the school board. We are sorry to say that once in a while the teacher is made to carry the disinterestedness of the district. This is wrong. If the district commences the term of school with an empty treasury, the school board should make arrangements to borrow the money for the teacher's salary.

Under no contract she is entitled to her pay at the end of each month. Under provisions made by statute the district board has authority to borrow the money. In some cases the teacher is needlessly inconvenienced. She should not be compelled to wait two or three months until taxes are collected. As a general thing the school boards of this county make provisions for the prompt payment of the teacher's wage.

We hope no board of directors in the county will ask a teacher to wait one moment for her pay after it is due.

Great Luck of an Editor.

"For two years all efforts to cure Eczema in the palms of my hands failed," writes Editor H. N. Lester of Syracuse, Kan., "then I was wholly cured by Bucklen's Arnica Salve." In the world's best for eruptions, sores and all skin diseases. Cure the, at F. G. Hines & Co's.

was then pushed over for touchdown. Burke failed to kick a difficult goal. East Jordan kicked off to Charlevoix's 25 yard line; Levinson brought the ball back 10 yards before it was downed and Burke and Small went through for 5 and 3 yards. Covert went around the end for 5 yards more. Charlevoix lost the ball on a fumble at the end of time. Score 5 to 0 favor of Charlevoix. Time 1 00, attendance 300.

The work of the Charlevoix team is certainly to be commended as they have had little practice, while East Jordan has been playing for some time. The boys need some financial assistance, and the people of Charlevoix should subscribe liberally to the paper now being circulated for this purpose.

That Throbbing Headache would quickly leave you if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for sick and nervous headaches. They make pure blood and build up your health. Only 25c. Money back if not cured. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co. druggists.

Here is one for northern Michigan. The Michigan crop report for November says: The condition of wheat, as compared with an average, is 96 in the state, 95 in the southern, 95 in the central and 98 in the northern counties. The popular superstition in southern parts that northern Michigan cannot raise wheat is thus dispelled.

Just now the boys are playing Harry Lehr and the balance of that quartet that went after upper Michigan recently after ducks. They enjoyed much knowledge, fun, game, and saw no fun from civilization on the day following election that they didn't know whether they possessed that constitution. Mr. Wood, who owned the Lehr party, was accompanied by his wife and others, among the feathered and they bagged one amazing duck—a wood, presumably. But while they were far from neither and home, Jesse Hayes's business partner, took his girl one pleasant afternoon, went up to the lodge of Pine Lake, and tagged a fine mallard. Thus it is always the early good always seem always get your reward.

It will tell into the hotel page, and engage chamberlains to settle up for paper on a Chicago trip. We can discussing morning on the opinion of a couple, but cannot say time from the begin-ning of the recent campaign in the end the surviving did not once speak of any candidate on the democratic ticket, or any of the issues. What we said in the issue after election was deserved, and we have no changes to make. The methods used by the crowd to which the office of the democratic paper belongs, were base and blackguard and unmanly, and we simply called things by their right names, as we have always have done and always shall do. Contempt with such methods for good methods, by which found men's characters are established, never always leaks the test. We read even center in a Mr. Cleveland man a similarly sense.

—Elsewhere in this issue is the notice of a special election to be held in the township of Charlevoix December 22, for the purpose of voting on a proposition to bond the township in the sum of $30,000 for the construction of a bridge across Pine river in this village. The people are now face to face with the bridge question, which for more than two years has agitated the public mind. One thing has been demonstrated at certainty—while the present bridge proper is still serviceable, the foundation thereof is a constant menace to navigation and to the public interest. The additional fact exists that the present bridge is an insurmountable obstacle to the way of carrying out of government plans of enlarged improvement, provided for when Mr. Alvey was congressman. The old foundation once submerged, is now above water and in a state of collapse. It is beyond repair. The only way the present bridge could be continued in use would be by the construction of a new center pier where the old one now stands, and that would stand in the way of the future widening of the channel. We must have a new bridge, and that right quick, and we hope the proposition will carry by a good big vote. Let us vote "aye" on the proposition by all means.

Death of a Prominent Charlevoix Summer Resident.

The many Charlevoix friends of Judge H. A. Clover, of St. Louis, will be pained to learn of his death recently at his St. Louis home, of Bright's disease.

Judge Clover was one of the pioneer resorters to Charlevoix. He began spending his summers here with his family in 1885, and with the exception of one summer, has annually returned here. For many years the Covers were guests of the Fountain City House, later going to the Chippewa Club.

The St. Louis Republic has the following concerning him:

Judge Henry A. Clover, Sr., one of the best known members of the St. Louis bar and for fifty-six years a resident of this city, died yesterday morning at 9.30 o'clock at the home of his son-in-law, Dr. Julius F. Vallas, of No. 5363 Washington avenue. Although 76 years of age, Judge Clover was well preserved, and due two years ago, he was stricken with a severe attack of Bright's disease, to which he finally succumbed yesterday morning.

Judge Clover has been a resident of St. Louis since 1851. He was admitted to the bar shortly after coming to this city, and in his twenty-five years of practice he held many responsible positions. He was a prominent figure in legal circles, but for several years had not been actively engaged in the practice of law. His two sons are both members of the legal profession, Henry A. Clover, Jr., and Dr. Clover, Sr., is a member of the Board of Election Commissioners.

Mr. Clover was born March 19, 1824, in the city of New York. After finishing his preparatory education, he entered the academy of Columbia University of New York City, from which he received a degree three years later. Upon his graduation he came to St. Louis in 1851. Soon after his arrival in St. Louis, Mr. Clover obtained his position as clerk in one of the Circuit Courts. For ten or three years he served as clerk, at the end of that time being admitted to the bar. Mr. Clover was elected a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1875, and served as chairman of the committee on judiciary. The same year Mr. Clover was commissioned as Judge of the Supreme Court by Governor Fletcher, but declined to accept the appointment. After his period of service as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, Judge Clover retired from public life and devoted his entire time to his practice.

A FAIR HORSE THIEF.

TAKES A FARMER RIDING IN HIS OWN BUGGY.

New Departures a Bold Manner of Idle, Who Is Thought to Be a Professional Captain Kidd's Famous Buried Hoard Found at Last.

Mt. Pleasant, the appearance and business of which have changed little since Tecumseh, Mich., was taken to Carthage the other day by a man who had a driving horse. John Wilson, a farmer, was in the city with a buggy and a fine driving horse. He intended to purchase a harness and drive home. While in a harness store he saw a horse and buggy standing outside. He entered the store and asked the price of the harness. He was informed that it was $25. He said he was willing to pay that price for it, but he had only $10 in his pocket. The proprietor said he would take $10 for the harness. The man said he would go out and get the money. He walked out and hitched his horse to the buggy and drove away. The proprietor of the store was informed of the transaction. The person who had taken the horse and buggy was not seen.

LONGEST LOAN IN GRAIN.

W. J. Lord Kick Mich. Joseph Sparks, with a team of horses, drawing a wagon loaded with grain, left Lord's Corners, Ontario, for Mt. Pleasant, Isabella county, Mich., a few days ago. The team and wagon were sold at Mt. Pleasant, and Sparks took the money for the grain and left for his home in Ontario. The team and wagon were sold for a large sum of money. The man who purchased the team and wagon in question, it is said, is a Frenchman who arrived in Mt. Pleasant a few days before the transaction took place. He was accompanied by a man who is thought to be a professional Captain Kidd, who arrived in Detroit and Mt. Pleasant a few days before the transaction took place. The Frenchman who purchased the team and wagon in question, it is said, is a man who is well known in Detroit, and who has been seen in Mt. Pleasant on several occasions. Mr. Sparks, who is a young man, is well known in Ontario and Detroit. He is said to be a man who is well known in Detroit and Mt. Pleasant. Charles Lyon, a farmer in the vicinity of Mt. TO AVOID DROWNING.

It is a safe time to Turn Upon the Tide.

A correspondent of the Jacksonville (Illinois) Journal: A reader of mine once picked a few miles from Pekin, Illinois, and he amused me not a little and very shrewd at times, and all but had had, in one of virtue we call wonder how his body impelled forward passed on. He was an expert swimmer, low, and then again, as it were, three times into toward the shore, and then he would go out and back, and all at once he reach him, here him and there he would reach him, here him and there he would reach. After some years my friend told me that after losing all his money in Southern speculations he was broke and turned upon his back, when the life himself carried rapidly through the current, and he was drifting down his face to get his breath, when he felt himself suddenly caught by the back of the head and carried to the shore. It is an error to let the drowning man be attended by a young man in very cold weather. He should be rubbed before being put into the cold water and his spasms prevented. The man who saved the drowning man was the man who turned the back of the head, and then the hand, and then the back, being first warmed in the manner that stuck to which he was drowning, and by the drowning man's hand, instead of a pressure, was a pressure and gentle, and the rubbing was rapid his strength and the hand. Instead of the hand being a weak shoot always present, when you see a man on the right side of the body to the waves, and then avoid the Salvation like those of the immortal waters, the right side of the body to the waves, and then avoid the Salvation like those of the immortal waters of the right side of the body.

A SIXTY-DOLLAR BILL.

Issued by Authority of the Continental Congress in 1779.

Gentlemen has the old pile paper, that is United States currency known to be the Continental. It was issued at the seat of the Continental Congress in 1779, and carries with it all the credits of that age. It is a peculiar looking document, being a pencil or French paper of much the same material as the present paper money, except that it is darker in shape it is almost square, with dimensions of about sixty inches by seven. On the face of it is written the credit, which is as follows: "This bill entitles the bearer to bearer to Spanish milled dollars or the value equivalent to gold or silver as on the day of the date hereof, according to the resolution passed by Congress at Philadelphia, Sept. 26, 1779." On the back of the bill is drawn a boy with a net arrow. Above the margin is the motto, "Fugio," and underneath the motto, "Mind Sept. 26, 1779." At the bottom of the bill is the signature of someone in authority. The letters have an faded one that it is almost impossible to follow the characters. Some have laughed very loudly over the signature of George Washington upon these papers, and others have said that another authority is had to distribute money of that date. The face bill is the property of John Pudell of the Pinckney district of the County of Abbeville. It was presented to him at the Charleston earthquake in 1886 for the saving of an Irishman's life. The quaint bearer of the bill German toward the Irishman's house to a revenue in the man from Erin's side that he gave him the only article of value he possessed, and he had kept it as a souvenir of the time value of the bill and in

By MAJ. ALFRED ROCHEFORT.

"I am glad you say something to—to—Mr. Hermann," said Carpenter, he hung down between his feet for some time, and at last I saw a tear drop from his eyes, and I felt very much like crying myself. Now I may as well tell you that Mr. Dodd was a relation of his, and I suppose he felt very much cut up about his death. In twenty minutes time poor old Will came coming and Carpenter told Hermann to go home, and he would be all right in a few days. Hermann offered him a cab, but Carpenter helped him to his feet and walked off with him himself. He was very civil to me, and I felt very much cut up about poor old Dodd myself, and I felt very much like a fool when I came home and found Hermann in the parlor, and he asked me what was the matter with me, and I had to tell him the whole story, and he was very much cut up about it, and he said he would give me a good situation if I would stay with him

Two thirds of the entire potato crop of Michigan has been ruined by recent storms. It is estimated that the loss occasioned by the failure of the crop amounts to over $500,000.

—The first in the course of high school lectures was given at the court house on Monday night, by the Rev. H. Mc-Cracken, president of Allegheny college. His subject was "Commercialism" and he handled his subject as it could only be handled by a minority student of history. He dubbed it that, besides being eloquent and of pleasing personality. It is the manner of the course in so good an its beginning. Charlevoix is to be congratulated on the good fortune. The next lecture in the course will be by Herbert Spangler, Dec. 10th. Mr. Spangler is spoken of as a most entertaining impersonator.

You will notice in the editorial column, published in this issue, that W. J. Dawson's magnetic fire shovel locks our visitors value of letting down a bridge. You will notice also, that our friends at Beaver Island did not sufficiently by reason of that fairyone bridge magnet demand more money—or if they did, it was for the repentance county ticket. Look at the figures, and then again note the opposition gain on other tickets. All the work done on the island was done by democrats, and a Mr. Jones opposition and to no yesterday that a little republican work there would have made fifty more republican votes.

Mrs. Frances Crane, wife of Hon. Jas. Crane, of this place, departed this life at her home on Sunday last, aged 72 years. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was conducted by the Masonic fraternity, of which deceased was a member. Besides the bereaved husband, she leaves two sons, Andrew L. and Nelly, and eight daughters, four of whom are married. Mrs. Crane was held in high regard by all who knew her. Public sympathy for this family which has been so sorely tried in recent years, in the loss of a son in the prime of life the last half year, is general and sincere. The editor of this paper extends his heartfelt condolence, especially to his aged friend, who is thus bereft of a companion.

Boyne Falls was very much excited last Saturday over an attempted murder. Geo. Vallance, shot at J. D. Mitchell, the ball striking Mitchell's hand. Vallance, supposing he had killed his man, immediately gave himself up. He was held in $1,200 bonds, and being unable to furnish it was brought to the Charlevoix jail for examination in justice court. Their trouble was of long standing and was over the possession of property.

From southern Michigan comes the statement that two-thirds of the entire potato crop of the state from been ruined by the recent storms, "wet rot" affecting the tubers to such a degree that they are unmarketable. This being true the loss to potato growers and commission houses will approximate one million dollars, estimating the number of bushels affected at four millions. A conservative buyer or observer that in the three great potato growing counties—Montcalm, Grand Traverse and Leelanau—at least two-thirds of the crop, three million bushels, are rotted.

Milwaukee is to have a municipal school the ensuing winter. There are now only two such schools on the great lakes. One is located at Buffalo and the other at Chicago. The one at Milwaukee will be under the supervision of Thomas E. Long, compass adjuster and nautical expert, who the past two winters has conducted a similar school in Chicago. He has, however, found it necessary, owing to urgent demands on the part of marine men, to which his sphere, and in order to do so has decided to locate at Milwaukee. Mr. Long makes a specialty of teaching lake navigation. He likewise teaches deep sea navigation by astronomical observations.

We sincerely hope citizens will carefully weigh the matter before they vote against the bridge proposition. It will be forever unwise to linker further with the contractors and approaches to the present bridge, and even if we do so we remain remaining the present width of channel, and the given proposal has long protested against. The delightful of the proposition will perhaps, and the average tax payer a dollar a year, and our property a generation hence will pay the debt, when it won't perhaps, cost them a dollar a head to pay it. It is unfortunate that Charlevoix township should be compelled to bear the whole of the burden, when the water way which the bridge spans is in no sense of the word navigable. But it is up against us, and we may as well meet it manfully. Let us build the bridge.

Capt. Jepson will rebuild the steamer Pilgrim this winter at East Jordan.

The tug Parnaby, Capt. Wm. Cross, sent to Michigan City last week for winter fishing.

The steamer Jas. Gowan will be dismantled at the close of navigation, and a large amount of work will be done during the winter.

The steamer Hackley is still making her lower island trip, subject to weather, and will keep it up well into December, or as long as weather permits.

Capt. Hollow intends to do a large amount of work on the schooner Maine this winter. She will have three new strakes of planking all around under her covering board and other strengthening.

It is understood that the steamer City of Charlevoix is to be up in Chicago this winter. The Illinois will make the same trips with Capt. Messing gone to winter. Capt. Finnegan retiring on the season on account of ill health.

The schooner Stafford broke her anchor chain and was beaten ashore in Good Harbor bay. Considering the heavy sea running, she is standing it well. She has a cargo of twelve thousand bushels of potatoes. The crew of six aboard with the vessel, are safe enough. He pumped when the vessel started and vessel safely ashore. The vessel is owned by Schoonerg brothers. The tug Gaylor, of this port, is going to her relief.

Shipyards is rapidly depleting the fleet of small Milwaukee schooners. The latest craft reported is the Rose, owned by the Berthelet Lumber Co. of Cook. She water logged during a northeaster on Green Bay Saturday and was towed over to North bay. Her cargo consists of cedar lumber. Owing to the age and of the vessel, it is doubtful if any attempt will be made to float her. The Rose came out in 1869, measured 127 tons, and had a valuation of only $1,000. No insurance was obtained.

Schooner Lewis from the wreck of great area and beaching with coal and cargo, Capt. Paul Hansen and crew of four sailors sailed this afternoon for Michigan City harbor at 1 o'clock on the 15th under full canvass. The schooner was looking frightfully and the crew were completely exhausted from work in the gales. The Wolverine left Charlevoix for Chicago Friday morning, with lumber in the hold and skeghs on deck. She experienced variable winds and was tossed about the lake for 76 hours. Her crew carried the vessel badly, and on the night of the 14th was in a state of mind hope of reaching shore in safety. The schooner is in charge of the life saving crew at present. This is the vessel that, at low of the tug Wheeler, collided with the bridge and injured the bridge tender, when she was tow on her present trip. She is an old timer, and her time was up long ago.

Chippewa Herald: We believe that Chippewa county can claim to have the oldest voter at the election Tuesday in the United States. M. W. Boyce, of Tuscarora township, informed us that Tuesday he took to the polls in that township Abraham Brewer, who he claims is over 103 years of age. Mr. Brewer, himself and family are quite sure of his age, but does know that he voted for Andrew Jackson for president in 1828 and has voted at every presidential election since, and since the organization of the Republican party has voted for the candidate of that party from Fremont to McKinley. It is needless to say that last Tuesday his vote was cast for McKinley and Roosevelt, continued prosperity and the entire Republican ticket.

Northern Michigan stump lands are becoming more valuable every day, notwithstanding the popular tendency to place them to the list of undesirable and almost worthless possessions. A few years ago a vast area of land along the Grand Rapids & Indiana railway from the city of Grand Rapids to the mouth of Mackinac was covered with partly burned trees and stumps. Today thousands of acres of this land produce potatoes which have found markets in many states. The bean industry has also assumed important proportions, until the product has a market which reaches over a dozen western states, and is retarded in further western extension only by the cheaper freight rate of the California product. The bean acreage has been persistently increasing and the industry now extends through three tiers of counties, reaching across the state, beginning with Ottawa, Allegan and Van Buren, large quantities of beans are being raised in these three counties and also in Kent and other counties farther north. The product is known as pea beans, produce ing in some counties twenty bushels to the acre. The price at present averages about $1.60 a bushel for screened beans. In the young farmer with bad little money the stump land of northern Michigan offers easy terms and opportunities for profitable remuneration in the raising of potatoes and beans.

School Commissioner's Column.

A WEEK OFFER, COMMR.

Not long since a sixth grade girl was seen in a state of great discouragement, deposited her book upon the table with emphasis, and declared to the family that she had some work in arithmetic which was so new and difficult as for her to proceed further in the. The offending sum was quietly examined by an older sister, and proved to be addition of decimals. They had been given to her "ad.," if the expression will be pardoned, or if foreign it is preferred, "after the order of Melchizedek"—which is to say without beginning or end. Having no relation to anything in heaven or on earth, they were incomprehensible.

The sister copied one of the problems on a piece of paper, placed the dollar sign in front of the first item, and asked if the girl had ever heard of the Dominion of Canada. The expression of surprising intelligence, mingled in unmixed tears, work was undertaken with alacrity, and the whole batch of examples was soon disposed of, to the relief of the family.

In other words, the teacher who takes it for granted that pupils will comprehend the new subject with related difficulties, is in danger of committing a grave error. No new step should be presented without a conscious and careful effort to prepare for its reception by recalling past experiences of a similar character. The neglect of this simple elementary law of teaching results in great waste of time and energy, and makes patchwork of the child's school experiences. By its observance, pupils are given the only kind of review which is of value. Past experience is rehabilitated in present attainments, new light is thrown upon old topics, and the body of knowledge not only increased, but unified.

The best possible form of teacher's meeting is that held between the two teachers in receiving and transferring a class. The best preparation for the next work is a careful study of the matter and method of the preceding year. If this custom were universal, persons at the close of terms would be benefited to the region where they belong.

After a long and stormy night the storm had blown itself out and when Mrs. Judge Fletcher, the general lady she was and future, was accompanied and chaperoned by Paul and Tom Hunter, she thought to have the room to herself.

Tom came Dead out with great alacrity, and Paul was not far behind.

Mrs. Judge Fletcher, whose age is not to be mentioned, sat down and looked at the judge.

"Well, Judge, what's the matter?"

"Matter? Why, what do you mean?"

"Why, you look as if you had been crying."

"Crying! Why, what do you mean? He—he looks as if he had been crying, Paul, don't he?"

"Why, Mrs. Hermann has one more from our uncle's. I had left her expecting on the street, and I am trying to make her 10 more or less comfortable."

"Poor Mrs. Hermann! Poor Mrs. Hermann! Why, I thought—I thought—I—I—I

HENRY VILLARD DEAD

END OF CAREER OF GREAT RAILROAD MAGNATE.

Some of the Life of the Man Who Was the Promoter of Several Big Enterprises Given Last in Minnehaha Hotel Files.

Henry Villard, the railroad magnate, died at his summer home in Dobbs Ferry on Hudson river, on Friday, a week before Mrs. Villard had left for a visit to her relatives in Bavaria. He was born in Germany forty-three years ago and received a good education in the German universities. He came to this country in his early manhood, arriving in Boston, or his relatives farm in Illinois, but on New York commercial circles in New York he became known. He was a German and engaged in business in Philadelphia. He was a German and engaged in business in Philadelphia. He was a German and engaged in business in Philadelphia

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

Walter Taylor Field, in The Dial, Chicago, says: A recent writer tells us that literary taste is a matter of birth. To prove the assertion he calls attention to the fact that in high school classes some pupils manifest a fondness for history, others for poetry, still others for fiction, and the deduction is that some those predilections are native to the child, it is both unwise and unpedagogical to attempt to change them.

While there is a grain of truth in this it may truly be said if whether, after all, the strongest influence in forming the taste is not to be found in the books which the pupil has read before reaching the high school age.

The mind of a child is formed as its memories are formed—by food and exercise. And his emotional life—the stuff of which his memories are made—is supplied by the fairies, the mothers and by the classic tales which are whatever it is to be hoped by a judicious mother. He becomes acquainted with Mother Goose, and then a nursing bottle for him, provided always it is the real Simon-pure Mother Goose, and not the substitute or imitation which unscrupulous sleep editions under that name. The parent, aunt or nurse will think that any story which will quiet a child is sufficient to satisfy the individual taste but at the period of development [illegible] is formed, the child will be [illegible] than ever. It is at this stage that the foundations of the taste which will last throughout life are laid. If one is fed upon Lilliputians and giants who eat up little boys, a taste is formed which will continue to delight in savageries and life-destroying fancies.

Jack the Giant Killer, is the figured embodiment of fact that lurked in Jack and Jill, the little girl, which our children see a little later upon the lower shelves in the book case. Nursery rhymes and why they are named nursery rhymes books are written, but the explanation is quite easy. There is a demand for them and we should see to it that the demand is not fostered by the tales which the children hear from their nurses in the light before the little ones can read for themselves.

The best food that the mind of the formation of one's life's taste is taken when he finds out the meaning of the printed word and opens a way from his school reader to him for himself his newly acquired powers. This is the point at which the child particularly needs help. Doubtless some of books should be allowed to him to the exclusion of his reading matter. If he himself chooses one from a dull dozen books all of which are equally good, the chances are that he will be for ever the reading of it and will get more lessons from it than if it was prescribed to him alone as some thing to be read because it would do him good.

Do not make his reading a duty, but let it be a privilege and a pleasure. He may prefer "Robinson Crusoe" to "Pilgrim's Progress," and if he does he should be allowed to read it. But between how widely his choice is permitted to extend. Fruits are good food for children—but there are multiple fruits which are not good. The average parent is quite careful as to what his children put into their stomachs, but is apt to be careless as to their mental fare.

The big-hearted, wild-west, sensational stories of the newsstands to which reformation has already been made are not alone all the most dangerous species of evidence in literature. They are glaringly bad that the parents unfortunately wont their presence and banish them from the household. Their influence is happily lessening, owing to those homes in which the parents themselves are not above the moral standard of the times and in such homes there is remaining for the growth of a pure literary taste or a high moral character.

It will be observed that the influence of all literature is felt along these two lines, the aesthetic and the moral, that which affects the taste and that which affects the character.

While these remarks apply chiefly to the northern states, as the two are so closely that it becomes impossible to avoid reference to the moral influence as well. That which we love, we are.

Marine Notes.

The steamer Pine Lake has two or three more trips planned.

The schooner Smith & Post is loading 12,000 bushels of potatoes at East Jordan for Cleveland.

The tug J. V. Taylor has relieved the schooner Stafford which went ashore at Good Harbor last week.

Capt Hinman is much improved in health, and will remain in command of the Illinois until she lays up, which will be after another trip.

The schooner A. J. Holmes, lumber laden for White & Co. bound for Chicago, went ashore near Manitowoc last Sunday. She is in an exposed place.

The schooner Maine is at Milwaukee and will bring a load of grain for the Charlevoix Roller Mills, and lay up. The schooner Sea Gull cleared for Milwaukee last Friday, and will return and lay up. The schooner Louisa is stopped in this port.

Early Thursday morning the large Holmes sawyer, while en route from Chicago to Menominee, broke the valve rod of her engine and was towed to Manitowoc for repairs. The accident happened a short distance north of Sheboygan. The sawyer was towed back here on account of a similar accident after clearing.

While here last week the crew of the schooner Annie O. Hansen heard that freight rates on lumber had been advanced and struck for $2.75 per day. The secretary of the Milwaukee union ordered them to return to work at the card rate, $2.50, but they refused and quit the vessel, whereupon the captain laid the vessel up here.

County Farmers Institute.

The farmers' institute which is to be held in the court house in Charlevoix the week before Christmas, is of more than passing interest to the farmers of this county. In the first place the Hon. A. E. Palmer of Kalkaska is to be there, and to speak on topics relating alike to soil fertility and live stock. The superintendent of institutes has recently visited Mr. Palmer's farm and assures the farmers of Charlevoix county that Mr. Palmer practices at home what he preaches abroad. He is a good straight farmer, has an excellent dairy, large orchards and a well kept and wisely managed farm. You can listen to him with perfect confidence. Every one is interested in good roads, and as other farmers or engaged in some other line of business, all should attend the evening session and hear this important subject discussed.

A. H. Fellows, who is to speak on the fruit topic, is not so well known in northern Michigan. His early experience was on a farm in Wayne county, later he was in the fruit business in western New York, and is now at South Haven, Mich. He has had an unusually broad experience with all kinds of fruit, especially small fruits and apples. He knows by experience the things whereof he speaks. This county is destined to be a great fruit county. Will you make it so, or will somebody else have to do it?

Mrs. Hamer, who is to speak to the ladies in the interest of domestic art at the Agricultural College, she will open the evening on the home of the farmer, and fancy work, which will interest the ladies from the village as much as well as those from the country. The program thus appeals to all classes. Everybody should attend.

Chicago Times-Herald: Nothing definite regarding the building of a new boat for the Northern Michigan Transportation Co. has been decided on and will not be until the annual meeting of the stockholders in January. The reports current were that the company would put in another vessel to take the place of the Illinois, which was to be sold to another company. Officials of the company deny the latter story with vigor. They assert that the Illinois is not for sale. The steamer makes her last trip of the season out of Chicago next Friday evening for Charlevoix, Mich., and all points of route, and arrives in the city on her return a week later, weather permitting. She will lay up for the winter at Manistee.

Horsetti's lunch counter is open.

Spread Like Wildfire.

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Haas, a leading druggist of Belleville, O., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in twenty years. You know why? Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tone up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, hence cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system. Plain pills like and tiger lilies only weak, sickly, cadaverous men or women. Price 50 cts. Sold by F. M. Hibbs & Co., druggists.

Million Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one sufferer that is not afraid to be generous. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds have given away over two million trial bottles and have the satisfaction of knowing it has cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, Laryngitis and all Throat, Chest and Lung diseases are surely cured by it. Call on F. M. Hibbs & Co. and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Great Luck of an Editor.

"For two years all efforts to cure Eczema in the palms of my hands failed," writes Editor H. N. Taylor of Syracuse, Kan., "then I was wholly cured by Bucklen's Arnica Salve." It's the world's best for eruptions, sores and all skin diseases. Only 25c. at F. G. Hibbs & Co's.

When at East Jordan, call at Clive's restaurant and bakery for a good square meal, only 15 cents. Satisfaction guaranteed. On Lake street, two doors west of French's.

The Colonel has very many friends in Charlevoix who will be glad to know that he is to be with us, even for so short a time.

—Chicago Daily News: Chicago purchasers are likely to be called on to pay fancy prices for potatoes this winter. The first assurance the local market had of such a probability was when contracts with half a dozen schooners which had contracted to bring cargoes from northern Michigan were cancelled. There was an intimation last week when several hundred loads were brought into Chicago and all grouded in to be lighted upon. The cause of the coming scarcity and consequent high prices is the failure of the Michigan crop which was badly affected by the warm weather and rains of last month. At the present time potatoes are about 37 cents higher than at the same time last year. The predicted price for later in the winter is one dollar a bushel, and some venture to assert that $1.50 will be the retail charge.

—The artistic of "The Hypnotizer" was presented at the opera house last Friday and Saturday evenings to fine audiences, and may be said to have been successful musical events. There were evident and somewhat glaring defects in chorus drill, but this was due probably to the short time given to preparation. The cantata, which is one of the best of its class ever written, was worthy of greater perfection of detail in chorus work, which is really the backbone of the production. The rear work, in both dramatic and vocal features, was a credit to Charlevoix. Mr. E. M. Washburn, as the old farmer, was easily the dominating role among the soloists. As the cyder tosser he not only did his work with good dramatic effect, but executed his solos in a manner that elected a warm greeting from the audience, and much sincere and favorable comment. Dr. Wilks, in his burlesque part as "hypnotic," the double made a decided hit. His "business" to speak in dramatic parlance, was original and effective, and his velocity was excellent. Mr. Jacobs in his solos and duet parts created a most favorable impression. Mr. Jacobs possesses a high tenor voice of good compass and timbre. Mr. Elliott, and in fact all the other soloists on the male side, did themselves credit. Miss Hazel, the pianiste, deserves special praise. In her solo accompaniments she was sympathetic and artistic and exhibited skill and good taste in the chorus work. The soprano and alto women all did good work in their respective roles. The entertainment was very enjoyable, despite the choral defects, and may be put down as a success. One of the notable features of the event is the disclosure of the pleasing fact that Charlevoix has good vocal talent.

The schooner Maine arrived Wednesday from Milwaukee with 13,000 bushels of grain for the roller mills. She will lay up.

The steamer Illinois went past the port going north Monday. She was then on her way back to Chicago on her last trip for the season (to-day) Thursday.

Capt. Geo. Thompson has laid the steamer Hackley up here. During the winter he will widen her with lumber and otherwise improve and strengthen the boat.

The Grand Haven Tribune states that plans have been definitely arranged for starting a boat line on the Grand River next spring. The company has $30,000 capital paid in. One steamer has already been purchased, she is 141 feet long, 30 feet beam, will draw 21 inches when loaded and is capable of hauling 11 miles an hour up stream. The small schooner Gibbs, owned by Capt. Evans, of Harbor Beach, and well known here, went ashore at Cecil Bay last week, loaded with cedar. She is full of water and in a bad place.

"Did you take her to the Annex?—Mr. Hermann, I believe?" asked the second.

"No, no. He came on to me at home, locked up in his study room, and pointed out the Annex afterwards, in the new house."

"Did you see the house while he was in it?"

"Yes, I went in with him, and he showed me everything."

"Did you see the room where the murder was done?"

"I was with him when he first went into it."

"Did you see the window, which was said to be open?"

"I did not, because I was with Mr. Hermann when he first went into the room, and he was very much excited, and he shut the door behind us."

"Did you see the window, when you went in?"

"I did not, I was so much taken up with Mr. Hermann, that I never looked at the window at all."

From The Philippines.

Lucban, P. I., Oct. 11, 1899.

DEAR OLD AT HOME: Have been pretty busy of late and haven't gone on any hikes, so don't know for the life of me what to write about. The battalions of the company go out every few days, but it's always the same old story—a few prisoners, perhaps a gun or two, and, and until you can't rest, but the box of cookies all to K. The national cooking is better than when they left the states and the whole box lasted about 20 minutes.

Am going to send some kodak pictures with this they were taken by the corporal who was recently sent to Hillsdale, one of the bugler purchased the camera with which they were taken, and they may be able to get hold of some good views to send you.

Didn't put much stock in what such business, punctured volunteers say as that one whose letter was published in the Courier. There are some hard stories land stories told about some of the volunteer gangs they can hardly be called organizations, and I am sorry to say, some cases in the regular services but shyster ones here, where there are absolutely no authentic sources of information, low nothing in the telling and I cannot be made to believe that any American, even a volunteer, certainly not a soldier, would have done such things. I know the standard Malays are treacherous and if they get a chance to swipe you with a bolo would do so. If some Americans had stuck his bayonet through such an one, I could readily believe it and not blame him for it either. The status volunteers who came over here flatter good men—they were among men from home and they fought and acted the same as if there were no 7,000 miles of green water between them and those they knew at home. I don't interpret the calling anything against them; but these volunteer those that are here are the most utterly useless lot of noncompts in human, or at least biped form, that ever were seen. They can't or won't fight anything more tangible than shadows or fire flies unless with some of them get a bite jug on and get to scrapping among themselves, and then the others don't have control enough over their men to pick up sides in it. They go all the fighting over here (with pen and pencil, and a couple of squads of regulars to go ahead and drive the enemy away) they can waste more good ammunition firing at the objects of their imagination than any or all of them are worth, and their usual valorous exploits are bumbling some poor yellow devil out of a box of tortlies or a package of cigarettes, or perhaps running a big washing and banana bill and signing some fetid nigger and then swearing they don't owe the bill because their right name does not appear—you have some of of the latter class in the regular service, but they soon get to the end of their rope, and a "fetch-all" or four of a quess their course.

What a man, or homesick boy, wants to send such foul-mouthed stuff back home for, I can't imagine. Some poor mose back home will that never had a day's rest in his life, comes over here expecting to be a "real rough" in blue clothes and brass buttons, with Filippino mashers yearning for his embraces, and nothing to do but play the toughest guy in de alley," finds he has to mount guard once in three days, and make a position mile hike once in ten days, and at once begins to group about it to his letters and to furnish a basis for the aforesaid groans, has to waste good paper and ink and strain actively such gray matter as he may be possessed of, to conceal romances that would put to shame "Aggie" and all his agents and advisers. A man or boy who enlists for two years and can't stand twelve or thirteen months of it without whimpering hasn't stamina enough to make a soldier anyway. I sincerely hope there won't be a volunteer on the island next June. Guess that's quite enough of that; I only intended to drop a gentle hint when I started in, but it was hard to stop when I got started.

This rainy season has not been at all severe, and I guess its over now. We expect as soon as things begin to dry up a little there will be a thorough cleaning up of all the bolo and code, rag tag and bob-tail outfits that we couldn't run down in the end, and I guess that will put about put an end to the tenure of the U. S. army in the Philippines, and I am in hope that in the general clean that will have to come when the volunteers are sent home, we will get a change of scene.

A lot of our fellows and the men borrowed from "G" company at Iligan were out on another wild goose chase the other day. Some native came in all anxiety to show the Americanos to the "Charlie" of the insurrectos, but when he got in the vicinity of them his courage forsaken him and he gave out, and everybody gets disgusted. Some of these times one of these "mauka amigo" Judas Iscariots will get bad and won't find himself this side of Jesus. They have about a third of the company on sick report now from walking through mud and disembering and falling over rocks, for 24 or 48 mites on a hight and morning, to find nothing, or perhaps meeting that you had passed and repassed within a half mile or so of the guys camp in the dark and the infernally cowardly guide would show you answer, and by daylight its too late, the sun are all worn out, officers and privates alike, cussed with mud, bruised, footsore, and out of patience. Let white civilians or lackeys of volunteers go out alone and they get ambushed, have a terrible fight, stay immoderately long, (all of which they invariably publish in the papers) and generally run if there is any response to their fire; when they don't say a word about but 15 or 20 men from one of these companies of regulars stationed along the railroad can walk 10 or logs off without getting a chance to clean their gun barrels. There is no doubt the gugos know who they are jumping on and can tell a regular farther than a white man can, but just the same, in my private opinion 90 per cent of the fence battles the volunteers are having over here are fought in the diseased imaginations of some of their number. Well, so long, I have taken two or three days to scribble this.

A huge bear has made its appearance several times near Northport and several efforts have been made to kill it, but up to yesterday morning without success. George Davis had several views of the animal, but did not succeed in getting a shot at it. Yesterday afternoon several hunters went after Bruin and as tracks were plenty it was believed the bear would meet with success.

TAKEN FROM STORE WINDOW IN BROAD DAYLIGHT.

Tray of Diamonds Valued at $6,000 in the Vault Based Through from Antwerp—Whole Family Accused of Conspiring to Robbers's Murder.

With the same ease and lack of concealment, marked by the robbery of the Antwerp diamond exchange, a well-dressed young man entered the store of Messrs. Lilienthal and Co., in the Kaiserstrasse, Frankfort, yesterday, stolen a tray of loose diamonds valued at $6,000 from the window, and walked out of the store. He was in no great hurry, but walked quietly and at a moderate pace through the streets, and was not discovered to be missing for some time. The jewelers, Messrs. Lilienthal and Co., have been in business for many years, and have a very high reputation. The diamonds were intended for cutting and polishing, and were of the finest quality. The theft was not discovered for some time, and the thief had ample time to get well away with his booty. The police are now in possession of a description of the man, and are hot on his track. It is not known whether the diamonds were insured, but it is thought that they were not, as the firm is well known to be able to stand a loss of this kind without inconvenience.

The students have been in a state of excitement for some time, and the trouble culminated yesterday afternoon when the cadets marched out of the school in a body

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CLEVE, COM'R.

In the family of my friend A, three children's periodicals are taken and read. Several days before the time of the appearance of each issue the children are in a fever of excitement, and when the paper at last appears, everything is dropped until the progress of the hero of the continued story is ascertained. In this family there is no library worthy of the name. The periodicals already referred to supply all the reading matter for which the children care, or for which they have time, after their school duties are fulfilled.

There is still another class of children's literature which is quite as unfortunate. I refer to the sentimental stuff which is written in the name of morality, but which is effective only in vitiating the taste, weakening the intellect, and giving false views to life. It appears notably in the "children's columns" of certain, religious papers and in books intended for Sunday school consumption, which happily the best Sunday schools have long ago repudiated and cast out.

It is one of the most significant facts of modern life that a surfeit of periodical literature, both juvenile and adult, is operating against the peopling of books and the formation of libraries. The magazine has its place, but it also has its limitations, and we should be the masters instead of the servants of our periodicals. Let us understand that after all, the vital and permanent literature is that preserved for them to good books. Let every child have a book shelf or book case which he may call his own. Let him be encouraged to read good books and to care for them. He will then come to feel the friendship with them which is the greatest joy of the literary life. It is a mistake to think that the child must be continually supplied with fresh reading matter—that a book once read is finished. Indeed the strong interests of the last century are those which have been nourished in childhood upon a few good books. read and re-read until the thought and style become a part of the reader's permanent possession. Nor does a child lose interest in a good book after a single reading. There is a mine inside of books written for children by men and women who have sufficiently stored the treasure of child life. Never was there a richer range of selection, and never a time when children's libraries could be so easily and cheaply collected.

Write nothing can quite take the place of the library in the home. The best education that it is the library in the school. Through this medium it is possible for good books to reach in to the dark corners of society and to open to children in homes of poverty and ignorance a vision of wider environment. The school library assumes the most important function of the parent when the parent is incompetent. It teaches the child through what means good and good men have become great and good, how honesty, purity, gentleness and temperance are essential glory of a life. It sets before him ideals not impossible of attainment. It tells him the story of God and home of ours, opens his eyes to the wonders of nature, and demonstrates the goodness of God. Through the children the parents feel the reviving influence. Men and women who have blunted forgotten now to reflect, and who in their own childhood never had good books, take up the volumes which their boys and girls bring home from school and get a breath from the broader life which is thus opened to them.

Surely there is reason enough for the establishment of a library in every school. Educational sentiment is stirred upon this subject, and the growth of school literature during the past decade, is a hopeful sign not only of a healthier literary taste, but of sounder morality in the men and women of the next generation.

Traverse City Record: Through a business deal just concluded, O. L. Coulter, who removed to this city a short time ago from Central Lake, becomes the owner of A. F. Cameron's residence on Webster street.

Traverse City Record: Sunday morning at 8 o'clock Rev. Daniel B. Schofield, of Williamsburg, closed a long and useful life. He has been a resident of Williamsburg for the past 35 years, and was universally loved and esteemed. He was a preacher in the Methodist church, and during the past third of a century had married 70 couples. He has conducted the services for a majority of the funerals in the neighborhood during that time.

Cadillac News: Frankfort, Cadillac's long neglected little neighbor on the Lake Michigan shore, has been awakened from her lethargic sleep and will take her rightful place among northern Michigan's many beautiful summer resort towns. And this pleasing fortune for the village is due to the Ann Arbor railway company, the officers thereof having recently decided to build a one hundred thousand dollar house on what is commonly known as "the Island." The contract has been given, and work is now in progress and will continue uninterrupted until the four buildings—main hotel, swimming pool, stationhouse and ballasting—are finished. The railway company will pipe mineral water from Butler's spring to the hotel premises, where it will be used for bathing only, and will also build an electric light plant. Frankfort's natural advantages make the village superior as a summer resort to either Charlevoix or Petoskey and the extensive advertising of the Ann Arbor company is emphatic this superiority will attract hundreds of tourists to the pleasant lake shore town.

Traverse City Record: People in the vicinity of the mill at Long Lake are having serious times on account of a number of wolverines which are making their homes in that neighborhood. The animals are there and have carried off a number of good sized pigs. A few days ago a couple of young men who were coming, set their dogs on a coon, as they supposed, but the animal proved to be a wolverine and in the fight which ensued a valuable dog was killed, and one of the young men had his clothing torn by the infuriated beast. Friday night P. Paris, started from the house to the barn, only a short distance away, and discovered a wolverine seated on the fence of the pig pen. He fired at it from a distance of about ten feet, wounded it severely, and the trail of blood was traced two or three miles in the woods, before it disappeared. It is getting so that women and children not like keeping inside the house in the evening, and even the men are themselves when going out after dark.

The annual agitation in favor of a sweeping change in the Michigan game laws, in the sections where they have been in the killing of deer, has commenced. This fall the hunters are really in earnest when they say that they believe the existing statute should be modified. They are upsetted at the unprecedented slaughter of deer and their pacific mood a few successive seasons like this would play havoc with the game. It is a matter of common report in the upper peninsula that Hon. Sherman T. Ranney of the Dickinson district, will frame and present a new bill suggesting changes in the new laws regulating the killing of deer at the next session of the state legislature. It is believed that such a measure would be opposed without serious opposition. It is acceptable to the vast number of sportsmen of the state. The most important changes which would be proposed would relate to the number of deer allowed each hunter. It is now five. It would probably be reduced, in the event of successful legislation, to three, possibly to two. This modification would be far reaching in its results. It would do away with much market hunting and would be acceptable to the true sportsmen, while, in the course of a couple of seasons, it would fill the Michigan forests with deer. Another proposed innovation is to allow nonresident hunters to ship one carcass anywhere they may desire. It is not believed that this privilege would be abused. A measure which would make it illegal to kill unfeathered deer also has some advocates, and it is believed that it is impracticable. It would prevent the slaughter of fawns and does and would confine the killing to bucks. This would lead to the rapid propagation of the game and would do away with the most repellant feature of the annual killing, the indiscriminate slaughter of the does and their young, which is too often out of proportion with the slaughter of the bucks, which are much hardier to hunt and much better equipped to look after themselves.

Hair Grows Not in Size.

Does anything promote the growth of the hair? This question is answered by the Pseudarthrosis Weekblad in this wise: "It is believed in layman and professional vaudevillers that cutting regularly increases the growth of the hair. This belief begins with the fundamentally comparable of the hair with a plant. An grass that is often cut shoot grass again and becomes thicker, so it is believed, the hair should do when it is cut. This comparison, however, is a false one. A developed hair is a perfectly formed mass of horn which has nothing further to do with the case in which the hair reels than to receive from it fibres below further growth and to hold firmly by it. * * * in this mass of horn, as in the nails of the fingers and the toes, there is no longer any vital circulation; this mass, so to speak, is a product which cannot be quickened and strengthened by new nourishment, because the latter cannot enter it. On the other hand what happens in a blade of grass is totally different.

The blade of grass is a net work of the cortex in which is constantly circulating the nourishment which the blade draws from the root, it presents, in contrast with the dead body of the hair, a living, vegetative substance which dries up infallible when it is separated from its root while the hair will remain unaffected for thousands of years after its capillo has witnessed away. We need the only one irrusible, the proof of this—the laws on the heads of mummies. The root of the hair as long as it exists can produce a new hair when the old hair has fallen out while the root of name a plant gives existence to one spread only and then together with it decloses and dies. The more a hair is disturbed in its natural growth by continually cutting off its ends the less end its position, be the continually larded to excessive production, waves finally in its activity, decays and dies. For this reason if women with a hard head is never or seldom seen, as the natural and very slow process of the growth of a woman's hair is not disturbed. The individual hair reaches a definite length, after years it falls out of itself and a new hair begins to appear as soon as the papilla has had time to rest itself thoroughly and to prepare itself for the process of a new growth. These are the reasons which lead to the obviously valid conclusion that cutting the hair is rather injurious than useful."

Banks and Bank Note.

It appears that banks were in existence in Rome, Greece, Babylon, China and other ancient places before the Christian era. The earliest records of European banks are in existence are those of the Bank of Venice founded in A. D. 1171; the Bank of Barcelona, founded in 1401; the Bank of Genoa, founded in 1407, and the Bank of Amsterdam, in 1609. The oldest bank notes of which there is any record were issued in China as far back as 2697 B. C. The Chinese called it "flying money," and they were in form similar to the bank notes of the present time. They have such notes as "Produce all you can." "Spend with economy." And the like. There is little love on the face the penalty for making imitations of them.

As he had been permitted to come out on previous occasions, given the liberty of the jailer's quarters, it is supposed that he secured a key about his person. Last week the resignation of W. J. Weikel as Cedar Sheriff was tendered by that gentleman to Governor Pingree. It is credible to say that the resignation was accepted. The sheriff previously appointed deputy sheriff Robert Dunkle to fill the vacancy. Under normal conditions, Mr. Dunkle would be the logical successor. Will Niles, of Charlton, will be the sheriff. Mr. Pearson does the proper thing. Mr. Niles is a good, honest, worthy man. And again the state observes the appointment, because Dunkle's name is on file nowhere, and it was there that he received the largest congratulations imaginable.

Marine Notes.

The U. S. revenue cutter Morrill, bound from the straits to Chicago to lay up, came in Sunday noon and tied up at Wilson's dock. She left at four o'clock Monday morning.

The schooner Sea Gem came in Saturday from Milwaukee with 2,000 bushels of grain for the roller mills. She has laid up here.

About two weeks ago the schooner Anna G. Hanson, lumber laden for the South Arm Lumber co. for Detroit, was stripped and laid up here for crew having struck for wages higher than those fixed by the sailors' union. On Sunday, W. A. Johnson, of Milwaukee, controlling owner of the vessel, and shipper of cargo, was here and engaged Capt. Edmondson and crew of the schooner Naiad, to take the vessel to Detroit. The vessel left yesterday.

The tug Frank P. Golden returned from Michigan City Sunday.

The tug Wheeler has laid up and hauled out for minor repairs.

It is understood that the steamer Illinois will come out one more trip, but will only come as far north as Charlevoix or Traverse Bay for a cargo of potatoes.

The tug Mac-Inac was over from the Bayshore today to bring the U. S. fish commissioner people.

The rail will have a height of 42 inches. The nifty cabin and the pilot house and texas forward are to be remodeled. The Sayer is owned by the South side Lumber Co. and has been running between Charlevoix, Petoskey and St. Ignace.

W. F. Gill, of St. James, has leased his tug Hyan to parties who will use it for fishing purposes on the north shore.

The steamer Hawkins will continue her lumber trips during this month, but the trips may, if necessary, be somewhat irregular.

A Michigan City special of the 27th says: The schooner Emily B. Maxwell, in tow of the tug Golden, ran in to the Franklin street bridge to-day, carrying away two pilings and fore-topmast, and also damaging her mainrigging. The bridge was badly broken in the collision.

The steamer M. C. Nell left Chicago Tuesday night for Boyne City to load for Chicago. Her owners expect her to return again and take still another load to Chicago, laying up there.

The small schooner Experiment has been purchased at Lexington, Mich., by V. H. Ludwig for $300. The Experiment has made Beaver Harbor her headquarters for several years.

"Here is everything safely secured. Good-bye, Gertrude, and God bless you!"

Throwing off his hat, coat and boots, he stepped out into the hall and ran up the stairs to his bedroom door, and it had been locked on the outside.

"I was safe for years, my wife and all with the hope to live!"

Paul firmly grasped these words of Gertrude. He actually thought he made mistake. The man had stripped for the fight, dressed in his shirt and pants.

When the trembling woman in the corner of the room by Morgan was dragged from one of his coats, the changing to have stolen the night before, she found stripped out on the floor. He had hardly finished the opposite side when Paul Neville, with Morgan in his arms, leaps the prison passage.

"Two out four!" he whispered. "I shall give you, and all of you. Don't look back!"

Paul stood in the center, for an instant, while all the occupants of room, one with a sack of wool and the other with a sack, looked upon the man who had so suddenly appeared in the room. All the women were easily done in the world. Only this one stood before the people a clear case up before which he was known the prisoner's friend.

A BANDSAW TONGUE.

The New in the Mouth of the Small Cow Clock.

It is a fortunate thing for man and the rest of the animal kingdom that no larger wild animal has a mouth built on the plan of the insignificant-looking snail's mouth, for such an animal could devour anything that lives. Any one who has noticed a snail feeding must have wondered how such a soft, flabby, slimy animal can make such a sharp and clean-cut incision in a leaf, leaving an edge as smooth and straight as if it had been cut with a knife. This is due to the peculiar and formidable mouth he has. The snail eats with his tongue and the roof of his mouth. The tongue is a ribbon which the snail keeps in a coil in his mouth. The tongue is in reality a bandsaw, with the teeth on the surface instead of on the edge. The teeth are so small that as many as 20,000 of them have been found on one snail's tongue. They are exceedingly sharp, and only a few of them are used at a time. Not exactly only a few of them, but a few of them comparatively, for the snail will probably have 4,000 or 5,000 of them in use at once. He does this by means of his coiled tongue. He can mount as much of this as he chooses, and the mounted part he brings into service. The roof of his mouth is as hard as bone. He grasps the leaf between his tongue and that hard substance, and, rasping away with his tongue, saws through the tougher leaf with ease, always leaving the edge smooth and straight. By use the teeth wear off or become dulled. When the snail finds that his saw is becoming dull he stops his slender sawing and works that out until he has come to the end of the coil. Then he coils the tongue up again and is ready to start in new, for while he has been sawing the latter portions of the ribbon the teeth have grown to split fit the idle portions the saw has been filed and kept so to speak—and while he is using them the teeth in the back coil are renewed.

AVARICIOUS QUEEN.

Elizabeth of England Accused by Historians of Hoarding Funts Funds.

The great Queen Elizabeth nearly wrecked England by her parsimony, and is, therefore, condemned by historians after hundreds for her "avarice." She probably had no avarice in her composition. She may have, probably had, inherited a trace of the rigid spirit of her grandfather, Henry VII., that ably attorney on a throne, but she did not hoard money for herself, but for the state. The revenue in her time was small in proportion to the demands on it, she was convinced that it was her first duty to keep the treasury endowed, and, like any other spending housewife, her notion of the method was to make every penny do duty, of course every supply, and to seek supplies from any quarter whence she could suppose to be bound to render it. So she tested every penny to which she was entitled, she cut down dividends even for powder, as a housewife cuts down demands for every item, and she required of her nobles and her courtiers expenditure from their own purses, which it had previously been their duty to make, but which it was their duty no longer. She acted, in fact, as treasury officials sometimes act now, from an inappropriate sense of duty, and not once or twice, but thrice, she refused to accept proffered pecuniary aid. Frederick, the Great, Henry was the only man, and in ten years he saved the lives of forty persons who had fallen into the glaciers of Mount St. Bernard. What is considered his most remarkable achievement was performed about those years ago, when he found a child in a snowy drift lying in the snow under the influence of the fatal slumber which precedes death. Very curious comprehension of the needs of the situation dog warmed the child with his breath, and then aroused it by dragging it hither and thither. This much accomplished dog, by lying down by its side gave the child an opportunity to get on and ride. The child did so and was carried by faithfully to the convent. The sagacious dog has other achievements, is recorded of the convent, one to the credit of its circumspection several witnesses have since—"Die death of the dog was due to the timidity or temerity of some unknown man who persuaded that furry was approaching him with evil intent. The stranger killed the dog by blows it on the head. These two events in the career of the useful animal are commemorated on the monument which represents its less relief in its hind, and carrying a child on its back, which underneath is the following inscription. Here, the Benedictine Fathers of Forty Persons sat. Was Killed by the Forty dog."—New York Times.

Brighter Than Average Recorder.

Henry A. Little has been for fifty years recorder of Marion county, Illinois. The lawyers throughout say that an encyclopedia of legal doings in this county could be more valuable than Mr. Little's wonderfully retentive memory. He was born in McCoun county and has never lived out of it except during the civil war, when he went to the front as a volunteer. After Appomattox he returned and resumed his position in county recorder.

Khamis is king of the Hamamyeh tribe. His wonderful dog and trick Bedouin dragoon dog has in Bedouin fashion, but they treat him more themselves, and do not acknowledge it as a tribal item. Khamis is an old man—mean, hungry and ugly. He has no dog. He is a very good old man, and in his way a very good king. Khamis is an old bachelor, and has never had a wife. He has a very good old mule, and on his back a very good saddle, and on the saddle a very good dog

A Characteristic Act.

The pardon by Gov. Pingree of White and Marsh is the culminating irrationality of the greatest demagogue that ever occupied the executive chair of Michigan.

White was charged with being the chief party to the robbery of public funds. He ran away to escape arrest. Recently he returned and with leave to unlawfully faced the court, pleading guilty. Unmoved he received his sentence of ten years at hard labor, and smilingly he left the court room.

At Jackson he nonchalantly donned the prison garb, and with a bravado that was born of a hidden knowledge of executive clemency he began prison labor.

Within twenty-four hours his pardon was issued. The chances are that it was written before the sentence was pronounced. Pingree's only excuse for the pardon was that others concerned in the conspiracy escaped punishment.

Everything connected with the affair indicates that there has been an understanding between White and his friends and the governor from the start, and that White returned on the assurance from Pingree that no would be pardoned.

Why?

Will the whole truth ever be known? Will the people ever know why the man who disgraced the administration of Hazen S. Pingree, and confessed his guilt, should be pardoned and must before the ink was dry upon his commitment?

This unmistakable returned, this self appointed champion of the people's rights, this self-ghorified "modern Crusoe!" Will the people ever know what he knows about the matter, and what he knew all the time the stealing was going on?

A legislature pardoned the Chicago aldermen, and Pingree pardoned the Lansing robbers. The two will get together into history as men who in the days of their authority, while professing great things were enemies of public order and public decency!

The legislature by special call of this demagogue, is to convene in special session next Monday. If should find cause to be recorded on its journal its contempt for Pingree, and then it should adjourn. It could not in any other manner more fully reflect public sentiment.

Michigan will soon be through with Pingree, and then may the devil take his own!

Council Proceedings.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CRAW, COUNTY.

We have sent to the transit officer of the county the following letter and hope to see a change in school government in our county:

To.....Chairman Board of School Inspectors,.....Township.

DEAR SIR: Under the Compulsory Education law (see School law, page 35) the chairman of the township board of school inspectors, shall be the transit officer for the township over which he has jurisdiction.

Sec. 2 of this law says: It shall be the duty of the transit officer to investigate all cases of truancy or non-attendance at school and render all service within his power to compel children to attend school.

Under the provisions of this law, children between the ages of eight and sixteen years must attend school four months each year, beginning on the first Monday of the first term commencing in his or her district after September 1st of each year.

This law should be thoroughly studied by each transit officer and its provisions carried into effect. We are too lenient. We have neglected this law too long. Statistics show that about 90 per cent of the children of school age are enrolled as pupils in the schools. Many of the 10 per cent outside of the schools, have good and sufficient reasons for their absence. There is a class this law aims to reach and as officers of the law we should see that neglected children are promptly sent to school.

See School law, page 34-41 shall be the duty of the chairman of the board of school inspectors to have supervisory charge of the schools of his township subject to such advice and direction as the county commissioner may give.

We hope you will join with us in making the schools better. Report to us promptly everything that will be helpful in the work. Visit your schools occasionally and do not fail to report your visits to this office.

The township board will audit your accounts for time spent in this work at $1.50 per day.

Yours truly,

A. W. CRAW, Co. Com. Sch.

Bids for the enlargement of the strand hotel at Mackinac Island are to be opened on December 1st. It is expected that the improvements will cost $80,000 to $100,000.

Two hundred couples of the elite of Petoskey danced Thanksgiving night for sweet charity. The proceeds of the annual charity ball at the opera house will go this year to the hospital fund.

It is estimated that upwards of five thousand deer carcasses will have been shipped out of the upper peninsula at the close of the season. A large portion of these deer are killed by jacksnipers who run on the runners.

By a strange coincidence, the institution of the Elks Lodge Tuesday at Petoskey, celebrated the 70th birthday of Capt. H. C. Ross, Petoskey's oldest resident, as did one of the oldest and most influential citizens. The captain was initiated in the afternoon and divided the evening between the banquet and a house party.

It is positive that the Burt Lake Indians who were dispossessed and their bundles were issued in Indian Village a few weeks ago, may not only get their rans back, but have a good case of damages. The bands were given to them by the state of Michigan to be held in trust for these Indians, and the claim is that under the ordinance of 1787 these lands are not and never have been subject to taxation. Judge A. Lama, who granted the writ of ouster, says that if he had had his attention called to the terms of the ordinance of 1787, he would not have issued the writ. The cause of the Indians has been taken up by people who will see the matter through the legal courts and restore the rights of the boonlike Indians.

Late Current Events.

Congress assembled Monday, and after the reading of the president's message, proceeded to the consideration of national affairs.

Ex-quartermaster general Will White appeared in circuit court last Saturday, plead guilty and was sentenced to ten years at hard labor in Jackson prison. He was taken to prison Monday, and assigned to the tailor shop. On Tuesday Governor Pingree granted a pardon to White, and he is again a free man.

The Czar of Russia is rapidly improving in health, and is said by his physicians to be in a fair way of recovery.

A CLEAN SHAVE.

The Sanitary Barber Is Sent on the Run.

The question of strict regulations for barber shops has received much attention in sanitarian, but only in a few instances have the health authorities had the moral courage to adopt and enforce rules which must of necessity meet with great opposition and in many instances bring ridicule upon those who promulgated them. In fact, remarks the Philadelphia Medical Journal, even the medical profession represented in the American Health Association, is not averse to enjoy a little fun at the expense of one of its members who persistently hammers away at this subject with commendable persistency. Barbers and hairdressers are public necessities, and the public has a right to insist that their work be performed according to sanitary principles. Any one who patronizes a barber whose establishment is open to all comers runs great risk of becoming infected with diseases from the razor, shaving brush, scissors, clippers, comb or hair brush having been used previously on a sick or convalescent person, especially those suffering from diseases of the skin or scalp. Barbers and hairdressers should be required to wash their hands with soap and use a nail brush immediately after attending to a customer; the razor, clipper or scissors should be dipped in boiling water or a disinfecting solution, while the use of the shaving brush should be entirely abolished and wads of wood cotton substituted. To the general practitioner the necessity of such recommendations is self-evident, but the general public needs instruction. Such instruction, however, is slow and ineffective unless stringent rules are enacted, making it a sort of compulsory education. It is stated by a medical authority who has made this subject one of his life objects that he once treated a man who was covered with specific eruptions and that the patient went from the doctor's office directly to the barber. As this also happened to be the doctor's barber the lightning struck home.

A Woman's Awful Peril.

"There is only one chance to save your life and that is through an operation" were the startling words heard by Mrs. I. L. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., from her doctor after he had vainly tried to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. Gall stones had formed and she constantly grew worse. Then she began to use Electric Bitters which wholly cured her. It's a wonderful stomach, liver and kidney remedy. Cures dyspepsia, loss of appetite. Try it. Only 50 cents. Guaranteed. Dorrah by F. G. The steamer Hackley, after being storm bound here a week, went to Beaver island yesterday. As to laying up, Capt. Campbell is uncertain.

As we write, (Thursday morning) the tug Taylor is waiting for weather to go to the rescue of the steamboat Wolverine, ashore near Good Harbor. The Taylor will take a steam pump.

What is all probability will be the last shipment of the season for this port is the steamer Francis Hinton, which came in yesterday. She loads lumber at the transfer dock for Chicago.

The tug Dennis Bros., lying at her dock, caught fire in her upper works over the boiler, yesterday afternoon and the blaze was showing itself very lightly when discovered. The curious blow on steam, and the boat's hose soon suppressed the fire.

On the 8th, off Erie harbor, Lake Erie, the low one large Chas. Foster, in tow of the steamer Iron Duke, went to the bottom, carrying with her crew and on board eight persons. There was a tremendous sea, and after spending a giant could she plunge in out of sight.

Traverse City Record: Capt. H. J. Walker is placing an plane on the Traverse Bay Lake a new, larger and more speedy steamboat than either of the vessel built on the line. He expects to build a craft which will make 20 miles an hour and will be more adequate for the trade between here and Petoskey and other northern ports.

Navigation for this port is practically closed. There is some talk of shipments from up lake ports, but they will probably be declared off. This week will finish up lake navigation. The schooner Pere Lake is expected here from Chicago as we write, and will probably lay up. The tugs have all gone into winter quarters but the fishing craft, which will begin business the 15th.

The steamer Wolverine, with part of a cargo of lumber, was driven ashore 25 Sunday, near Good Harbor, in a gale on Sunday, and now rests on the bottom in 12 feet of water. Capt. Jones capsized. The Wolverine hails from Two Rivers, and was loading at Good Harbor when the storm from the northwest came up. The steamer was run to North Unity for shelter, and there made fast to the pier. At midnight the lines parted in the heavy sea and the steamer went ashore. The owners telegraphed for a wrecking outfit, and it is believed the boat can be saved.

The Southern Shipmasters Society will probably begin its winter meetings at the dock offices as soon as Capt. Fifty Thomson returns home from Chicago. A matter that will demand the attention of the society at once will be the right of Capt. Pete Campbell to belong to the club. He is charged with lack of "sand," or an inclination to turn pale when he hears the cold whistle from the north blow. Two or three Beaver Island citizens will be put on the stand to testify that they were which found and lake bound here for six days waiting for Pete to get a move on him toward the north and well half way down. Capt. Wilson, also, has been heard to say that he thinks Capt. Pete has "cold feet" when he sees a good flying or heavy a gull screech three times. The society with from this on abandon Old Sol, either that return to Capt. Wilson's five cent tobacco.

Auction Scholars.

The enlarger of an expensive bachelor apartment house on Murray Hill recently advertised an empty apartment and waited for prospective tenants. They arrived immediately during the first week. On a later day when the advertisement was once more refunded, they came in such numbers that by 9 o'clock ten men had asked to see the rooms. It was not long before the cause of this sudden demand was plain to the manager. He learned it from the first arrival who looked at the empty rooms, admired their good points, and then showed unmistakably that he was disappointed. "But where is the cushion?" he asked. The manager was amazed and could only reveal "The cushion!" Then the visitor took out a newspaper and showed that the advertisement plainly read, "Cushion on premises." It was a mistake for "Cutrer on premises."—New York Sun.

BUSSION IN DOG.

Minister Dreamed the Authority of a Religious Cause.

A clergyman who went up into the country to preach and lived there a considerable time had occasion in his ministerium to drive regularly over a certain road. At a house on that road lived a big bulldog, which always came out and attacked him violently, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The minister stood this for a good while, until finally, as he drove past one winter night in a low sleigh, a means of correcting the dog by moral suasion occurred to him. He stopped his horse in the road before the house. The dog rushed out madly, barking and threatening to plunge into the sleigh. The minister sat in his sleigh and paid no attention. The dog retired, returned to the assault, retired again, and a third time rushed out to the attack. He did not touch the man, then he returned to his doorstep and lay down, apparently utterly scandalized and disgusted with such a man, and, as he paid no further attention, the minister drove off. After this the minister drove many times past the house, but the dog paid no attention to him and never seemed to see him at all. He was cured.

Husband Liked to Flirt.

One of the most attractive women who ever presided at the Japanese legation was Miss Nitsuo, news of whose death has recently reached her friends here. Her death it is said was hastened by her sorrow for the death of her husband, which occurred three years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Motsu were a devoted couple and when Mr. Motsu was stationed here they were constantly seen together. Asked at an afternoon tea what was Minister Motsu's favorite pastime, his gentle little wife looked up archly and said: "Madam, it is husband he likes to flirt best of all things in the world. He thinks the American sport most enjoyable. I flirt with him, he flirt with me." Wheeling gave letter to New York Tribune.

Passports to Japan.

There have been rumors of late to the effect that ever since's cadgel in Japan will be very uncomfortable, but official figures show a condition of prosperity that is astonishing. Things are moving smoothly and there is no prospect of a disturbance between Japan and antiquities. The population is 50,000,000 to have been in the hands of the Russo-Japanese war. Nor is it to be the Japanese authorities are at the cultural and commercial department, have not yet been received. However, the main figures are known and they show that there will be a surplus of 4,000,000 yen ($2,000,000). This is a very different showing from that of the population of Japan's owners is that the common statements of certain Japanese newspapers are to blame—Chicago News.

Professor Adolf Jeff, of Sweden, who recently returned from Greenland with a pair of musk oxen, one of the objects of his travels, believes these fine herbivorous animals can be acclimatized in the north of Sweden. In matter of food he says they are as easily pleased as the American goat that dispute one's cane. A full-grown ox will weigh between 1,400 and 1,500 pounds, and its flesh is good eating.

Sued for Kissing on the Stage.

One often hears of cinema cases through actresses being kissed on the stage to some passionate end in the latest story comes from Munich. During a performance of "Gretchen Girlie" the woman, playing the heroine was kissed by the impersonator of Mephisto. The management—not the actress—objected to what she thought was an innocent act, and now the case is to be brought into the court at Munich. The actor's defense is that he was only following the instruction of the author which prohibits "kisses, passionate embraces pressing her to his breast," and such like amorous actions on the stage.—London Chronicle.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

PRESIDENT McKINLEY's official message was first to hand in spite of Congress assembling the morning of that body on Monday. It was presented in the usual manner and received by Sergeant-at-Arms Ransdell at 12 noon, and read in the Senate and House of Representatives. The Vice-President and Speaker occupied their respective chairs. The galleries were crowded with ladies, who were accommodated with seats on the floor of the House. The Cabinet officers occupied seats directly in front of the Speaker's desk. President McKinley was received with great applause by the members of the Congress as he entered the hall, and was escorted to the Speaker's desk by the committee appointed for that purpose by the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House.

Instead of rising at the Speaker's desk and addressing the Senate and House of Representatives in the usual manner, the President remained seated, his secretary, Mr. Pruden, standing by his side and reading the message in a clear, distinct manner, occasionally pausing for a few moments to allow the stenographers to take down the words. The President's reading was very good, and he was heard by all in the galleries and by the members of the House and Senate.

The message is a very long document, and it occupies over two hours in its reading. It is a very comprehensive document, and covers the ground of the present condition of the country, and recommends legislation on all the subjects of importance to the people of the United States. The message is as follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

Congress convenes at a time when the prosperity of our country is in marked contrast with the condition of affairs which existed when your last session was held. Then we were in the midst of a period of business depression, with its attendant evils, which had been in progress for three years, and there was no sufficient promise that the future would bring us relief. Our foreign trade was at the lowest point in many years, and our home markets were in a condition of unprecedented depression. Our agriculture, our mines, our manufactories, our commerce, our railroads, our banks, our insurance companies, our building associations, our entire business world, were alike affected by the prevailing adversity. Our population was increasing at the rate of more than a million a year, but our exports had decreased in the preceding year a hundred millions of dollars compared with the exports of the year 1892, the highest in our history, and our imports had fallen more than one-third in the same period. Our revenues were falling, and we were compelled to impose upon the people the burden of new taxes to avoid a deficit in the public treasury. Our currency was in a condition to excite the gravest apprehension, and the existing law was found to be inadequate to the task of restoring to the country a safe and sound currency. Our National banks, which had been the source of much strength to the country in the past, were in many parts of the country the source of much weakness and danger. Our railroads, which are our highways of commerce, were in the hands of receivers in unprecedented number, and their securities had been in large volume and in many instances in the form of collateral security for loans to our citizens, been sold abroad in exchange for the money with which to pay the interest upon our own securities held by the people of other nations. Our mines were closed or their output was greatly diminished, and the miners who had dug the precious metals were in many instances in the ranks of the unemployed. Our factories were in many instances closed, and those which were not closed were in most instances operating with reduced force and at reduced wages. Our farms were yielding their owners but little more than the cost of the seed and the cost of the labor bestowed upon them, and the farmer was receiving for his product less than the cost of production in many parts of our country. Our merchants were in many instances unable to collect the money due them from their customers, who in their turn could not pay because they had been unable to find a market for their products. Our population was in many instances in want of the ordinary comforts and necessities of life, because they had been unable to find employment by which to earn the money with which to purchase them. Our manufacturing plants were in many instances closed because there was no market for the goods they had manufactured, and no money with which to pay the wages of workmen even if there had been. Our merchant marine had been driven from the ocean by the superior competition of our rivals in other lands, and our flag was scarcely seen upon the high seas. Our navy, which had been built up at the instance of my predecessor and myself, was in large part laid up in ordinary because we had not the men with which to man the ships. Our National treasury was depleted to the point of danger, and the public credit was impaired to the point of peril. Our National pride was wounded by the fact that our government was powerless to afford to our citizens in other lands and seas the protection which it was their right to demand and which it was the duty of their government to extend to them. Our Government was in the hands of a party which had been in power for a quarter of a century, and which had been in power for all but two years during the period in which the business of the country had been so disastrously affected by the fiscal policy of the Government. Under the Constitution the people have the right to change their rulers when they will, and they had exercised that right in the election of a President and a majority of the members of the House of Representatives in the year 1892 in the belief that the Democratic party would be able to relieve the country from the evils which had been so long and so sorely felt. The Democratic party had been in power but a few days before the country was aware that the expectations of its supporters were not to be realized, and that the evils which had been so long felt were to be increased rather than diminished by the action of the party to which the management of the affairs of the Government had been committed.

Of course, no one expects that a great country can be put upon a new basis of prosperity in a few days, or even in the first year of a new Administration, but it was the confident expectation of the people that the new Administration would at once so shape the affairs of legislation as to make it certain that the first steps had been taken which would lead to the relief of the country from the evils which had been so long felt. We Wonder.

During Congress's first term as governor within of this, on one occasion, traveled with him from Detroit to Lansing. Taking two unopened envelopes from his pocket he handed one of them with the remark: "Open on the white. I look over the; they are generally trash. I put important letters in the other." I am a regular patron of a shipping house, and just paid a bill of lading in shipping."

More than half the shippings we showed judge somewhat by the most prominent of Congress but his colleagues preferred, while none were complimentary. His excellency seemed entirely impervious to them, the several criticisms, except occasionally, when the criticisms of certain papers would elicit a few of language that would put a hot iron to blister to shame.

And now the wonder is, does Congress still continue to patronize the shipping firms? Or has he within the last week complied his contract? We wonder!

The Contest.

The house of representatives last week passed a bill abolishing the canteen in the army, and the W. C. T. U. is rejoicing, likewise every saloon keeper within a mile of the limits of military posts. The action of the house was in response to the ribbon made by temperance organizations, the decrees of which each person can question, but it is not impossible it is a act with that of the good people in such northern Michigan towns, who, in praying for a distribution of God's blessings among the poor, asked for a barrel of pepper for some poor family.

The canteen, as proved by the army records, has been a restriction. Only beer was sold, and that in small quantities, and drunkenness was unknown. It was designed as a temperance measure in the beginning, and while it did not produce teetotalers it kept the men from the saloons and out of the guard house.

All good citizens will be glad to see the saloons abolished everywhere, but the movement of the anti-canteen people will find the saloons.

The passage of the bill by the senate is extremely doubtful, and we sincerely hope, in the interests of temperance, that it will not.

The Petoskey Record, of last week said that Prof. M. O. Graves, owing to the expiration of the lease of his present quarters of his Normal Academy, is contemplating moving to some other city at the close of the present school.

The St. Ignace Enterprise says that Steve Franks, proprietor of the Mission House on Mackinac island, slipped off the roof of Hohmann's folly on Friday night, and fell on the ridge of shale below—a perpendicular drop of 60 feet—landing a shoulder and breaking one of the bones of his forearm. It intimates that Mr. Franks was mentally unbalanced by family troubles.

Central Lake Torch: The poles for the electric light plant are all set and the other work is being crowded along as fast as it can be done. The dynamo is made at Madison, Wis, by the Northern Electric Co. and is of the low voltage pattern. Mr. Walker will put in the direct current system, running separate circuits for the arc and incandescent lamps. It looks now as though the plant would be in full operation by Jan. 1st.

Game Warden Morse recently received a letter from a farmer near the shanty of Mackinac, in which the letter said: "I live one four miles from Mackinac City and the deer are destroying my beets and carrots and other garden stuff very bad and did last year and have done me a lot of damage for the last six years. Now what will I do? Sit up nights and watch and drive them out or will you give me permit to shoot them? If you have to pay gas or wardens to look after the deer you might have one round and keep them out of my crops as they are doing me a lot of damage.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEM, COM'R.

During the past week we found a chart in one of our rural schools that is troubling the children a beautiful season. Why the patrons of the district should be willing to pay a traveling salesman $10 for a $3 chart, that by its silent teaching tends to make the child dissatisfied with its life on the farm, we cannot comprehend. The chart contains four pictures on the inner page that stand out from nearly below the child during the day. One represents a farm scene with a young man changing a scythe blade in the tired figure. The smiling face is a picture of young health and contentment. Next is a scene going man behind a mower setting the grass, above him is a young lady with a parasol in the most graceful and graceful attitude. Opposite sits a dudish appearing young man, with a pen behind his ear, planning over a pile of ledgers, with this significant caption beneath: "Ah! the office is the school board is the best that ever came into the chart and take it."

How natural it is to think that the other fellow's lot is so much easier and better than our own. Each one knows the hardships, struggles and discouraging obstacles in the way of his own work, but all these he may look and every bright, attractive feature is observed.

To the growing boy, enjoying a good night's refreshing sleep, to be aroused at four o'clock in the morning, with a sudden invitation to feed and carry the horses, or milk the cow and then shoulder enough wood for the day's household supply, to say long for a carship, with office hours from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. To the tired boy it seems so much better to wear "shiny clothes" "white shoes" "starch shirts" and "stiff collar" than overalls, shoes that shock shirt and brogans with home-made jeans. Yet the boy, who enjoyed the best side of country life.

Schools, colleges, books, and papers have been teaching for professional, mechanical, commercial, literary, and or political life. Scarcely a page has been given the student pertaining to other agricultural knowledge. It is rarely is they mentioned in either home or schoolroom, anything concerning the profits, pleasures and independence of either agriculture or horticulture as a vocation.

Is it any wonder then, that when the country boy or girl receives a beautiful catalogue from some great city school stating what a remarkable location, person they will make for only $50 or $100, in six or eight months' time, also giving attractive names from John Smith, Mary Brown, Wm. Jones and others, stating how they spent three to six months in this marvelous school, when they were called upon by a leading banker or wholesale merchant who offered them $1000 per year and expenses, with short hours, long vacations and pleasant employers thrown in, while all that must be done is "just keep the books" or write letters on the typewriter." No wonder that the farm and all its environments grew very dull after reading that circular or catalogue. No wonder that thousands of bright young lives have been allured from the delightful country life with its fruits in the hour, office, overcrowded city, ready to prey of drudgery, many to sink, poverty and shame.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA.

Man Who Vainly Much Prays to Suffer from This Disease.

This discouraging affection, known also as Tabes dorsalis, is a disease of the animal cord occurring usually in middle life between thirty and fifty years of age, but sometimes in children as young as ten or twelve years. It is believed to be due primarily to some constitutional trouble, but is present on often to exposure to changes of weather, by physical or mental overwork, and by whatever depresses the general health. It is said that railroad men and others who travel much are prone to suffer from this disease. Men are affected more often than women. The first sign of the disease is usually a numbness of the feet and an uncertainty in walking especially in the dark. The patient feels constantly fatigued, without apparent reason, and sometimes slight attacks of dizziness are complained of. The difficulty in walking gradually increases, and then an awkwardness in the use of the hands is noticed. This becomes very apparent if the patient is made to shut his eyes and try to touch the end of the nose with the index finger. A well person can usually place the finger on or very near the nose, but one suffering from locomotor ataxia is as likely to touch the eye or the chin. There is also frequently a feeling of constriction about the waist or a cord were usually felt around the body. Sharp, cutting pains may be felt in the legs and sometimes there is severe pain in the stomach, perhaps with vomiting. Not uncommonly there is irregular action of the bowels and bladder. The eyes are often affected, the sight gradually growing dim, or double vision being present, and occasionally there is deafness as well. Painless swelling and deformity of one or more joints may occur, and sometimes the bones become so brittle that they break very easily, as in a simple fall. A rare symptom is an utter on the sole of the foot, which it is difficult or impossible to heal. Locomotor ataxia is a very slowly progressive disease, lasting sometimes for many years, and seldom in itself a cause of death. When treatment is begun in the very early stages it is believed that the disease may possibly be cured but later the most that can be done is to delay its progress and relieve the most distressing symptoms.—Cordial Companion.
